New Homes Await Feathered Summer Guests

Roy Ranger, retired sailor and ship builder, who now devotes his time to building martin houses, shows some of his handiwork to another martin fancier and neighbor, Luther Hannah.

"For rent: apartments. Only martins need apply" might well be the sign on the bird houses built by Roy Ranger, retired sailor and ship builder, who has turned to the construction of bird houses as a hobby.

For Mr. Ranger, the building of the dwelling places for the small members of the swallow family has turned into almost a full-time job. He spends a good part of the year designing and building the houses, which are really apartment houses, and the summer in observing the interesting habits of his little tenants.

At the present time he has three houses about his own yard and several others which have been made to order or are for sale.

There's quite a knack to making the houses, Mr. Ranger has found after studying the birds for many years. They like space, not too much or too little, they like their houses well ventilated and convenient to get into.

After much experimenting, he now has what he feels is the ideal bird house . . . each 'apartment' is seven inches square, equally as high with an entrance placed one and a half inches above the floor level to allow for the building of a nest. It also has an air vent at the ceiling level.

The large houses are built so that by turning several screws the roof can be lifted off and the partitions and floors removed for cleaning before they are stored for the winter.

Each floor level has a little 'porch' where the baby birds may perch before learning to fly. In fact, it's quite a science, this building of bird houses.

As a reward for providing living quarters for the little birds, Mr. Ranger relates, he has an opportunity to study them. He has found they are gregarious, have set family habits and live in communities.

P. H. Timmer Tells Kiwanis Postal Facts

The Charlevoix Kiwanis club Monday night heard Peter H. Timmer, newly appointed postmaster, tell of the postoffice department, how it operates and the important part each employee plays in the department.

He said he, as postmaster, had a credit of $6,000 for stamps of every kind, postcards, etc., with the Detroit office. In turn each clerk 'buys' materials from him and is responsible for his account which is kept in a special drawer.

The receipts of the postoffice determines what class it will be in. The receipts here last year were $32,000, thus making this a second class office. A first class office must have $40,000 in receipts annually. Another interesting point was the fact the postmaster's salary is based on the office's receipts. He added that during the three summer months, June, July and August, the receipts equal those for the other nine months.

He concluded by saying that friendliness, especially in a small office, was the aim of the department and even though there were set rules by which the employees must abide, they often do small favors for people which they do not have to do. Regarding this he quoted the late George W. Weaver who said, when he was postmaster, that the rules were necessary but that they should be administered with a little common sense.

Ironton Ferry In Operation For '52 Season

The Ironton ferry started operation for the 1952 season at noon Wednesday to mark one of the latest starting dates in the ferry's history.

A dispute over the payment of an anticipated deficit on the ferry held up its operation. The Board of Supervisors and the road commission finally agreed to split the possible deficit.

New temporary ramps to the ferry had to be built after the groups came to an agreement. The new ramps are approximately 24 inches above the permanent steel ramps because of the high water level in the lake.

New ferry rates went into effect with the new season when the board of supervisors boosted the cost from 15 and 25 cents to 25 and 35 cents.

Attends Tri-State Meeting

Miss Anne Baumgartner, superintendent of the Charlevoix Hospital left Sunday via plane for Chicago where she will attend th Tri-State Hospital convention. She was accompanied on the trip by Mrs. Albert Cook.

Buttricks Find Calcutta A City of Pitiful Conditions

When our tour of Vellore was over, we hired a car and drove back to Madras rather than once again facing that springless train. (By the way, the whole permanent staff of the college and hospital is Christian.) We got there in time for dinner and the next morning started for Calcutta.

A few casual remarks may be interesting: 1 In most of the college chapels here, so far, there are no seats Everyone sits on the floor on small square mats sometimes, other times just on the floor.

2. Have I told you that when one of the bearers, dhobbies or waiters, etc., say yes, they do not nod. Instead they bend their heads sideways with a funny little jerk.

3. In Vellore most of the taxies are little carts with a low circular bamboo top to seat four. The occupants just crawl in from the back and sit on the floor.

4. We asked about funny circular brown patches on the side of village and even town homes. They turned out to be pieces of cow-dung put there to dry and store for fuel, when it is so badly needed for fertilizer.

5. The police are most impressive: they wear tall roundish red hats, often braided—fully as high as the old-fashionel silk hat.

7 Saw several men on the main street in Calcutta, taking their baths at the fire hydrants. Also saw a man on this very street washing brass pots for cooking in a muddy puddle by the gutter. In the home of the head of the Vellore college and hospital (we stayed there) I walked into our room and saw through the doorway to the bathroom the funy old maid, in her dirty pink sari, ladling water from the faucet into the brown drinking water jar with her bare hands. We were told the water was safe for drinking as it was boiled. I can tell you I dropped some halezone into that jar pretty fast.

7. Anytime you are walking down the street, you may nearly fall over a bundle. It is someone taking a nap, someone homeless or someone resting during the noon lunch hour. I nearly stumbled over a woman and baby sleeping in the middle of the sidewalk near our hotel in Madras. What with people and cows, particularly in Calcutta, the streets are hazardous indeed. Passed two men today, sitting in their customary squatting position beside a busy sidewalk, the one shaving the other. They cut each others hair this way too. I wish you could see the taxi men here, clad in the usual dhoti with a long, short-sleeved shirt hanging on the outside, and with large colored turbans and huge beards—for all the world like pirates and positively frightening. Oh yes, I saw a large herd of goats meddled up with traffic on one of the busiest streets in Calcutta.

Council Adopts Approved Model Milk Ordinance

A new milk ordinance, setting a higher standard for milk and milk products in the Charlevoix area, was adopted at a special meeting of the Charlevoix council Monday evening.

The ordinance raises the milk standards to meet the maximum requirements in effect throughout the state. It will assure the milk and milk-product users of the community a better quality product and the milk producers a wider market for their products.

Under the new ruling the butterfat contents of milk will be raised from three percent to 3.5 percent and the bacterial count will be lowered. Several changes raising the standards at the source of the milk supply were also made. The result will be a better quality product.

The Maxbauer Creamery has long met the requirements set forth in the ruling.

Tax Allocation Board Announces Tentative Rates

The Charlevoix county tax allocation board met here Monday to set the tentative tax rate for 1952.

As in the past, eight mills were allocated to the county for operational costs.

Beginning this year only one mill will be needed for the court house sinking fund which for the past three years has required two mills. For the next seven years one mill will be allocated to the sinking fund which was adopted by the voters of the county in 1949.

All townships were allocated one mill with the exception of Hayes whose budget did not show a need.

The millage allocated to the schools in the county was split this year with all rural school districts receiving five mills with the exception of Hayes which will receive six mills. The school districts within the cooporate city limits of Charlevoix, East Jordan and Boyne City also will receive six mills.

The millage for 1952 will be levied on the new county equalized valuation of $17,963,745.

The final hearing before adopting the tentative rate has been scheduled for 10 a.m. Thursday, May 8.

Answers From Yucca Flat

There still exists, apparently, a considerable body of American opinion that a few atomic bombs dropped on key Chinese cities would end the Korean incident and, perhaps, erase the Communist threat in Asia. A bit more realistic and pointed have been the frequent commentaries speculating on the purpose and effect of the much-publicized "Operation Big Shot" as to the stalmated truce talks and whatever military operations might necessarily follow.

What answers to these and to other questions are to be found in the latest giant explosion over Yucca Flat, this time coodinated with tactical employment of ground troops? The judgments of many experts are crowding in fast.

As to the first question — whether mass atomic bombing of cities (strategic bombing) can quickly bring a major nation to its knees. An affirmative answer seems more doubtful with every passing experiment. Wholly aside from ethical considerations, and ignoring for the moment possible psychological effects such as realigning world sympathies and solidifying national unity and will to resist within the country attacked, the fact still remains that a bomb to do anything must be delivered on the target.

And the obstacles increase for any attacker. The bomb at Yucca Flat was delivered almost directly on target with every possible aid present and just about every obstacle absent — no defending planes, no ground fire. And, speaking of defenses, guided missiles have reached a degree of range and automatic accuracy that soon may render anything but one first surprise attack a very dubious enterprise for either side.

As for tactical use of the atom bomb, the same problems of accuracy and deliverability remain. Would a bomb covering so wide a blast area and missing the very bull's eye do more damage to friendly or to hostile forces? And wide as the blast area may be, one of the facts emphasized by the recent test is the survivabilty of equipment and the possible survivability of personnel much nearer the point of explosion that the average person has imagined.

Atomic artillery and atom-loaded guided missiles— both in the offering — will likely prove much more controllable. Which leads to the consideration of the positive results that can be expected from "Operation Big Shot."

First, the test further underlines that no known form of atomic explosion as yet offers an "absolute" weapon. The more people recognize this the saner and more realistic will be their thinking and what they demand of their armed forces and their government.

Second, troops are learning — and the general public, too — that atomic explosives represent nothing supernatural, but simply greatly amplified fire power which can both be employed and defended against — something men have learned to do with gunpowder, the submarine, and the airplane.

Lastly, the potency of atomic weapons, limited and avoidable as it may be, still is so vast that humanity's best hope is to heal the conditions and the thinking which lead men to use and to fear such engines of great destruction.

INTERPRETING THE NEWS

by Gene Alloman

The riots at Jackson State Prison are old hat now. The fury is quieted and the biggest story in Michigan since the state office building burned has faded off page one to be replaced by the old regular . . . politics.

But still, in the face of the tragedy of death and mayhem which ruled the prison for four days and to which the state humbled itself to offer the rioting prisoners everything but a ride in the park, politics has been at the wheel.

The riots have become the well known political football of the month.

Democrats are yelling, "Yah yah, you didn't give us any money to enlarge the prison facilities."

Republicans reply, "Yah yah, the $600,000 you asked wouldn't have helped anyway."

What both sides have failed to reveal is: Just why did the riots occur?

BEFORE THE bodies were cool, Gov. G. Mennen Williams bleater, "My warnings have been disregarded. My request for $600,000 for a new building to relieve the over-crowding at Jackson was rejected by the legislature."

"Appropriations have forced a reduction of 60 guards at Jackson since 1949, while the prison population was increasing."

And the Republican whimpered in reply, "Jackson has more guards now than it ever has had before."

But the question still remains, just why did the prisoners riot?

The politicians will bat the question around until it is ragged and more than likely there will be a special session of the legislature to whip up some more cash to repair the damage done.

BUT LISTEN to a former guard at the prinson. "Prisoners are devoted to one theme," he says (and he refuses to call them convicts), "and that is walking out of those iron doors. Their lives, their thoughts are wrapped up in getting out. They think of little else."

"But when you get a prison in which nothing is settled, in which the parole board is changed so regularly and the prison rules themselves are changed, you have unruly convicts."

He pointed out that Jackson prison is hard time to serve. Marquette is tougher, but it's easier for the con because there everything is done by rule. Hard or easy, it's readymade.

Several years ago a prisoner blew his top because he was changed from one steamer to another. The kitchen help had been changed. It was necessary to move him up. But that old steamer, on which he had served five years was his wife, his family, his whole life. He had polished it, cleaned it, kept it working. It was the center of his entire interest.

Change the number of bricks in a prisoner's view of the wall or paint one, he's liable to do the same.

AND SO WHAT has happened at Jackson? Joe Sanford was warden. At this time, he still is considered as having been a good warden. But when the opposition party took control, he quit before he was fired.

General Frisbee was hired, and up until this time had been considered a fine warden. But the parole board has been changed constantly. The prison officials have been moved around.

Every time the politicians grunt there is another move made to "improve" conditions in the World's largest prison.

Ernest C. Brooks took over as corrections commissioner. A good man, he has disavoided politics (he's a Democrat) and run things fairly, if quietly. He has been afraid of the press.

His head is on the block now. Warden Frisbee is looking up at the axe. The marines probably look good to the former general at this time. But the riots also have made persons. Deputy Warden Vernon Fox by the simple expedient of being a "good guy" had made himself so well liked among the prisoners that they would negotiate only with him. Fox may go places. If he becomes a politician!

LEONARD, former state police commissioner long has voiced fears of such a riot. Bill Burke, who once was prison induatry chief, now in the same capacity at the Iowa state prison also warned against an uprising.

The day before the riot, the Iowa prison board heard a study report commending to the skies the Jackson set-up. Burke said, "Watch the place, it's full of dynamite."

He was right. And now the entire issue, dead as it is, is being exploited by both parties.

But does that help the lifer who for 18 years had cared for the greenhouse. The old man wept when he saw what the rioters had done to his work. The political issue still will seeth despite the old man's tears.

And nothing much can be done. Except formulate a solid and consistent policy in the prison . . . with solid and consistent men in charge.

ODDS 'N ENDS

By Fran Marlin

Elsewhere in the Courier this week is a story about Roy Ranger and the martin houses he builds . . Without a doubt, we found this one of the most interesting interviews we've ever had . . . Never have we seen anyone more familiar with the habits of his tenants . . . and who more thoroughly enjoyed them . . . . Twice as much could have been written about both Mr. Ranger and the birds . . .

AN ORCHID to the Girl Scout Council . . . for the Father and Daughter banquet they sponsored last week . . . It was just about the nicest event of its kind we've ever seen . . . Dads were busy helping their daughters with table settings, chairs and what not, and enjoying every minute of it. Moms are always the ones who accompany their daughters to such an event, so this year they decided to be different . . . We'll bet the dads will be looking forward to another one next year . .

HAVE YOU noticed . . . Spring is bustin' out all over . . . the buds on the bushes and trees can almost be heard popping, the flowers are budding . . . . We expect any day to see a dandelion or two . . . Can't remember when we've had such an early and warm spring . . . And if you're looking for mushrooms, they won't be out 'til the leaves on the poplar trees start to open . . . That's what one of the old timers told us just last week . . .

AND SPEAKING of spring . . . Did you ever notice how the willow turns a golden shade in the Spring . . . Neither did we until Fred Bergmann told us about it . . . Looking across Round Lake to the east one can see the panorama of Spring unfolding in the various colors of the trees as they acquire their summer garb . . . Take a look each day and you'll see what we mean . . . Did you ever stop to think how lucky you are to live in God's country? . . .

IF YOU LIKE strawberries, don't look in the new magazines on the news-stands . . . No matter which ones you look in you see colored pictures of the most luscious concoctions . . . literally 'drooly' . . . And northern Michigan's berries won't be ripe for another two months . . . How will we stand it? . . .

LAST WEEK we mentioned Eleanor Ratigan's essay in Vogue on "Women aren't Logical" . . . If you have your doubts now, you'll be even more confused when you read that . . .

ONE OF Charlevoix's favorite events, the Northern Michigan band festival, will be held here next Thursday, May 8 . . . Everyone turns out to see the colorful parade of bands from the schools in the area and the town takes on a holiday spirit . . . But we won't have that event another year if you don't come through with the so called wherewithal . . the stuff that pays the bills . . . There's a small charge made for a ticket which entitles its holder hear the individual performances during the day and the massed band concert in the evening . . . Find Calcutta Conditions Pitiful living room of this home in which we are staying and it struck me afresh how pitiful is the Jamadar, "human sweeper". Because of the caste system every home has so many servants (more than half of India seems to be servants) one for this, one for that, so there is a "sweeper".

First he sits down in the characteristic sitting position, knees wide apart and the rest of him sunk almost to the floor between, then he walks in this position all over the floor, using a brush of twigs about 18 inches long and tied together at one end. The brush is worked almost flat on the ground. All over the house goes the sweeper every day.

He and so many of his fellows in India are so thin they are like straight lines with long black legs, also straight lines, below their dirty, diaper-like dhoutis, and no smiles. Why should they? Life is one constant struggle for existence but must be accepted because it must be the result of some sins in a previous incarnation, or is a way of gaining "merit" to bring happiness in the next. So there is little "pity". Only in the work of the Christian hospitals, schools and colleges, and in the Christian community and its influence do we find real compassion and a move toward change, and smiling faces.

Benares is the holiest city in India, and a mecca for pilgrims and a place almost as congested as Calcutta. On the 12-mile drive in from the airport we were back on familiar ground, a road like all roads in India, along which plodded patient, unsmiling mostly silent lines of burden bearers, high loads on their heads, bullock carts, donkeys, the bicycle rickshaw quite gay, supercilious camels, even an elephant coming from a side field to join the line.

Here a village with the low and walled hut and its thatched roof, added children, goats, cows and water buffalo through which, with shrill honking of horns, our car weaved its perilous way.

We found our hotel on the edge of the city on the part once British, with wide fields and lovely homes

But the old city is a maze of narrow, narrow streets, and narrower alleys, winding down to the river front: the most holy Ganges. Along the river's edge, on a high bluff are the palaces and spacious homes, or rather, one-time homes, of maharajahs and nobles, now mostly rooming houses for pilgrims.

Here and there between them are narrow lanes leading to the great, wide stone stairs or "ghats" down which the pilgrim or sightseer climbs to the water's edge. But the sight of the homeless living by the roadside, and the piteous cry of the beggars and the more piteous appearance, makes the descent a misery.

We hired a boat and a guide and he took us to the temples and round the city generally, and the next morning early took us on the river. We sat like rajahs on three old chairs on a flat roof over a low cupboard or cabin out of which, at intervals, as the guide pointed out something, would pop a hawker selling this or that. How he got on without our seeing him we don't know. Our boat had two oarsmen in front with bamboo poles on which, for oar a board was nailed.

From the vantage of our seats we were able to watch the life of the water front: a lovely mosque, a temple, the gleaming palaces, the great ghats, the moving mass of pilgrims, the large bamboo umbrellas under which the Brahmin priests who, for a consideration will supervise the ritual, here and there local folks taking a morning bath or washing their teeth.

The pilgrim came to purify himself in the brown, contaminated waters, and the purification meant washing also the garment he or she was wearing. Brass pots must be filled with Ganges' water to pour over the idol. Many pilgrims are devoutly praying.

I can see one old man sitting cross legged on the bottom step, lifting water in his hands to the sky, filling his small brass bowl and lifting it high above his head, his brown body glistening after the bath he had just taken.

Further up the shore, near the "burning ghats", where the bodies of the dead are cremated (to die in Benares means bliss beyound!) and the ashes scattered on the river, was a man putting a garland round the neck of his dead calf and binding its limbs before casting it, too, in the water. The sacred animal must only be entrusted to the sacred river. Perhaps an untouchable would rescue the carcass, and sell the hide, perhaps it would rot there and that in a land where almost no one has even a pair of sandals.

Daughters And Fathers Enjoy Scout Banquet

More than 250 Brownie and Girl Scouts, their fathers and troop leaders met at the high school gymnasium Tuesday evening for the first annual Father and Daughter banquet.

World Friendship was the theme of the decorations and each troop's table was centered with a clever decoration carrying out the theme.

Because it was the first time fathers had been invited to such an event, they were a little reluctant to participate but once at the gymnasium, they assisted their daughters in arranging tables and table settings. Each proudly watched his daughter, or in some cases several daughters, participate in the program, for each of the 11 troops portrayed some phase of scouting.

The evening concluded with the showing of the film, "Let's Go Camping."

Mrs. Isaac Terr was general chairman of the event. Mrs. Lester Smith, Girl Scout Council President, welcomed the guests and Mrs. H. E. Paddock was mistress of ceremonies.

At the conclusion of the evening each Brownie and Scout contributed pennies, one for each year of her age, to the Juliet Low fund.

New Houses Await Feathered Guests

Like the swallows which come to Capistrano, they arrive at a given time each year from their winter homes, which might be as far south as the northern countries of South America. Their arrival date here is April 19. They stay exactly three months, raise their families and depart for their winter quarters on August 19.

They return to their former homes year after year. If the houses are not up when they arrive they remain in the neighborhood and each day visit their old haunts, coaxing the landlord to put the house out so they can move in. The houses are mounted on poles a safe distant above the ground to protect the birds from cats and other animals. If the landlord is late, the birds have been known to move in while the owner is preparing the house on its pole. However, one must be careful not to place the house out too early or unwanted tenants, starlings and sparrows, will move in.

The martins have a set of laws by which the community lives, Mr. Ranger has found, and mentioned two instances which he observed from his workshop window.

One spring a young mother returned with a pretty feather which the others seemed to admire. One older bird, however, seemed to covet the prize and tried to take it from its owner. The young bird retained possession of it, placed it in her nest and went for more building materials. In her absence the older bird stole the feather and placed it in her own nest. Later the young bird discovered the loss and immediately went to the offender's nest and removed the feather. Despite the argument which followed, the owner recovered the feather for her nest.

Another time an old bird who had become indolent because of her advanced years, took to stealing from her neighbors when it came nest-building time. Her industrious neighbors were flitting in and out with bits of sticks, twigs, mud, feathers, grasses and other materials of which their crude nests are made while she stayed at home. In their absence she would steal something from each nest until she had her own nest nearly completed.

She seemed to know she was doing wrong, Mr. Ranger said, because she would look about her before going into the other apartments. One bird, returning unexpectedly, found her in his house and immediately sent out an alarm. Other birds answered his call and after a noisy 'conference' they took things into their own hands. They removed the culprit from the neighbor's house and gave her a sound beating. The old bird was never seen stealing from her neighbors again.

Martin families average from three to four little ones each year. They are fed on flying insects and some wingless insects' such as ants or caterpillers. Like all parents, they have a sanitation problem in the nest after the little ones are hatched and remedy this by lining the nest regularly with fresh green leaves. They even house-break the little ones before they leave the nest.

All this information from an old boat builder turned birdhouse builder.

Mr. Ranger was born in southern Michigan June 10, 1873, and came to Charlevoix at the age of nine years when his father, a stone-mason by trade, came here to work on the old Central School building.

He first was employed on boats operated by the late Geik C. Geiken and later on private yachts. He has engineer's and master's papers on the Great Lakes.

For many years he had a boatyard on the south shore of Round Lake. Here he designed and built many boats. Among them were the freighter, Marquis Roen, which was designed and built for John Roen, now of Sturgeon Bay, Wis. and two fishing vessels, which were taken to Boston, Mass.

In the earlier days he built Mackinaw boats, which were small fishing and passenger boats with sails. Scale models of this once popular craft were made by him for the Smithsonian Institute in Washington, D. C.

In later years he was employed by the late Logan Thomas, owner of several yachts, most of which bore the name "Sylvia." The last was the Sylvia V, which left here in the spring of 1940 to be converted into a patrol boat for the Navy. It was later lost in the Carribean during World War II.

Shortly after the departure of the Sylvia, Mr. Ranger retired and moved to his present home at 112 East Upright, where he resides with his wife, Martha.

Council Approves Milk Ordinance

The ordinance, adopted from a model ordinance approved by the state, will give milk producers a larger market. For example, in the summer, when Charlevoix has a milk shortage milk is brought here in tank cars from elsewhere in the state. However, when the local market had a surplus and there was a shortage elsewhere, the local producers were unable to sell their milk at other markets because the Charlevoix ordinance did not comply with rules set up hy the model ordinance. Under the new ruling, Charlevoix milk and its products can be sold throughout the state.

The ordinance to be known as Ordinance No. 249, was prepared and submitted to the council by Howard E. Houghton Sanitarian of the District Department of Health No. 3. It will become effective May 20.

The ordinance, which promotes uniformity in communities having milk inspection, is approved by the following state organizations: Department of Health, Department of Agriculture, Association of Dairy and Milk Inspectors, Milk Producers Association, Milk Dealers Association and Michigan State College.

At the same meeting the council approved the application of Mrs. Della R. Lomas for Class C eight-months liquor license with dance permit.

Patrons Asked To Fix Rural Mail Boxes

This week has been designated as "Rural Mail Box Improvement Week" by the United States Post Office department. Such a week is especially importont in the areas where heavy winter snow prevails, explains Peter H. Timmer, local postmaster.

Drifting snows and snow plowing the roads take a heavy toll of mail boxes and he points out that this is not the result of carelessness or neglect on the part of the patrons or the plow drivers. It it just a weother hazard in this country.

Timmer urges rural posf office patrons to put on a campaign to get their mail boxes in a good state of repair. He says it is especially desirable that the boxes be in condition to assure proper protection of the mail, be accessible to the carriers and be neat in appearance.

When mail boxes meet these conditions it is a material help to the efficiency of the rural mail service, he says.

A light at the entrance to farm buildings can help eliminate stumbling accidents.

ONE SPECK of RUST can stall your car

Even one speck of rust or corrosion can stall your motor by clogging one of the tiny carburetor jets.

Rust and corrosion form throughout your fuel system when you use ordinary gasoline. That's because your gasoline—and everybody else's—contains minute quantities of water, formed by moisture condensation.

Protect your car against rust and corrosion. Use new Anti-Rust Sinclair Gasolines regularly. They contain the miracle Anti-Rust Chemical, RD-119.

Good Pasture Crop Seeding Important

Getting a good seeding of hay and pasture crops is one of the jobs facing many Michigan farmers now and Richard Bell, farm crops specialist at Michigan State college, today passed along some tips for insuring success in the venture.

Bell says that one of the most important points is to test the soil for acidity if you're making an alfalfa seeding and the soil hasn't been tested recently. That job must be done immediately so you can get the results of the test and get limestone applied. Pulverized or super-fine limestone will correct the acidity more rapidly. The lime should be applied and worked into the soil either before or after plowing.

Innoculate alfalfa seed regardless of how recently alfalfa has been grown on the same land. Put the legume seed in shallow by trying the alfalfa seed tubes back so the seed falls behind the drill. Then cultipack or let the first rain cover the seed.

A good seeding mixture for moderately to well-drained fields is six to eight pounds of alfalfa, one fourth to one half pound of ladino clover, and two to four pounds of bromegrass per acre.

At planting time, apply at least 300 to 350 pounds of fertilizer of an analysis like 4-16-16 or 3-18-9, or 450 to 500 pounds of a lower analysis such as 3-12-12 or 2-12-6. For sandy soils, Bell recommends at least 300 to 350 pounds of 3-9-18.

Metal Roof Paint Tests Reported

Results of 15 years of experimenting with metal roof paint have shown which paints are best for making metal roofs last longer, according to A. J. Bell, Michigan State College extension agricultural engineer.

Bell says that of 92 different paints tried out, only six or seven showed much value for metal roofs. Zinc metal paint has stood up the best. It is composed of zinc dust, zinc oxide and oil.

Second best paint proved to be red oxide, which has been used on barns for many years. It should be of high quality if it is to be used successfully, Bell points out. Aluminum ranked third best and was found to have a longer duration if a base of rust-slowing coat was put on first.

Brushing aluminum paint over rust on metal roofs is just a waste of time and money, the experiments showed. Although steel brushing was formerly recommended, it has since been proven that the life of a paint job is about as long when the rust is swept off with a stiff broom. There isn't enough extra life in the paint to warrant steel brushing.

You can avoid loss of several dollars worth of gasoline through evaporation by putting a sunshade over your storage tank and painting it white, Michigan State College agricultural engineers point out.

Tree Planting Time

The picture shows Charles Robinson, Boyne City; Bill Grimm, Boyne City; William Gaunt, East Jordan; William Korthase, Boyne City; and Clayton Healey, East Jordan examining the load of trees that were brought in to the county by the Charlevoix Soil Conservation District.

More than 100,000 trees were brought into Charlevoix county by the Charlevoix Soil Conservation District last week, Ed Rebman, county agricultural agent and secretary of the district reported today. These trees included mainly red pine and white pine. There were also some Multiflora Rose, Bush Honeysuckle, Scotch pine and spruce. In addition to the trees that were brought in by the soil conservation district many more thousands of trees are also coming in from the Michigan Department of Conservation and the Forestry Department of Michigan State college.

Farmers should take care of the trees immediately upon arrival. If trees are to be planted within one or two days they may be left in the original package but they should be stored in a cool place and roots well watered.

If the planting stock is to be held longer, the trees should be "heeled in". Dig one or more trenches long enough to contain the trees and deep enough that all roots can be covered with soil. Open the shipment and spread the bunches of trees in the trench. Cover the roots with soil and pack firmly. There must be no air pockets around the roots. The trees should be kept moist until planting time.

The trees should be planted with care. If the field is in sod the sod must first be removed. This can be done in different ways. You can use an ordinary one bottom plow and by plowing shallow just turn the sod over. The sod can also be removed by using a grub hoe and removing a piece of sod 24 inches square.

The tree should be planted in the bottom of the furrow or in the middle of the area where the sod has been removed. Use either a tree planting spud or a spade with a strong handle. Make a good opening, hold the tree at the proper depth and plant the tree with the roots spread out. Be sure and pack dirt around the tree very firmly. For additional infomation on planting trees, ask for the folder from the county extension office at Boyne City.

Feeding Pointers For Young Calves

Tests at Michigan State college and observations of farmers have resulted in definite recommendations for feeding young dairy calves, reports L. A. Johnson, extension dairyman at MSC.

Proper feeding has been found to be a major consideration in getting calves off to the right start. Johnson reports that the most satisfactory rate of feeding milk is one pound a day for each ten pounds the calf weighs. This means that an 80 pound calf should get about eight pounds or two feeds of four pounds each day. That's about two quarts twice a day.

Milk should be fed warm from the cow, not cold. One of the big problems is fast drinking which often leads to scouring troubles. Successful dairymen have found that drinking can be slowed by elevating the pail in a rack or manger. Many farmers report success with nipple pails, but point out that it's important to keep the pail and nipple clean.

Most dairymen prefer to start calves on whole grains at about two weeks of age. A mixture of three parts whole oats, three parts shelled corn and one part linseed or soybean oil meal has been used successfully. This mixture may be fed until the calves are about three months of age, when a ground grain mixture should be started.

A recommended growing mixture is made up of 150 pounds of ground oats, 100 pounds of yellow corn meal, 100 pounds of wheat bran and 50 pounds of high protein concentrate. Many dairymen simple feed the regular herd ration to these older calves.

Issue Warnings On Newborn Pigs

Although the needle teeth of newborn pigs are tiny they're sharp enough to cause injuries that pave the way for infection, Ed Rebman, county agricultural agent, warned farmers today.

He points out that germs which cause bullnose in pigs are often present in barnyards and lots. If pigs injure each other while fighting, these germs may get into the wounds and cause swollen noses and sore mouths. If your pigs injure each other, their needle teeth should be clipped.

Be careful not to injure the gum or the skin during the operation. If you do, you will be giving the germs the same chance to cause infection. As a precaution against infection, wash and sterilize the clipper and apply disinfectant.

The county agricultural agent has another suggestion for dealing with the problem in case you don't want to take a chance in clipping the needle teeth. The other way to avoid trouble is to dull the teeth with a file.

Marketing Efforts Of Beef Purchasers Brings Returns

Marketing the production of the farms and ranches is one of our most serious problems and one which too many farmers sby away from, according to Ray McMullen, Otsego county agricultural agent. In the past, emphasis in agriculture has been on production. Research has been conducted almost since man started to take charge of the affairs of the world, on ways and means of increasing efficiency and of producing food and fiber. Many times a farmer will say, "provide a good market outlet and I'll be willing to produce more eggs, milk, cereal crops, etc." However, many times it is the volume and quality of these products that makes a market good.

The marketing of feeder cattle in northern Michigan has been at least partly improved through the efforts of the Northern Michigan Beef Breeders association. This group of cattlemen have set up a program for the improvement of beef cattle through the use of good registered beef sires and management of the cow herd. Annually each fall these men consign their steers and surplus heifer calves to a feeder calf sale sponsored by their own association. These calves are graded and sorted into lots of from 5 to 15 animals of uniform size, weight and quality which are then sold at auction. The uniformity of these lots make them very attractive to buyers, who are for the most part, farmers in southern Michigan, northern Ohio and Indiana.

This association started with a small volume and in five years has grown to a $127,000 business. It is conservatively estimated that as a result of the work the association is doing, the net return to the farmer has been from $4.00 to $7.00 per hundred weight more than it would have been without this cooperative marketing set-up.

Michigan annually imports 90,000 cattle to go into feed lots for finishing. Northern Michigan beef breeders are now consigning about 1500 cattle each year in an effort to supply some of this demand. This means there is plenty opportunity for any wishing to produce good quality beef feeder calves.

Warm Weather Speeds Up Weevil Injury To Grain

Weevil injury to stored grain speeds up in warm weather, says Ed Rebman, county agricultural agent. He points out that winter weevil damage usually is confined to small areas where weevils ball up to keep temperatures favorable to them.

Farmers in Charlevoix county should inspect their grain over its entire surface. Best way to inspect is to run the arm elbow deep into the grain to see if all areas are cool and free from mold. Damp, moldy spots attract weevils. Such areas will feel warm to the hand.

If grain is dug away from these areas, they will "stand" vertically without falling. In these spots there will be weevils contamination, dust and grain particles.

Weevils can damage enough grain and produce enough shrinkage to wipe out a season's profits. They multiply rapidly in warm weather.

If you find that weevils have caused damage to your stored grain, agent Rebman advises that you call at the county extension office, located in Boyne City, for advice on how to handle the situation.

Removing trees that are stunted or of low-quality species will improve the appearance of your farm woodlot.

Petter-Coakley Vows Exchanged In Candlelight Church Service

ELLSWORTH—The Ellsworth Pilgrim Holiness church was the scene of a lovely wedding Saturday evening, April 26, when Marilyn Petter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Petter becamo the bride of Robert Coakley of Muskegon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Coakley of Nashville, Tenn.

The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. H. Diller in the church which was simply but beautifully decurated with baskets of spring flowers flanked by a seven branch candelabra intertwined with vines.

Before the entrance of the bridal party, James Smith, soloist, sang, "Because" and "I Love You Truly". Mrs. Henry Smith was the piano accompanist, who also played the traditional wedding music for the candlelight service.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was lovely in an ivory satin wedding gown, fashioned with a high neckline, long sleeves and peplum edged in lace, full skirt ending in a long train. Her shoulder length veil was also edged in lace and held in place with a flared bandeau. She carried a white Bible topped with an orchid and shattered carnations.

Miss Donna Bush of Kalamazoo, a college roommate of the bride, was the maid of honor and she chose a mint green satin formal with a net overskirt. With it she wore a net stole and a cap of satin and net. Her colonial bouquet was of daffodils and white shattered carnations.

Linda Petter, young sister of the bride, was flower girl and wore a yellow taffeta and net formal and carried a basket of white and pink carnations and assorted sweet peas.

Keith Smith of Muskegon, served as best man and Carl Petrie and Ernest Somerville, brothers-in-law of the bride, seated the guests.

Mrs. Petter chose a wine crepe street dress with black accessories for her daughter's wedding. Her corsage was of yellow rosebuds.

The groom's mother wore a tan suit with black accessories and also a yellow rosebud corsage.

The men in the bridal party wore white carnation boutonnieres.

Following the ceremony the reception was held in the Petter home, where the bride and groom cut the three tiered wedding cake topped with a wedding bell arrangement wreathed in orange blossoms. Mrs. Richard Patterson of Royal Oak served the wedding cake to the guests while Mrs. George Koster and Mrs. Grant Hastings presided at the coffee and tea table. Mrs. Fred Denny also assisted at the reception.

Mrs. William Petter, jr., and Mrs. Harold Petter were in charge of the gift table.

For her going away costume, Marilyn chose a navy blue sheer dress, white coat and navy and white accessories and wore the orchid from her bridal bouquet.

After a short trip they are at home in Muskegon, where both are employed.

High School Band To Participate In State Festival At East Lansing

The Charlevoix high school band and its director, C. A. Odmark, will have their sights on a first division rating when they leave here Friday to participate in the State Band and Orchestra Festival in East Lansing Saturday.

The band will be playing in the state festival for the sixth time. In 1950 and '51 they earned first division ratings. They are aiming at a top rating again this year.

The Charlevoix band will play in the College Auditorium at 8:50 a. m. Saturday. They will play the march "Men of Might" by Meritta, the required number for all Class C bands, "Spring Promenade" by Barnes and the number chosen by the band, "Gloriole" by Noble.

Judges for the concert portion of the event will be John Farinacci of Cleveland Heights high school, Ohio, George Waln of Oberlin Conservatory of Music, Ohio, and Keith Stein of Michigan State college. The sight reading judge will be Clifford Lillya of the University of Michigan.

Because of a record number of orginizations eligible for the festival this year, it was split into two sections. The first section including 13 A bands, 20 C bands and five D bands and 17 orchestras participated in a festival April 26. Next Saturday 31 Class C Bands, six Class D junior bands will play at three different locations in East Lansing.

The band will stay at the Porter Hotel Friday night and after appearing at 8:50 a. m. Saturday will leave about noon for Mount Pleasant. There they will attend the Central Michigan Relays in which the Charlevoix track team will participate. They will retrun home Saturday night.

Chaperones on the trip will be Mrs. Ralph McRae, Miss Frances Milner and H. E. Bingham.

The trip is made possible by the Board of Education which furnishes transportation for the 67 piece band and by the Band Parents Association which finances the hotel housing.

Michael and Penny Elzinga of Eastport were Easter vacation visitors of their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Elzinga at Birchwood Ranch. Tommy and Lorabelle Elzinga of Charlevoix also spent a few days on the ranch.

Buttricks Continue To Find India Country Of Contrasts

Allahabad, U.P., India.

One of the greatest sources of dissension between the Moslem and the Hindu is the cow. The Moslem says it means food and clothing, the Hindu worships it as sacred. After three temples, I could take no more and was almost reduced to tears: the filth, the degradation was unbelievable. They are mostly quite small, especially the raised and holiest part. In one a cow was walking about the entranceway and another was standing where no non-Hindu dare put his foot without desecration. Yet one could feel that, even here, a few simple folk came not just to complete a ritual but to worship. Hinduism is a philosophy to the educated and initiate, but to the masses it seems the mores: the auspicious day or hour, how food should be prepared, etc. 88 percent of the people are illiterate. You wonder if Hinduism will survive as education spreads.

You wonder this in particular when you see in contrast a city like Allahabad. Like so many of India's cities, so beautiful in its new part, an inheritance from the British: wide streets lined with great shade trees, government buildings, lovely homes, a city of colleges set in park-like campuses, it could vie with many an American city. By the way, Nehru's home is here.

Allahabad University has about 4,000 students and Holland Hall is a Christian hostel for about 200 students more or less on the English system of smaller colleges making up parts of a larger unit. There is also Ewing College of 1,000 students and the widely-known Allahabad Agricultural Institute.

But to return to the general subject: the effect of education, here are thousands of young people eager to learn and gradually they must change the complexion of the country.

The greatest problem at present is that too many come from the upper classes, and, whether they do or not, it is very hard to persuade them to consider anything except the government services and the professions.

But India has 700,000 villages and is mainly an agricultural country and, until trained men and women can be persuaded to return to the villages and change

Red Cross Fund In County Tops Original Quota

The Charlevoix county Red Cross fund campaign topped its original goal of $3,350, H. W. Patrick of Boyne City, fund campaign chairman, has announced.

However, after the original quota was assigned, the county was asked to raise an additional $260 following the tornadoes in the south and the floods in the midwest. This brought the 1952 quota to $3,610.

To date $3,465 has been raised in the county.

The most recent contribution was $40 raised on Beaver Island, where Archie LaFreniere was chairman.

Charlevoix is $45 short of its goal of $1000, Mrs. Charles Bellinger, local chairman reports. Latest figures showed $955 contributed in the city and the surrounding area.

Contributions throughout the county follow: Boyne City, $1243, Mrs. Hazel Fritz, chairman; East Jordan, $1,000, Ole Olson, chairman; Charlevoix, $955, Mrs. Charles Bellinger, chairman; Walloon Lake, $121, Mrs. Frank Burns, chairman; Boyne Falls, $56, Mrs. Leo Jablinski, chairman; Ironton, $50, Mrs. Ross Alexander, chairman; Beaver Island, $40, Archie LaFreniere, chairman.

Anyone still wishing to contribute, may do so by leaving his donation with his local chairman or the local bank.

Mayor Names Heads of City Departments

Appointments of various city department heads were made by Mayor John Knight at the regular city council meeting Monday evening.

They are: Chief of Police, Clarence Heise; city surveyor, Mary C. Feindt, street commissioner, Leo Allard; Harbor Master, Joseph Howard; City Attorney, Norman Ance; Health Officer, Dr. Isaac Terr; City Assessor, Arthur Bergeon. All were re-appointments.

Charles Marshall will continue as fire chief until July when he will retire. His successor will be named at that time.

It was also decided to retain Gregory A. Shadko as consulting engineer in highway matters.

A major issue decided at the meeting was to advertise for bids for the underpinning of the existing foundation of the 1000 kw Rathbun-Jones Diesel engine generator unit at the municipal light plant.

Bids will also be asked for a one and half ton dump truck to be used at the cemetery.

After considerable discussion, the council voted to contribute $416.00 for improving the restroom facilities in the basement of the American Legion Hall with the understanding that they would be available for use at all recreational events, both school and public, held at Kipke Field.

Henry Ager, contractor, was authorized to remove and replace one shuffleboard in East Park.

The proposed sale of city owned property to the Ferguson Petroleum Transportation Co. and additional property to the Paul-Reed Co. was discussed and shelved for the present.

The council also voted in favor of discontinuing the practice of advancing money to city employees between pay periods. The action was taken on the advice of the city auditing firm.

Charles Bellinger of the Parks and Waterfront committee reported that work would start on the harbor facilities as soon as the contracts were received from the Michigan Waterways Commission. The funds have been requisitioned and the approval of the Army Engineers received, he said.

Tax Allocation Board Meeting To Adopt Rate

Band Again Wins First Division In State Meet

The Charlevoix high school band, directed by C. A. Odmark, won its third consecutive Class C first division rating in state festival competition at East Lansing Saturday.

The Charlevoix band was one of six Class C musical organizations out of 31 entered to receive a top rating.

The first division rating, as defined by the Michigan Band and Orchestra Association, sponsors of the festival, represents the best conceivable performance for the event and the class of participants being judged and worthy of distinction of being recognized as a first place winner.

The local band, composed of 67 pieces, received three first division ratings in concert work and a second division standing in sight reading. The combination, however, gave them a top rating.

This was the sixth time in as many years the band has qualified for state competition.

"Your community can well be proud of such a fine Class C band. Congratulations to Mr. Odmark" was the consensus of the four judges. The band's appearance and deportment also brought favorable comment from the adjudicators.

The only other northern Michigan band to qualify, East Jordan, won a second division rating. Directed by Emile Acitelli, it was the first time the band had qualified since 1950.

Announce Rate For Frequent Ferry Patrons

A reduced rate on the purchase of books of tickets for the Ironton ferry has gone into effect, T. B. Reynolds, Charlevoix county road commision engineer-superintendent, has announced.

Frequent users of the ferry will find they can purchase a book of 20 passenger car tickets for only $2.50 while commercial users may purchase a book of ten tickets for the same price, $2.50.

Books purchased in 1951 and not used before the season ended will be honored this year, Mr. Reynolds added.

The Ironton ferry started operation last April 30 after major alterations were made in the approaches because of the high water level in Lake Charlevoix.

Alfred 'Bud' Gill and Walter Jarvis have returned as operators of the ferry, which runs from 6 a.m. until 12 midnight daily.

Opportunity For Reform

Because it is legally in adjournment until May 14, the legislature couldn't do anything about the Jackson prison case at its special session Thursday. But enough was said to show the way it is likely to go when it can legally take action.

It can be expected that the lawmakers will vote the minimum amount of money necessary to fix up the riot-damaged institution—perhaps up to $1,000,000. But the prisoners who destroyed their own conveniences and facilities will have to wait for all but the essential ones to be restored. And that, as a measure of punishment, is as it should be.

There is further indication that the legislature may push its program of developing minimum security quarters for elderly and orderly prisoners, and thus relieve the overcrowding at Jackson. Such quarters, for inmates who do not need stone and steel around them, can be built for a 10th of what prison cells cost.

Beyond the immediate need, however, there is a further problem with which the legislature should deal. That is the long-standing lack of coordination and cooperation between the parole system and the corrections administration. And within that problem there is the conflict of penal theory, between the rehabilitators and the disciplinarians.

There lies the basic problem, and the legislature's opportunity now to solve it in the best interests of both the free and the imprisoned people of Michigan.

ODDS 'N ENDS

By Fran Martin

A couple weeks ago we listed some streets and asked if you knew where they where . . . either you all knew or you din't want to admit you didn't know because no one mentioned it . . . But in case you did wonder . . . they are in Brookside cemetery . . We never knew until recently that all the little lanes there were named . . . Did you?

A CALL from Mrs. Russell Palmer one day last week brought us the news that she and her husband, Dr. Palmer and their pet kitten of St. James had been at their Petoskey ave. home for two weeks . . . They were returning to the island the day she called . . . She tells us they're returning to the mainland this fall to live here this winter.

WE'RE NOT a baseball fan and we realize we're one of the few people in town in that category . . But we're awful glad to see the Detroit Tigers winning a few games after their bad start . . . Not because we've suddenly become interested in the sport but maybe it will help the dispositions of some of their followers . . It got so you couldn't mention the weather much less baseball. But we noticed they're feeling better now . . .

AND SPEAKING of sports, Charlevoix will be host to the annual conference track and field meet here Saturday . . . All schools in the league will enter and it promises to be quite an event . . . And for those of you who don't like track . . . how's about coming around and taking a look-see . . . you'll like it, we're sure . . . Just remember this about track . . . you've either got to have what it takes or else . . . It isn't like another sport where someone else shares the load . . . It's an individual accomplishment and it takes long cruel hours of practice . . . You go it alone . . . and that in itself takes plenty of fortitude . . . The mile happens to be our favorite event . . . 5280 feet of sheer torture before you're through . . . it's like that in all the events . . . It takes real athletes to make a track team and don't ever let anyone kid you . . So how's about turning out Saturday and giving the boys and their coach, Irish Coleman, your support . . .

A 'WELL DONE' to the high school band and its director, C. A. Odmark, who returned from East Lansing Saturday with another coveted 'first division' rating . . . It was tough going this year with only six Class C bands out of 31 entered bringing home blue ribbons . . . That just verifies what we've been telling you all the time . . . We've got a lot of kids in this town who are good at a lot of things . . . We hope you appreciate them . . .

AND DON'T forget the band festival Thursday . . . There will be scads of good bands for you to near . . . plus the parade which just everyone enjoys and best of all, the massed band concert at 7:30 . . . It is there that you learn to appreciate what the directors do for these youngsters . . . Some 350 youngsters playing under the direction of Roy Miller, whom most of them have never seen before . . . but trained well enough so that they respond to his every movement . . . It's something to see so we're asking you, as a personal favor, to go and hear it . . . And then too, if you want the festival to return here you've got to give it your financial support . . . It isn't often you're asked to do this so come through, won't you? . . It's small payment for all the band does for you . . .

LAST THURSDAY was May Day . . . it was celebrated a lot of different ways around the world but the one we liked best was the way it was observed here . . . Youngsters took baskets or sometimes just bouquets of flowers and left them at one's door . . Some sweet youngster left a tiny bouquet of violets at our door . .

AND SPEAKING of flowers makes us think of spring . . . and signs of the latter . . . dandelions which always look so pretty when they first stick their pretty little yellow heads out . . . All the little ones, the size that haven't learned yet that they will fold up as soon as they're picked, keep bringing them to their mothers and looking very surprised when they're no longer pretty . . . Mrs. Sims Baker brought us a lovely bouquet of arbutus which is the true harbinger of spring . . . It was so lovely and smelled so good it was a shame when it wilted . . . She told us of a place where she goes to pick it that must be beautiful to see . . .

Another sign of spring are the garden things that are up . . . Roy Ranger showed us his bed of peppermint and garlic . . . and also gave us some parsnips which are always so good after a winter in the ground . . .

AND ONE person we've seen around . . . the spring weather finally brought him out after several months . . . he's Art Fagan . . . It takes him a while to get where he's going but he gets there and that's the main thing . . And summer can start anytime now with the arrival of Andy Grillo from the south . . . Seems as though he's another sign of spring who never misses . . .

JUST A reminder . . . Sunday is Mother's Day . . . So don't forget to send a card, or call or something . . . It really doesn't matter what you do as long as you remember . . . If your mom is living elsewhere, how about a letter or a phone call . . , or if she's nearby how about dropping in . . . she'll appreciate it even if you don't bring a gift . . . for it's the thoughtfulness that counts . . . And to those of you who have no one to remember you, may we say "Happy Mother's Day" to all of you . . .

HAVE YOU registered to vote? . . . If not do it next time you're at the city hall . . . It's simple . . you just answer a few questions and sign your name . . . And it's all for free . . .

The Coast Guard linesmen of Charlevoix spent the week here doing repair work on the telephone line. Due to the high water many of the poles had to be moved further inland.

Guests at the Beaver Lodge this week were: James Foote of Atlanta; J. W. Baird of West Branch; Peter VanValin of Roscommon; David Arnold of Lansing; Dr. and Mrs. Nels Sorenson, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas R. Metzger, C. M. Tipton and Fred Gladding of Greenville.

After the rain Monday the water came up several inches more. The new road leading to Vernon LaFreniere's dock was covered. In some places in the village the water was almost up to the main road.

Don't forget the date: May 8 for W.S.C.S. Cafeteria Supper at Methodist church beginning at 5:30 p.m.

When selecting new dishes, bear in mind that all colors do not go well with food. A purple sauce dish will clash violently with stewed tomatoes, for instance, say Michigan State college home economists.

From where I sit ... by Joe Marsh

As a Matter of Fact...

Out of all the newspaper and magazine columns I read, the ones I enjoy most are those that pack in a whole lot of facts — unrelated facts, but each one an interesting bit of information in itself.

These columns go something like this: "Did you know that humpback whales are addicted to snoring? That bees have been bred with red, brown, and buff-color eyes?

"Did you know that lead can be converted to gold — at a cost of $1,000,000 an ounce? That a 555-pound fat girl went on a diet and lost 401 pounds in 12 months? That a chrysanthemum has been developed that smells like a violet?"

From where I sit, maybe I'm a kind of "Johnny-one-note." My own columns always seem to revolve around one idea—a plea for us to make sure we respect the other fellow's rights—like the right to vote for your own choice or the right to enjoy a glass of beer now and then. I may not be in style, but I believe my one fact is worth repeating—and remembering!

Conservaton officers at Boyne City were notified of the find and expressed interest in getting the mouse.

Turning From Wrong Traffic Lane Dangerous

Police Chief Clarence Heise warned motorists today turning from the wrong lane causes more trouble in left turns or right turns than any other violation. "Other drivers are misled when a driver at the right edge of the pavement turns left or when a driver near the center line turns right", he said.

Pointing out that the position of the car at the intersection is taken as a signal Chief Heise said, "It's where you are before you turn that counts the most. Be sure to put your car in a position where other drivers expect you to turn left, before you turn left— and put your car in a position where other drivers expect you to turn right, before you turn right."

According to the State Safety Commission "accident-free drivers" use a distinct maneuver in pulling to the center line or the righthand edge as a signal indicating which way they are going to turn. By doing this they attract the attention of other drivers who may not have seen their hand signal.

Going into the third week of the safety campaign to make safer turns, sponsored by the Charlevoix Police Depaartment and the State Safety Commission the chief renewed his request that all motorists cooperate with the safety authorities.

It makes each drop of gas say uncle

ACCORDING to combustion experts, there's as much energy locked in a drop of gasoline as there is in a drop of nitroglycerine.

But the problem is to put that energy to work.

So Buick engineers aren't content just to mix that drop with air and touch it off. They've designed an engine that brings it catapulting into a cylinder head where it strikes a turbo-top piston—gets whipped into a churning, swirling ball of tight-packed energy.

Then it's fired. And when that happens, a drop of gasoline certainly lets loose power.

This isn't something that happens in a "car of the future."

It happens in a Buick Fireball 8 Engine today. It's a high-compression engine. It's a valve-in-head engine. But it's also a Fireball in performance as well as name.

And it puts extra power under the hood —and extra miles in the fuel back in the gas tank.

Now, power is great, but what goes with it?

Mister, that's something you ought to find out—and soon.

What goes with it is an automobile as sweet-handling, eager and willing as anything that ever made your pulse leap to a faster beat.

It's a car that seems to know what you want it to do—true and sure in its course on a straightaway—beautifully balanced on curves.

It's a car with Dynaflow Drive* to feed power with infinite smoothness—and a road-hugging levelness of ride that took a million in cold cash to perfect.

And it is, with all this, a very tidy bargain. Why not price it, drive it, know it for yourself? We'll be glad to arrange a demonstration.

200 Farmers Witness Equipment And Oat Tillage Demonstration

The oat tillage demonstration held Tuesday afternoon, April 29 at the Faculak farm was a great success according to Ed Rebman, county agricultural agent. More than 200 farm folks attended this demonstration, which showed different methods of fitting ground before being planted to oats and grass seed. Bob Maddox, Agricultural engineer, D. L. Clanahan, farm crops specialist and Ed Longnecker, soils specialist, all from Michigan State college, were at the demonstration to assist in the project.

The field was divided into eleven plots and a different method of tillage was used on each of the plots. Plot number 1 was fitted with a moldboard plow and disked and spiked three times. Plot number 2 was worked four times with a chisel plow then disked and spiked once. The plow was again used on plot number 3 and the disk and spike harrow used three times.

The disk harrow was used four times on plot number 4 and the field was leveled by going over it once with the spike harrow. Plot number 5 was fitted in a single operation with a moldboard plow and a clod buster hooked behind the plow. The disk plow was used on plot number 6 followed by the disk harrow twice and leveled once with the spike harrow. Plot number 7 was fitted with a TNT plow and the disk and spike harrow used twice.

The field cultivator was the primary tool used on plot number 8 and it was used three times followed by the disk and spike harrow to level the field. Plot number 9 was another one of those fitted in a single operation. This was a plow with a rotary hoe fastened behind the plow. The disk tiller was used on plot number 10 with the disk harrow and the clod buster doing the fitting. The last plot was fitted in a single operation with a weeder fastened behind the moldboard plow.

The oats and fertilizer for all the plots were sowed with the same grain drill. About 350 pounds of 3-12-12 fertilizer was used per acre and the oats were seeded at the rate of two bushel per acre. The grass seeding on plot number 1 was sowed with a Brillon seeder while the grass seeding on all of the other plots was sowed with a regular grain drill along with the oats and fertilizer.

The success of the demonstration depended largely on the cooperation of the machinery dealers. Ellsworth Farm Store, International dealer, furnished a tractor and a plow. Burnett Brothers from Bay Shore, Oliver dealer, furnished a tractor. Howard Stephens, Case dealer, furnished a tratcor and a plow. Harry Zeitler, For dealer, also furnished a tractor and plow.

Bob Fochtman, Allis Chalmers dealer, furnished two tractors, a moldboard plow and a disk tiller. Connie Klooster, John Deere dealer, furnished two tractors, a plow, a disk harrow and a field cultivator. Leo Woodhams, Ferguson dealer, furnished a tractor and a disk plow, also a disk harrow. Harold Sellers, Alanson, furnished a Brillon grass seeder and the clod buster. Montgomery Ward farm store also furnished a tractor. The grain drill and some of the other equipment were furnished by the Faculaks.

This demonstration will be followed throughout the summer. It is expected that meetings will be held prior to harvest at which time a tool will be used to measure the compactness of the soil and the various methods of fitting the plots.

Livability reports on more than 2,000,000 Michigan chicks from nearly 7,000 customers showed that 98.1 percent of them were alive when they were two weeks old. This phenomenal record was made by chicks from hatcheries cooperating in the National Poultry Improvement Plan, according to H. C. Zindel, MSC poultry specialist.

Early Maturing Corn Hybrids Increase Yield

Many Michigan farmers could improve the quality and yield of corn by growing earlier maturing hybrid, believes Ed Rebman, county agricultural agent.

Possibility of an early fall frost is probably the greatest single hazard to corn production in Michigan. Rebman believes that planting early maturing hybrids is the best way to avoid this hazard.

E. C. Rossman, of the Michigan State College farm crops department, told the county agricultural agent that corn trials in the state show that some of the early hybrids yield as much or more corn per acre than the late hybrids.

Earlier harvest in the fall is possible when weather conditions are favorable with early-maturing hybrids. This early harvest reduces corn losses from broken stalks and dropped ears in the field. Early hybrids usually have lower moisture content at harvest and permit safer storage, more clean, sound, high-quality corn will be taken out of the crib. This mature, dry corn makes better feed for livestock.

Agent Rebman points out that fall plowing of corn stubble may be possible with early hybrids too.

Report Funds For 4-H Club Center

Michigan 4-H'ers are well on their way foward doing more than their prescribed share in establishing a National 4-H club center in Washington, D. C.

To date $6,240.45 has been sent to the national office. That sum is made up of contributions from individual 4-H club members and extension staff members throughout the state. The goal is $6,000 from 4-H club members—with only $221.45 missing and more than five counties yet to be heard from. Staff members contributed $462.

A. G. Kettunen, state 4-H club leader, is sure members will go well over the top. Already 50 Michigan Counties have contributed 100% and 23 counties went over their quota. Only five failed to make their goal.

The national goal for funds to build the 4-H home near the nation's capitol is $225,000, figured on a basis of ten cents from every 4-H club member and a dollar from Extension staff members, Kettunen said.

Don't forget the date: May 8 for W.S.C.S. Cafeteria Supper at Methodist church beginning at 5:30 p.m.

Predict Good Year For Potato Growers

"Chances for another good year for Michigan potato growers are good," M. E. Cravens, jr., Michigan State college agricultural economist, says.

On March 1, growers of the state reported that they intended to plant 10 percent fewer acres than in 1951. Even with yields equal to the highest on record the intended acreages would not be enough to cause a ruinously low price.

"With yields equal to or less than those of last year there is the probability of prices equal to or better than those for the 1951 crop." Cravens warned that this does not mean that all Michigan potato growers will make money in 1952.

Among limiting factors is low production. He said that farmers who got an average of 180 bushels or less per acre did not make much money on potatoes in 1951, and they aren't likely to do so in 1952.

"With costs even higher than in 1951, some growers may try to cut costs by using less fertilizer, by using seed of questionable quaility, or by spraying less." Cravens said. He warned that such cost-cutting procedures will prove unwise if they seriously affect yields.

He summarized by saying that "for the grower who can expect to get yields well above the state average, 1952 looks like a good year to expand potato acreage."

Find India Is Land of Contrast

from the bottom up, much of the problems looks insoluable. That is why we are so interested in what Vellore is doing and hoping it could be even further enlarged to include agriculture experts, teachers, etc., and why the fine experiments at the Agricultural Institute appeal.

I am not sure we do not have to find people who will go right into the villages and live simple among the people there and demonstrate the Christian way.

By the way, I spoke of teachers: they get the barest of subsistence salaries. For instance a primary teacher may get 42 rupees (about $8 a month): a sweeper in the city health department in contrast may be getting 60 rupees, yet the teacher has a position to maintain. What would you say if I told you that the Vice Chancellor of Allahabad University gets 200 rupees a month ($400) and the head of the department of economics receivas 1200 rupees and an associate professor or lecturer 300-800 rupees ($160) and food seems to me none too cheap with a flourishing black market.

You can see why I keep asking myself why one country has so much and the most of the rest of the world so little. It would take only two shots of penicillin per person to rid the island of Bali, for instance, of the dread disease of "yaws". See how far the money spent on one battleship or one atom bomb would go! But enough of moralizing.

I guess there is room for a couple of extra comments: today we visited the Wanamaker schools and in the gym we saw the most attractive teacher dressed in a lovely embroidered white sari, leading the class of small boys and girls in exercises. At the moment we entered she was lying on her back with her feet high in the air . . . and in a sari. Yesterday I saw three girl students from the University riding down to the town on bicycles saris flying in the wind. It is as though we did all these things in beautifully styled evening dresses.

Yesterday (I am continuing this enroute) to Lahorn, Pakistan we were up at 4 a.m. again, shivering after the heat of the tropics and drove 75 miles back to Benares for the plane to Dehli and this morning at 5:30 for onother plane to Lahore.

Imagine living in places where the daily temperature change is 30 degrees: pretty sudden fram the 80, 90 and 100 degrees night and day of the past two and half months.

Wa were only in Delhi for the afternoon and spent that getting our papers in order for Pakistan but we got a litlla impression of the place. It was laid out by the British (i. e. New Delhi) in 1920 and the capital and buildings are magnificent. The governor's palace, now that of India's president, is something to behold set at the end of spacious parkway.

Speaking of that plane, I wish I could draw a word picture of our companions. In the morning chill we gathered at the city terminal, and stood amidst mounds of bedding, tin trucks; bags of cooking utensils and our western suitcases. We were the only ones with white skins.

There were two business travelers, the rest were Muslems leaving India for a new home in Pakistan. There was a hearded, grey-haired Muslem in a white tight-fitting three quarter coot, a fur turban and a blanket round his shoulders (in India, by the way, when it is cold everyone wraps up to the neck ond head in a shawl or scarf, especially the men) and his wife completely hidden in a dirty white burqa like a tea-pot under a tea-cozy. I had o moment's glonce at whot was underneath later on and she was wearing white trousers, a three-quarter embroidered tunic, and on top of it a short blue quilted jacket and many silver anklets, nose studs and elaborate earrings (the family wealth).

The burqa is the way the Muslem woman is hidden from the sight of any man except her husband or brother or father. Purdah, as it is called, is gradually dying among the upper-educated classes, is not practiced in the poor villages but is firmly entrenched among the rest.

To go back to our companions: there was the Muslim, youngish in western clothes, but apparently with two wives in dead black burqas. To see out there was an inch strip of black open work across tha ayes. On the plane one of them lifted har burqa but her husband cama and mada har pull it down.

One family had five children. The mother was laden with jewels: earrings about six inches long, lazy gold with pearls, gold pins in her hair and bracelets on her ankles. A walking jewelry shop.

We shall tell you more about Delhi after we spend more time there later in the month, and we shall describe Lahore in our next letter . . . NO COWS.

Water Levels Hit New High For April

Lanising—Northern lower peninsula ground water levels hit a new record high for the month of April and are second now only to the all time any month high set in June, 1943.

Latest test well measurements averaged 1.35 feet higher than for the month of March and .18 of a font above the previous record April stage established in April, 1943. Only a .32 of a foot further rise in May will result in tying the June, 1943 all time high mark of 4.51 feet.

It there is normal precipitation, conservation department geologists say a further rise is probable in May because of the receptive state of the soil and the light requirements for plant growth in this period.

School Projects Bids Awarded; Expect To Start Work Soon

Bids have been awarded and construction is expected to start soon on the new additions to the Charlevoix public schools, Supt. Roy G. Bennett said this week.

The bids were opened Thursday evening by the Charlevoix Board of Education but all bids were not awarded until further consultation with the contractors.

The general contract bid of $162,672 was awarded the MacDonald Construction Co. Inc. of Marquette and the Soo. The upper peninsula firm is now completing its contract as builders of Petoskey's Lincoln school.

The C. E. Davis Electric of Traverse City will do the electrical wiring for the new building. Their bid was for $15,174.

The mechanical contract for heating, ventilating and plumbing was awarded to Walters and Hemming of Traverse City, whose bid was for $35,175.

Three bids for the general contract, four for the electrical work and two for the mechanical work were submitted.

The contracts call for the construction of a four room addition to tha existing elementary building and the building of a new unit for the manual arts and music departments. The buildings will be of concrete, steel and brick construction.

The cost of the new units are being financed by a $225,000 bond issue adopted by the Charlevoix school district in October.

The contracts do not include the cost of a new heating plant and building to house it which eventually will have to be added. The existing heating plant will be used for the present.

Aboard the plane were the pilot, Harry Marcinek, 25, of Dorr and his passenger, Roy Koperski, 45 of Grand Rapids who had flown to Beaver Island Saturday on a fishing trip. The plane left the island about 2 p.m. Sunday and failed to arrive at Wayland. Visibility at the time was poor because of rain and fog.

The air-land-sea search started late Monday when the pilot's wife reported to Rockford State Police that her husband's plane had failed to return to its home field at Wayland.

Planes from the Traverse City Airbase, the 83-foot Coast Guard cutter stationed here and life boats from Charlevoix, Beaver Island and South Manitou joined the search early Tuesday and returned at daybreak Wednesday morning to patroling this area of Lake Michigan.

After a brief stay here the ship will leave Aug. 2 for Grand Haven where the crew will attend rifle range, returning here Aug. 9.

Kiwanis Hears Of Management Labor Relations

Ted Malpass of the East Jordan Iron Works was the guest speaker at the weekly Kiwanis meeting Monday evening.

He also spoke on free enterprise from an employer's point of view and discussed the materials made at the plant.

Decision Put To Reds, Who Want No Decision

The time of decision appears to be at hand in Korea. And the decision is for the Communists to make: For peace or war, or endless stalmate.

The United Nations' decision already has been made. It was told in the ultimatum, that whatever other concessions might be made to the Reds, prisoners held by the UN would not be forced to return into Communist hands against their will.

"We will not buy an armistice by turning over human beings for slaughter or slavery," is the way President Truman expressed it. He was backing up UN officials who said they had made their "final" offer to the Reds.

The Communists rejected the offer, but still wanted to keep on talking in the fruitless truce negotiations that have been going on for 10 months. They obviously don't want to face up to the fact that of the 170,000 prisoners held by the UN, only 70,000 want to return to the Communists.

Rather than let their own people know that 100,000 of their compatriots prefer prison to Communism the Red leaders evidently would be willing to talk endlessly about an illusory armistice.

They have nothing to lose by endless talking. Their supply lines are short, compared with American's tran-Pacific distance. They have their forces built up in Korea. While, as General VanFleet said, we can outfight them or outsit them, it is more costly for us than for them.

Yet the UN has attained some of its limited objectives in Korea. It has stopped aggression against South Korea. Russia has been shown that it cannot get away with murder without facing world resistance.

But after nearly two years of war, there is no more UN talk of freeing and unifying all of Korea. And there is no popular support for launching a major offensive which could lead to a greatly enlarged war. At the same time, there is growing feeling that it is time something definitive should come out of the Korean "police action." By present signs, that feeling is not soon to be satisfied, short of disastrous military action or equally disatrous UN withdrawl. — Battle Creek Enquirer and News

By Fran Martin

Friday night after school we happened on a group of youngsters enroute home from school . . . Each with a gift he had made for his mother for Mother's Day . . . All were different and all were made by the youngsters . . Of course, finger marks were much in evidence on some while others were neat as could be . . . But we're sure the lucky mothers saw only the love and thoughtfulness of their respective youngsters . . . and counted themselves fortunate to be receiving such priceless gifts.

THIS SHOULD take top honors for the nicest gesture of the week, we think . . . As you know, the band festival was held here last Thursday, and among the bands attending was Boyne City . . . Before going to the school to participate, the band, dressed in their snappy navy and red uniforms, accompanied by their director, Robert Lee, went to the hospital to play for their beloved school nurse, Carrie Geiken, who had no doubt done something for every youngster there . . . They displayed their affection and regard for her by playing their best . . . and, knowing Miss Geiken, she couldn't have received a nicer gift . . . for, despite the fact that she's no longer with them every day, they are still 'her' boys and girls . . .

AND WHILE we're talking about the band, let's hand out a compliment to Mr. Odmark and all those at the school who were instrumental in making the band festival this year the best ever . . The parade was wonderful . . . no matter how big or small the band it had the spirit and the pride and that's what counts . . . And such a crowd out to see it . . The massed band concert was beyond words . . . how Mr. Miller, their guest conductor, could take approximately 400 young musicians and make them sound so well will always remain a mystery to us . . . It surely speaks well for their directors . . . and for Mr. Miller who gives so much of himself to the youngsters . . . and they love him so . . . All in all, it was a grand event . . . And did you ever see so many kids have so much fun, eat so much and talk so hard . . . It was a joy to see them . . . And every single one was a credit to his respective school . . . We hope they'll come back again . . . It was a privilege to have had them here.

AND SPEAKING of youngsters, the track meet Saturday was equally as inspiring . . . If track does nothing else it teaches kids a lot . . . mostly how to get along with the other guy . . . There were youngsters from seven schools, probably 200 in all, hobnobbing like mad with each other but when the contest came, each was out to win . . . but in a friendly manner . . . Maybe they didn't all go home with ribbons but each was a winner in his own right for having participated . .

THE LATEST issue of "Carefree Days" published by the West Michigan Tourist and Resort Association was in the mail last week . . Our county had a nice spread and some grand pictures.

EACH YEAR at least one deer makes its way into town . . . The first one to be reported this year came in from the south recently, cutting across backyards and over the south hill near Bill Wallaces home . . . Frightened by all the excitement it caused, it finally left town via Antrim street . . . It is thought it was chased by dogs . . .

THERE'S nothing, we think, that sets off flowers like a picket fence . . . And that's exactly the background Mrs. Robert McClure and her daughters have for their bed of tulips, Jonquils and scads of grape hyacinths . . . They're lovely . . .

DID YOU EVER stop to think what it might be like to be born something other than an American . . . We all take our citizenship pretty much for granted and rarely stop to think how lucky we are . . . But once in a while we see someone who wants to adopt our country as his own . . . That's what will happen Monday when four people become American citizens in a naturalization ceremony at the courthouse here . . . An invitation has been extended to the schools to send students to witness the impressive ceremony . . . We can't think of anything that will make them more conscious of their birthright than this . . . We hope a lot of them get to attend the ceremony . . . It should make them realize how lucky they are to be born here . . .

In the current issue of McCall's magazine will be found a picture and story of one of our summer residents . . . Under the title, "How Eight women set their tables" is a formal setting arranged by Mrs. Thomas J. Reis of Cincinnati . . . Mrs. Reis is the former Elaine Goldsmith and has been coming here since childhood . . . Mrs. Grace Genett brought the item to our attention . . .

Fashions For Year 2052

On somebody else it looks good. Meaning the fashions for the year 2052 that were previewed in Charlevoix last week by Marg Duerr, Phyl McClure, and Esther Hawley in a conversational skit they gave at the regular meeting of the Congregational Fellowship.

The space-ship togs were smart, in a sort of 'out of this world' way. Marg wore a two piece black wool suit with tight fitted britches which were met at mid-calf by pink spats . . . I suppose it gets chilly out there in space. Some way, somehow, a pink snood kept in place a black antennaed hat, and the pink was further carried out in a kind of vestee.

Phyl's short sleeved bolero suit was a yummy shade of aqua. Her hat, shoes and spats were metallic . . . and out of one pants pocket casually hung a big hanky, or shawl, or something.

But the house dress Esther wore was . . . well, it just was. (Esther doesn't have to worry, but some gals come bow-legged and knock-kneed.) Hers was a short short skirted blue creation with a wide gold girdle. The accessories were tremendous gold earrings that must have tickled her bare shoulders, gold clogs and a pink cape. Her thought wave antenna resembled a gold coiled bed spring.

And now I am confused about those antenna gimmicks . . . what if they blow a fuse and you accuse your husband of not giving you a thought all day!

Jack and Phyllis Roberts Hold Reunion In Yokohama, Japan

Pfc. Jack Roberts, who left for overseas duty early in April and his sister, Phyllis Roberts, who has been in Japan as a civilian office worker with the government service, had a reunion in Japan recently. It was the first time Miss Roberts had seen any member of her family since leaving here in February, 1949.

In a letter to their mother, Mrs. Bertha Roberts, Miss Roberts tells of the eventful meeting.

I don't know if you've heard from Jack yet. He is probably busy getting settled in his new post. He arrived in Yokohama on Tuesday, April 15 but didn't get around to calling me until Friday.

We had a very poor telephone connection and couldn't hear well and I didn't know who he was. He had the Red Cross call me in the afternoon and we finally got a clear line. He didn't know if he could get a pass or not so I went out to Camp Drake the next day. It is about 2½ hours by train and bus from Yokohama.

He met me at the Headquarters Building. He hasn't changed much. Is seemed funny to see him in uniform though.

We went to the PX and got film to take pictures. We had lunch at the service club snack bar, walked around the camp and after the orders were out at 2 p.m. Jack got a pass and we left for Yokohama.

We went to dinner and then I showed him where I lived. By that time it was time to get him to the train, as he had to be back to camp by 11 p.m.

He got a pass again the next day and came to Yokohama again. We went to dinner, had our picture taken and then went window shopping.

Jack had guard duty the next day and I thought he'd been shipped out. He called the office the following day and I went out to camp again. He was to ship out the next morning (Tuesday) at 6:30 a.m. and had turned in all his uniforms except his fatigues.

When he left here he was scheduled to land at Inchon and will be stationed near Soeul at present. His new address: 1169th Co. B 14 BN APO % PM San Francisco, Calif.

Yesterday was May Day and they had quite a time over here. Most of us were restricted to quarters as a protective measure. I went over to the PX and on the way home decided that I'd better ride a bus to the gate instead of walking home.

There were some parades on the streets with flags with placards with "foreign faces get out of Japan" on them. They were quite peaceful compared to Tokyo, though I noticed we had armed US guards in addition to our Japanese guards at all our billeting area entrances.

Kiwanis' Search Continues For White Elephants

The Open Door
New Family Safeguard

by Wallaca Werble

NEXT time you go to your corner druggist and ask him to refill that old prescription, chances are you'll get the surprise of your life.

"Sorry," your friend the druggist will have to say, "but I can't refill this prescription anymore unless I get specific instructions to do so from your doctor."

"And why not?" you may explode. "What is this—a racket you druggists and doctors have conked up to collect more fees and charge more for medicines? Here you've been refilling this same prescription for my family for five years and now you say you can't do it any more. Why, I've even been giving some of this medicine to my next-door neighbor. The whole thing is outrageous!"

Stormy conversations like this between pharmacists and patients are now being repeated every day in the more than 50,000 drugstores that span the nation. You may argue until you are blue in the face, but it will get you nowhere. The druggist will still refuse. And you can't blame him. A new federal law requires him to do so.

This new law, which became effective a few weeks ago, is designed to guard you and your family against the dangers, not only of indiscrimminate refilling of prescriptions, but of using potent drugs, including the new "wonder" drugs, without adequate medical supervision. The statute is an amendment to federal drug regulations and is known as the Durham-Humphrey Act after its sponsors—two Democratic members of Congress who are also druggists. It does not affect medicinal narcotics, which have been strictly controlled since the Harrison Narcotic Act of 1913.

The new ban, which it places on unauthorized refilling of restricted drugs undoubtedly will cause many cases of inconvenience. A lot of people, including doctors, will be angry at first. But in the long run the change should prevent unnecessary death and serious illnesses, according to the U. S. Food and Drug Administration, which strongly supported the law. Officials of this Administration report that the misuse of prescriptions, including indiscriminate refilling, cause "more deaths, injuries, broken homes, human derelicts, and other tragedies" than all other violations of federal drug laws put together.

The FDA has a file of cases where death or serious illness resulted from the misuse of refilled prescriptions. While the largest number of these involved sleeping pills, the records show that a significant number resulted from misuse of other valuable drugs, including some of the amazing new "miracle" preparations.

In general, the need for the new law is a result of the tremendous advances made by American medical and pharmaceutical science. During the last 15 years there has come a steady stream of new and improved "wonder drugs" —sulfas, antibiotics, vitamins, antihistamines, the new hormones such as cortisone and ACTH, and, within the last few weeks, a new drug for tuberculosis. However, the availability of so many new and potent medicines in finished form, ready for use, brought unexpected perils. While these drugs, when taken under the supervision of a doctor, can contribute greatly to saving lives and to the elimination of pain and suffering, they can be as dangerous as poisons in the hands of a layman who doesn't know how to use them.

If you are inclined to feel abused, remember that the new law in no way interferes with your right to buy the many everyday drugs which are safe for self-medication and which you may want in your medicine cabinet—such as aspirin and other pain relievers, laxatives, mouth washes, dietary vitamin supplements, liniments, and salves. The new law places no restrictions on these. All you have to do is go down to the drugstore and ask for them.

Barbara Bodley Returns From Warm Springs, Ga.

Barbara Bodley, 13-year old polio victim who has been at Warm Springs Foundation, Ga., since January, was expected home Wednesday, Mrs. Walter Davis of East Jordan, Charlevoix county chairman for the National Foundation of Infantile Paralysis said early this week.

Barbara's mother, Mrs. Willard S. Bodley, flew to Warm Springs Saturday to receive special instructions for Barbara's care and to return home via plane with her Wednesday.

Barbara has made exceptional progress since going to Warm Springs. She plans to spend the summer here and possibly return to Warm Springs in the fall if her condition warrants it.

Barbara was stricken in August 1950 and was hospitalized at Ann Arbor and Traverse City for 11 months. She returned home last July and attended school here until January when she left for the south.

The plane on which she was returning was to land at Pellston airport at 2:55 p.m. Wednesday.

Legion Poppy Day Planned Here May 24

The women's auxiliary to the American Legion asks all residents to remember that Saturday, May 24, will be Poppy Day.

Residents are asked to wear a memorial poppy in honor of the war dead from the Argonne to Korea. The poppies are made by disabled veterans to help the disabled veterans and the aid of war widows and orphans.

The bright red memorial poppy is the veterans' way to honor the dead and care for the families of veterans.

Don't forget to wear a poppy.

Young Musicians Well Received In Mass Concert

Under the baton of Roy Miller of Wayne University, Detroit, guest conductor, 394 young musicians presented a well received concert as the climax of the annual Northern Michigan band festival here last week.

Playing a variety of numbers including the difficult Syncopated Clock, the group did themselves proud. The young musicians from ten bands from schools ranging from Class A through D responded well to the direction of Mr. Miller which spoke well for the training they had received from their respective directors.

Max Smith of Petoskey, former director of the Charlevoix band, did an able job of master of ceremonies, commenting on each number and adding interesting bits of information about the participating bands. During the evening he presented the directors of the bands present. Band members, their directors, Mr. Miller and the audience voted the festival as the "best ever."

During the afternoon each band had played before Mr. Miller for criticism and later had marched in the Festival Parade which was witnessed by several hundred people.

The 57 members of the 1952 class will leave here early next Wednesday for the long-anticipated trip to Niagara Falls. Since the class started in high school, all fund-raising projects have been accomplished with this trip in mind.

Accompanied by Supt. and Mrs. R. G. Bennett and Mr. and Mrs. Delbert R. Terrill, the group will go by school bus to Detroit where they will board the S. S. South American. The ship will leave at 3:30 p.m. Wednesday and arrive at Port Colburne, N. Y., early Thursday.

The group will be transported by chartered bus to the Falls and other points of interest during the day and will return to the ship for the home-bound trip at 4:30 p.m.

The ship will dock in Detroit early Friday and the travelers will return here Friday evening.

Labored Breathing May Be Early Sign Of Anthrax Attack

One reason why anthrax is so hard to control is that the tiny rod-like agent that causes the disease has a plastic-like protective coating which enables it to live for long periods of time.

Ed Rebman, county agricultural agent made the statement after conferring with Dr. Glen Reed, Michigan State College, Extension Veterinarian, about the disease that has broken out in several parts of Michigan and has been [illegible] throughout the state [illegible].

In the dried form these anthrax spores have to be boiled at [illegible] degrees for 10 minutes to kill them. Once they gain entrance into the body of an animal they multiply rapidly by simply splitting in two parts over and over. In a short time the blood stream is completely contaminated.

The spores make dams in the capillaries and their by-products destroy surrounding body tissue, making holes in the circulatory system. These holes cause internal bleeding and clots. They destroy the blood directly and ruin it.

The animal then has trouble getting its breath, and may pant, puff and show other signs of labored breathing. When the animals realize that something is wrong they may "act a little crazy". The more acute form of the disease usually results in death before symptoms can be recognized.

County agent Rebman warns farmers to contact their local veterinarian in case they suspect the disease. One Michigan farmer recently lost several animals because he didn't check when a cow died from anthrax.

Farm people now make up one-seventh of the total population of the United States. If the present trend away from the farm continues at its present rate, the percentage will be reduced to only one-tenth by the year 1975.

Extension Project Gets Inspection

Jean Dohm on the right telling Emma Reinbold, home demonstration agent about the chair and davenport that she slip covered.

Charlevoix County has 14 well organized and hard working home extension clubs. The work is carried on by leaders meetings under the direction of the District Home Demonstration Agent, Emma Fero Reinbold and these untiring leaders take the work back to their local groups.

However, these extension homemakers demand more than the regular lessons such as "Oven and Broiler Meals", "Hooked Rugs", "Citizenship" and "Dressmaking", they like special interest lessons and it is this type of work we will talk about today.

One of the county groups is called Marion Center Club. Its name also gives you its location. Marion Center has some women who have been with these extension classes for 20 years and it is a group of women the Home Agent is indeed proud of — for their loyalty, cooperation and the good work they accomplish.

Recently Emma Reinbold met with the Marion Center group to give a lesson in the making of slip covers. The women who attended the class and worked on the covers are as follows: Mrs. Sophie Weaver, Mrs. Jennie Martinchek, Mrs. Jean Dohm, Mrs. [illegible] Williams, Mrs. Mary [illegible], Mrs. Florence McGann, and Mrs. Ana Potter.

To show the kindness and willingness to help one another, these women are [illegible] planning [illegible] Mrs. Ann Potter, who has been ill, and slip cover a chair for her.

Jean Dohm is a comparatively new member to the Marion Center Group. They have lived in this community three years. However, she had no fear of starting a big job when she ordered material to slip cover both a chair and a davenport. As she tells Home Agent Emma Fero Reinbold that the total cost of the slip covers were $24.84 you can see that she is indeed proud of her finished products.

On the davenport she has used an old-fashioned print of green, red and white and on the chair a gray sailcloth material with coral piping. These pieces look very well with gulf-green walls, cream ceiling and one wall of natural wood with a large brick fireplace.

Mr. Dohm is employed at Edward's Market in Charlevoix and their family consists of a boy, Bill six years and Barbara, four years. Mrs. Dohm is a member of the Auxiliary VFW in Charlevoix and of the Methodist church.

Calf Needs Good Start In Life

Newborn calves like any babies need extra special care, say Michigan State College dairymen. They offer farmers some tips based on observation of the MSC dairy herd.

Colostrum milk is real medicine for newborn calves. Dr. C. F. Huffman, dairy researcher at MSC, says this first milk contains many health factors that help to guard the calf. It shouldn't be wasted.

The nipple pail has done much to reduce calf digestive troubles by forcing the calf to drink slowly. The milk in small sips goes down into the true stomach where it can be digested.

Don't overfeed the calf on milk, the dairymen suggest. Give it ten percent of its body weight or less daily. Too much milk upsets the calf's stomach.

It is not necessary to inoculate the calf with rumen bacteria if the calf lives in the general dairy barn where it will pick up the healthy bacteria easily. If the calf is raised apart from the herd it should be provided with hay that cows have nuzzled over. Such hay is annointed with good bacteria that may have come up from the cow's rumen.

Hay which has been nuzzled by cows is good for calf medication if needed but not for the real nutrition. Green, leafy hay should be placed before the calf from its first week of life.

Water should be available to a calf on a "self serve" basis from as early in life as two weeks.

Now Is Time To Kill Dandelions

The time is here to kill those dandelions and other broad-leafed plants in your lawn advises Ed Rebman, county agricultural agent.

If you kill them before they bloom and spread seed, your troubles in another year will be lessened, Rebman asserts. He recommends spraying with 2,4-D, which is available at drug stores, hardware stores, filling stations and garden supply stores.

For use around homes he recommends the amine form of 2,4-D since it is slightly less potent but certainly more easy to control than the ester form. Mix at a rate of one ounce of actual 2,4-D to one gallon of water for use on 1,000 square feet of lawn, or an area about 10 feet square. If the 2,4-D you buy is labeled "50 percent 2,4-D" that means you will need to double the amounts. The container will give instructions and Rebman suggests you use the maximum amount recommended.

And if you have had trouble with moles in your yard, why not [illegible] them at the same time. Chlordane will kill the grubs and it's the grubs that the moles come to the surface to catch. Use of chlordane also helps in the control of crab grass, Rebman has found. Mixing four ounces of pure chlordane with the solution of 2,4-D and water for each 1,000 square feet will do the job. One application of chlordane may kill the grubs for several years since it remains in the soil.

The five awards made in the county include three to Charlevoix seniors. They are: Rebecca Badger, daughter of Mrs. Dorothea Badger who plans to enroll in the School of Music; C. Thomas Bleha, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bleha, College of Literature, Science and Arts and Charles Krahnke, son of Mrs. Florine Krahnke and H. O. Krahnke, College of Engineering.

The other county awards were made to Mary H. Poquette, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clive Poquette of Boyne City, who intends to enroll in the School of Nursing.

This is the first year the Regents-Alumni Honor Awards have been made. They are in the form of certificates designed to recognize outstanding high school seniors throughout the state who have been accepted for admission to the University of Michigan. The certificates carry no money awards.

Regents-Alumni Scholarships, which carry a stipend equivalent to semester fees for the freshman year and are renewable for three additional years if the student's performace at the University warrants a continuation of the privilege, have been granted to 473 of the Honor Award winners. In selecting the scholarship winners, the Committee on University Scholarships considered particularly the present financial need of each candidate as presented in the application form.

The University has notified each scholarship winner individually by mail and is not identifying the scholarship winners among the Honor Award recipients.

The Regents-Alumni Scholarships have been awarded since 1945.

As in the past, the retreats will be held at the Leland Lodge, Leland, Michigan, June 13-15 and June 15-17. Father Edwin Fochtman will be director and Father Hegener O.F.M. retreat master.

Armed Forces Day Is May 17

Saturday, May 17, has been proclaimed Armed Forces Day.

The proclamation, signed by President Harry S. Truman, reads in part: Because the Armed Forces of the United States serve this nation with unselfish devotion not only in time of war, but also in time of peace; and because our fighting forces, welded into a unified team that symbolizes our strength as a united people . . . .it is fitting that we devote one day each year to paying special tribute to these defenders of our liberty.

Unity, strength and freedom is the theme of Armed Forces Day. Secretary Lovett said, in announcing the third annual observance of the day, that it will afford a timely opportunity to demonstrate the close-working relationship of the Armed Forces, give the public a broad view of the nation's defense strength, and emphasize the democratic ideal to which our efforts are dedicated.

Blood is part of our nation's defense strength.

Because of its prime importance, Mrs. Roy G. Bennett blood chairman of the Charlevoix county chapter of the American Red Cross, is taking this opportunity to announce the dates of the blood procurement program in the county. The mobile unit of the State Health Department will be in Charlevoix county June 24-25.

Receive News Of Battleship They Visited

A recent letter from Capt. Iris Dodd with the Army Nurses Corps in Korea to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Elzinga, brought a clipping regarding the battleship, Iowa, which appeared in Pacific Stars and Stripes.

The clipping was of particular interest to the couple as they visited the ship while it was being fitted out for duty after being stored with the 'mothball fleet' following World War II.

The clipping said in part: "The Battleship USS Iowa and destroyer USS Mackenzie moved in (to the Kojo area) to continue the attack in daylight. The targets were gun emplacements and bunkers several miles inland. Earlier the ships had dropped shells on important rail bridges south of Wonsan."

Mr and Mrs. Elzinga toured the ship with the latter's brother, Leslie W. Beattie, Lieut. (j.g.) Ret., who now lives in Long Beach, Calif. after 36 years in the Navy. With them on the tour late in December was Mr. Beattie's son-in-law, Don Supernaw and family, and the Elzingas son-in-law and daughters, Mr. and Mrs. Lucian Gadal and Mignonette Dodd all of whom reside in California.

The Elzingas were spending a month in California at the time as the guests of their daughter, Capt. Dodd.

Each troop will have two members present at all meetings.

Each representative will return to her respective troop with the completed plans. It is by this method that the program planning for camp will be completed.

pieces, is a merger of the seventh and eighth grade instrumental groups which have been playing together only a few weeks. It is from this group that replacements will be selected for the Senior band next year.

The 90-voice Junior high school chorus, which will also be making its initial appearance, will be heard singing two Negro Spirituals, Swing Low, Sweet Chariot and Go Down, Moses and America the Beautiful, Ward. This group consists of seventh and eighth grade students and is the result of study in the music classes of the two grades.

The two high school choral groups are scheduled next on the program. The Girls Glee Club of over 30 girls will present a group of numbers appropriate to the season including the English air, May Day Carol, arranged by Deems Taylor; Brahms, The Gardener, with Nancy Ikens and Bette Gill, playing a horn obligato and Rio Rita, McCarthy.

The Madrigal group, or mixed chorus, will present Hi, Ho, Sing Gaily, Luvaas; O, Eyes of my beloved, DiLasso and Lassie O'Mine, Walt. This group contains selected voices and for this reason, are able to present a more exacting program. Mrs. Leonard Burns will accompany the two senior vocal groups.

Concluding the program will be the Charlevoix high school Senior band which will play a group of numbers featuring the Senior members of the organization.

The program will feature favorite numbers of the group including Emblem of Unity, concert March, Richards; Hymn to Freedom, Brahms-Tolmage; Gloriole, overture, Noble; Them Basses, march, Fillmore; Will you remember, from Maytime, Romberg; Star Dust, popular, Carmichael; My Hero, from the Chocolate Soldier, Romberg-Alford.

Four Are Made New Citizens At Ceremony

"This country is much more than a vast strip of land lying between two oceans; it represents man's ideals of freedom. For centuries and generations it has been the thoughts, desires and prayers of the peoples of every land on the face of the earth that they have those rigbts. those God-given rights, to think, talk and travel freely, and worship whom they please, without interference.

"But ours was the first government on the face of the earth to set up a way of life, a democracy, based on the ideals of freedom: freedom of enterprise, freedom of worship, freedom to work where you please".

Thus spoke Judge Charles L. Brown as he addressed three new citizens of this country who received their naturalization papers at a special ceremony at the court house here Monday. A fourth person, Agnes Thomas of Boyne Falls, was repatriated in the samo ceremony.

The three Charlevoix county residents who became citizens following examinations by Cecil Kiser of the Naturalization Department were William Grauel of East Jordan, Lillie Holman of Boyne City and Joseph Tomascewski of Boyne Falls, who then

Charlevoix Shipyards Hum With Activity

Pleasure craft stored in boatyards along the south shore of Round Lake will soon shed their winter wraps. Pictured above is a familiar sight in one of Charlevoix's four boatyards, the Hamilton boatyard, where workmen are busy fitting out boats for the summer season.

Like moths about to unfold from their cocoons, boats in the shipyards here are shedding their winter canvasses and old paint to emerge as trim vessels soon to be seen on Round Lake's blue, blue water.

A visit to the boatyards at this time of year would give you a picture of boats in every stage of being fitted out prior to launching for the summer season . . . boats with the first coat of metallic paint on the keels which looks like real copper in the sunlight, spars and booms being sanded and varnished, boats resting in their cradles or on the way waiting to be launched, schooners and yawls without their spars, electric sanders in action, the carpenter's hammer making last minute repairs, the tedious job of caulking, the painting of hulls and the varnishing of decks. These are only a few of the operations in evidence.

In addition there are the mechanical repairs and overhauling of engines, for Charlevoix's boatyards these days are busy places as boats of every size and description are being prepared for summer.

Boats in Charlevoix comprise quite a business but like many businesses little is seen of it for it is concentrated in a small

State DeMolay Officers Aid Installation

The William E. Dunstan chapter of the Order of DeMolay received its charter at a special meeting held in Petoskey Saturday and attended by state officers.

During the ceremonies 29 boys from Petoskey, Pellston, Harbor Springs and Charlevoix were initiated into the fraternity. The ten Charlevoix boys were installed as officers or members of the degree team.

Spring Concert Of Music Groups Well Performed

Twenty Seniors were among the members of the Charlevoix high school band which presented its final concert of the 1951-52 season at the high school auditorium Friday evening under the direction of C. A. Odmark.

The concert marked the only appearance of the band since it won a first division rating in state festival competition in East Lansing recently.

The versatility of the band was shown in the variety of selections and the ease with which the numbers were played.

The Senior band performance, however, was only a part of the spring concert. Another instrumental group, the Junior band, the three vocal groups also appeared on the program. They were the Girls Glee Club, the Madrigal choir and the Junior high school choir.

All performed well in a variety of selections. The Junior high choir of 90 mixed voices offered the greatest surprise of the evening with their rendition of three numbers. This group and the junior band showed what can be done with the younger students.

The entire concert was well received by a large audience of parents and friends.

Mr. Odmark received an ovation for his fine work.

The Rayders tallied 27 points to place third in the meet hehind Reed City who had 54 and Leelanau School for Boys with 29 points. Coach Coleman had 30 players entered in the meet.

It is necessary to win at least a third place to qualify for state competition.

Charles Krahnke broke his previous record and tossed the shot put 46 feet 5½ inches, to place first in the event.

Stan Whitley took a first in the mile with a time of 4 min. 53 sec. with team-mate Don Smith coming in second in the event.

Ivan Whitley placed second in the half mile; Gerry Left, captain of the thinclads, won a third in the low hurdles and Jack Denemy had a third in the high hurdles.

Meet Monday To Make Plans For City Softball

An organizational meeting at which plans for the city softball program will be made will be held at the city hall at 7:30 p.m. Monday, Dean Davenport has announced.

At that time all potential sponsors, managers or their representatives are requested to attend, if they wish to be included in the groups to be organized at that time.

Present plans call for three men's leagues and one girls' league. The top men's league will be a fast ball outfit and will be known as Class A. This will include the better players and will be limited to six teams. Anyone wishing to sponsor such a team is asked to call Mr. Davenport or Del Terrill.

Class B will include all other players more than 14 years of age who wish to play softball. There will be no age limit above 14 years and the senior men's league of last season will be eligible for this class.

The youngsters from 10 to 14 years will play in the Junior or Class C league. If enough interest is shown among those under nine years a fourth league will be organized.

There has been some interest in a girls' league and even though no age limits have been set, efforts will be made to start a league if players are available.

Bob Carey Sets Shotput Record In Dual Meet

Big Bob Carey concluded his collegiate athletic career on the home field Saturday by setting a new field and varsity shotput record as Michigan State won over Syracuse in a dual track meet at East Lansing.

He won the shot with a throw of 53 feet 11¾ inches, bettering his old varsity mark of 53 feet 3 inches set last year.

He also placed second in the discus and javelin at Saturday's meet which was witnessed by his brother, Tom and Allen Campbell of Charlevoix.

Concluding his athletic career this spring, Bob will be State's first nine-letter man since the freshman rule was put into effect limiting varsity sports competition to the three top years.

In Friday's issue of the Lansing State Journal was a resume of Bob's spectacular athletic career.

Naming him as the greatest athlete in Spartan history', it reads in part: For three straight years, the 6-5 215 pound Carey has made the quick and difficult switches from the gridiron to the basketball court in the late fall and then to the track team in early spring. He has been a star in all three activities.

In football he was a great pass-catcher and an extra point and field goal kicker. He was headed

Announce Tentative Plans For Hiring Recreation Director

Tentative plans for the employment of a recreational co-ordinator for a summer recreational program in Charlevoix were announced at the regular meeting of the city council Monday evening.

The city and the school are now working on an agreement whereby Coach Del Terrill will be employed to organize and supervise a varied program for the younger age groups as well as the softball already started.

A delegation of north side residents along the route of the new highway attended the council meeting and asked several questions regarding the right of way and the assessments for the new curb and gutter and sidewalks. They were told that there would be no assessments for the new curb and gutter which would be installed along the new road, which will extend from the intersection of Michigan and Dixon avenues to the four corners just inside the city limits. Sidewalks would also be replaced where they are removed but no new sidewalks will be built.

Other questions regarding the right of way were referred to the state engineer who was to meet with the group at a later date.

Charles Bellinger of the Parks and Waterfront Committee reported that he had been assured by Robert Robb of the Michigan Waterways Commission that the contracts for the waterfront improvements would be forthcoming so the work could be started by the two contract holders, Sears Dock and Dredging Co. of Traverse City and the Lake Construction Co. of Charlevoix.

The council also voted to purchase 150 feet of 2½ inch fire hose.

The meeting was adjourned after approving the payroll.

S. E. Coleman Tells Kiwanis About Track

S. E. Coleman, Charlevoix high school track coach, was the speaker at the regular meeting of the Kiwanis club Monday evening.

He spoke on a subject dear to his heart, Track, and listed it as a sport in which everyone depends on the individual performer.

He went on to say it teaches boys endurance, tenacity and will to accomplish something on his own. If he has what it takes, so to speak, he will be a success on the track. Many boys who have failed to make other high school teams or who are only mediocre players become outstanding athletes in track and field events.

In addition, it prepares boys for participation in other sports by developing coordination, speed and quick-thinking.

Coach Coleman's track team recently won their fifteenth annual Northern Michigan Class C conference title and placed third in Class C competition in the regional meet at Cadillac. Six members of the team qualified for state competition and will attend the state meet at Ann Arbor Saturday.

Michigan Mirror

by Gene Alleman

MacArthur has come and gone, leaving a ripple of approval. The legislature has convened, causing a wave of dissent. It still can't get along with our governor.

The General in his famous style of delivery spoke softly and struck sharply at Communism and Socialism in Michigan.

In Detroit he blasted the "inroads made by collectivism" and said we need a "high level of statesmanship dedicated to the common purpose of advancing a liberal and unexploited labor movement and industrial economy sufficiently free from government controls to maintain a reasonable profit potential."

"We must resist," he said, "the spendthrift policies of government which may bring us to the brink of economic chaos and are forcing upon us an irresponsible economy apparently to avoid the political impact of a return to the long range protection of frugality and reason."

"They (labor) must establish strong bulwarks against the pressures upon the free labor movement by Communism, whose initial objective upon ascendancy to political power has ever been the worker's enslavement," the powerful speaker said.

The general's words are no longer news. But this thought is worthy of consideration . . . the general, despite his untimely suspension, has not been wrong yet.

LAKE MICHIGAN and her sister great lakes are slaughtering our beaches.

The rising waters of the lakes have caused millions of dollars in damage and pushed real estate values along the shore line down to nothing.

In 1946 the waters on the western shore of Lake Michigan gouged out a few expensive basements . . . but those were the expensive basements. The water receded and the entire state sat back and waited for the 20-year cycle to set in, but it didn't

In 1952, new records were set for the total destruction. Entire tourist areas are being wiped out and the beachline along the west coast virtually has vanished.

The situation has reached the point where it has caught the ear of our August congress which is doing little.

The St. Lawrence Seaway got (or has so far) short shrift, although it hasn't been shelved yet. Assistance to the owners of beach property has been dignified by offering them loans through the RFC.

But mostly Congress is waiting for the cycle to turn the pounding waves back to the low water levels they have maintained the last few years.

And don't think the waters haven't turned Frankenstein on the state. Blue lake Michigan, which for so many years has pulled tourists from all over the nation, has turned on the resorters who have been exploiting it.

Poetic justice, perhaps, but the tourist business in Michigan still ranks with the automobile industry and farming and Michigan can't afford to loss the revenue it brings in.

With the water level at a new high Lake Michigan and Lake Superior are hammering at the doorsteps of cottages and pulling mile upon mile of beach back into the waters.

Sailors on the lake complain that even their largest navigational checkpoints are vanishing under the bubbling onslaught.

Will the waters recede next year? They must. They can go no farther without inundating the entire peninsula. At least the entire state hopes so.

DONALD C. LEONARD, former state police commissioner has decided to take a whack at the gubernatorial chair.

While speculation ran rife as to what his political aspirations were, the political observers in the state were whacked back on their heels with the degree to which he aspired.

Few if any expected the successful police official to put his sights on such a difficult target.

He enters the field against such seasoned campaigners as Fred M. Alger, jr., secretary of state; Bill Vandenberg, lieutenant-governer now, and Eugene Keyes, Doctor-Dentist-lawyer who plays in politics because "he has a fever."

Present hopes seem to center around the fact that he will take a passel of votes away from Detroit, where Williams and Alger will be joisting for all but the Hamtramck ballot . . . which is already Williams!

Lucile May Weds D. M. Schweppe In Candlelight Service In Denver

At a candlelight ceremony solemnized at Brotherhood House in Denver, Colo., May 10, Lucile May became the bride of Dwayne M. Schweppe.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. May of this city and the bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Henry Schweppe of Pra-Du-Sac, Wis.

Preceding the service Delores Koehler sang "Because" and "The Lord's Prayer" accompaned by Virginia Shinnamon.

The resident pastor at Brotherhood House officiated at the ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride selected a gown of white lace over blue satin and matching lace hat trimmed with rhinestones. She carried a White Bible topped with white roses and stephanotis. She also had a white lace handkerchief carried by the bridegroom's mother at her wedding.

Velma May as maid of honor and Marian Orcutt of Detroit as bridesmaid wore pastel nylon gowns and carried colonial bouquets of yellow carnations and sweetpeas.

C. R. Smith assisted the bridegroom as best man and Thomas Mills and Henry Neuschwanger were ushers.

Mrs. May selected a light green dress and black accessories for her daughter's wedding. Mrs. Schweppe wore a light blue dress and black accessories. Both had corsages of white carnations.

A reception followed the ceremony. The refreshment table was covered with a linen cloth, a gift to the bride's mother at her wedding.

For traveling on their wedding trip to Colorado the bride chose a rose suit, black accessories and a corsage of white roses.

Among those from away who attended the wedding were the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. May of this city; Mrs. Henry Schweppe of Pra-Du-Sac, Wis.; Marian Orcutt and Jacqueline Burnett of Detroit and other guests from Boulder, Fort Collins, Bennett and Eckley, Colo.

The hospital medical staff had previously approved the plans.

Local Shipyards Hum With Activity

eree along the south shore of Round Lake. Unless you have a special reason for visiting the yards, you hardly know what is under the canvasses and sheds, and if you should visit them, you wouldn't recognize the boats as the same ones which ply the water of the northern Michigan's many lakes.

There are four sizable boatyards along the south shore of Round Lake. The largest and oldest is the Hamilton boat yard established in 1901 and now operated by Ray Hamilton and his son, Bob. It started as a boat livery but soon grew to a boat yard under the guidance of its first owner, the late Sam Hamilton, who lost his life in a boat accident on Lake Michigan in 1931.

Until 1930 the railway which hauls the boats into the yard could handle only craft up to 35 feet. That year the construction of the present railway was started and is still in operation. It handles anything up to 100 feet in length and 80 tons in weight.

The Hamilton yards have facilities for the larger ships and have there at the present time six boats of various types over 50 feet in length.

It's an interesting sight to see the boats pulled along the greased ways to launching ramps. When the ships are removed in the fall some are left in the yards under canvas and others, which require work through the winter, are placed in sheds.

In all, the yard stores approximately 40 boats in sizes from 30 feet to the larger cruisers schooners and yawls.

The Hamiltons employ several men in the yards including Lloyd Himebauch who has been with them for 14 years, his son, Archie, who is starting his eighth season in the yards, and Al Ulrich, the mechanic, who is the fifth member of the regular crew. During the busy season, which is in the spring several others are employed on a part-time basis.

In addition several boat-owners have skippers and other employees who work on the boats while stored in the various yards.

The other boatyards are the Brow Marine Service, the Miller Boat Company and the Bellinger Marine Service. Each offers a little different type service and cares for various types of boats so all a boat owner has to do is name his service and Charlevoix's boatyards can provide it.

In the Brow yards, Capt. Alfred Brow keeps the majority of his boats under cover. Many are stored in the large steel-framed boathouse which has its own sprinkler system. He stores from 48 to 50 boats of various sizes in the large boathouse and nearby sheds. The largest is a 62-foot schooner. Approximately 40 of the number range in size from 17 to 50 feet and are in the power boat class. He also has from eight to ten smaller boats.

He employs one other man full-time and during the spring has five or six on his payroll.

No one will deny that the Brow yards are the most attractive. A lawn runs to the water's edge and evergreen trees outline the property.

The Miller Boat Co. is operated on a smaller scale by Harold Miller. He has 12 to 15 boats in the runabout and cruiser class in his own boathouses and others he rents. In addition he lays up and fits out approximately 35 to 40 other boats each spring and fall. During the summer he employs four men in the yards and in the 'off' season the men are employed in his wood-turning shop, also on the waterfront.

The 'baby' of the boat businesses here is the Bellinger Marine Service operated by James Bellinger since 1950 on the former Booth Fisheries property. A feature of his business is the newly-installed boat hoist which can launch boats up to 50 feet to or from trucks or trailers.

He stores approximately 15 cruisers, the largest of which are 42 feet, ten sailboats and some 35 other smaller boats from runabouts, launches to rowboats and canoes. He employs up to three men on a seasonal basis.

In addition to the boats stored in the four yards, there are approximately 70 boats of various sizes and types in privately-owned boathouses on Round Lake including those at the Belvedere and Chicago Clubs. Boat owners at Ironton and other resorts along Lake Charlevoix also store their boats here.

In fact, Charlevoix's boatyards offer facilities not available anyplace along Lake Michigan north of Holland. It is for this reason that boatowners around the north bring their boats here when it is necessary to remove them from the water.

All sorts of other marine services are available at the local yards other than those mentioned above. Whether it is parts, paint, accessories, fuel or repairs you want, they are to be had here. The yards also cater to transient yachtsmen throughout the summer providing fuel as well as docking space if they wish something not offered at the city docks.

All boatyard operators are of one opinion: that the boat business constitutes big business in Charlevoix and that there is much to be done to make it even bigger.

The fact that more than 500 pleasure craft visited Charlevoix last season proves their point.

Charlevoix's land-locked harbor provides not only the best but the most beautiful refuge along the lake. The facilities now offered are good but they could be improved and if the city is to continue to attract the yachtsmen, there is yet much work to be done.

Mrs. Martinchek Prides Cabinets Built By Son In 4-H Club Project

Mrs. Emma Reinbold is shown here listening to Mrs. Martinchek tell about the cupboards that were made by her son Joe in 4-H club work.

Perhaps it is because Mrs. Martinchek is so interested in the Extension and 4-H work that she passes along this enthusiasm to her son, Joe, who is 16 years of age. Mrs. Martinchek has reason to be proud of these cupboards and sink unit that were built by her son in 4-H work. Joe built the bottoms and the sink unit of the cupboards as his fifth year project and the tops for his 6th year project. Around the sink he has put inlaid linoleum and has done a good job with staining the natural wood. He used his new lumber and his father says that the total cost of the cupboards, including the cost of the sink, was $60.00.

This year Joe was the only seventh year 4-H club member in the Handicraft project in Charlevoix County. He built a desk for this year's work. The homemakers will be interested in knowing that this up-to-date unit replaces an old sink and a little stand with a drain board that used to be in the same corner of the Martinchek kitchen.

Joe is interested in farming and is a farming partner with his dad. He owns some cattle and pigs of his own and works with his dad on a share basis.

Mrs. Martinchek is also a member of the Marion Center Home Economics group. In a slip covering school she used red plastic and covered a day bed and chair. The total cost was $9.58 for the red plastic and this also included the cost of rebuilding the day bed, tying the springs and replacing the cotton padding. A circular pillow was also made by Mrs. Martinchek at a cost of $1.00.

Good care of your cows in the dry period will often increase their milk production when they freshen, say Michigan State College dairy specialists.

By keeping your farm shop clean and storing tools and equipment carefully, you can be more efficient and can help cut accidents.

Weather Hazards Reduced With New Harvesting Methods

Newer hay-harvesting methods which reduce weather hazards are becoming more common on Michigan farms, resulting in higher quality hays, according to Karl A. Vary, Michigan State College agricultural economist, who has studied the situation.

The weather problem in field-curing hay to 25 percent or less is obvious. To field-cure hay to a moisture content of 25 percent requires about 15 to 20 hours of sunshine. That means about one and a half to two days of clear weather.

According to U. S. Weather Bureau Records at East Lansing, the probable number of days without rainfall during the first two weeks in June is about two to three days in a row. You can count on about one to two clear days in a row during the second two weeks in June, and three four days in a row during the first week in July. These figures were compiled by Vary from records from 1918 to 1951.

With a hay crusher the number of hours of sunshine required to field-cure hay is cut to eight to ten. A barn drier will cut hours of sunshine required to six to eight. And farmers who make grass silage need only one to three hours of sunshine to cure their hay.

The dry matter loss for the hay loader method is 24 percent, for the hay crusher it is 21 percent, for the barn drier 16 percent, and for grass silage, 15 percent. These dry matter loss figures are from time of cutting until time of feeding.

Grass offers a year-around supply of forage or feed for meat animals say Michigan State College extension specialists. It can be grazed directly, made into hay, or made into silage. Grass is a major link between the soil and man's food.

Plan Grass Day Program June 23 In Emmet County

Michigan State College extension specialists are busy getting ready for the fifth round of Grass Days in six counties of the lower peninsula. These field days are designed to promote more and better grassland farming in Michigan by demonstrating the kind of good practices that help get the most from the use of grass on the farm.

Dick Bell, farm crops specialist at the college, chairman of the Grass Day committee, says grassland farming doesn't mean turning the entire farm over to grass and legumes but rather getting the right balance into the regular rotation.

Bell says grass and legumes hold the key to increased meat and milk production in the United States. He backs up that statement with four big reasons; First, as pasture, grass and legumes provide the main raw materials for beef, dairy, mutton and wool. Second, grasslands hold the possibility of converting much unimproved land into highly productive crops. Third, many acres of cropland will produce more total digestible nutrients per acre when planted to grass than when corn and other feed grains are grown. It also gives greater returns for an hour of labor. And the last reason is that grasslands are needed in rotations to maintain top production of other crops in the rotation.

Ed Rebman, county agricultural agent, advises Charlevoix County farmers to attend the grass day program. The date and place is Monday, June 23, Emmet county, Kenneth Bare farm, southwest of Petoskey. Bring the entire family and enjoy the program.

Great Lake Levels Continue Climb

All Great Lakes levels climbed in April over March readings and Lakes Erie and Ontario reached new April highs.

According to a U. S. Lake Survey report received by the conservation department, Lake Erie is .36 of a foot above the previous April record stage set in 1862, Ontario .37 of a foot above the April record set in 1886.

Farmers Comprehensive Liability Policy

A calf belonging to Farmer Toughluck made its way through a section of a broken fence, strayed on the highway, collided with a Cadillac, and caused extensive damage to the fender and death, to the calf. Mr. Cityslicker, who couldn't avoid the accident, driver of the car, threatened actions against Toughluck, who phones us and wants to know if policy will cover him.

Answer — Of course it will — Under the Defense Provision it agrees to defend any suit against the Insured, even if it is groundless, false, or fraudulent. Then under the Liability Coverage it agrees to pay for the Insured, sums for which he becomes legally obligated to pay as results of Bodily Injury or Property Damage Claims. Under the animal collision section, it pays for loss (actual value not exceeding $200. for each animal) by death of any cattle, horse, hog, sheep, or goat owned by an Insured caused by collision between such animal and a motor vehicle, within a public highway. Not being transported.

Emergency Hay and Pasture Crops

They may be the answer to your problems. Now is the time to decide. Sudan grass or some of the millets will do the trick.

BUT REMEMBER — bumper crops begin with GOOD SEED plus proper FERTILIZER. You can use Farm Bureau Brand seed and have complete confidence in their quality and purity.

Another Tip — It's becoming accepted practice to plant sweet clover and/or rye grass at your last corn cultivation to prevent winter wind erosion and add humus to your soil.

By Mary Carlson Phone 1012-W1

I'm sorry I don't have much news this week. That "last minute" rush took too much time.

There was a little excitement in the neighborhood this week. Chivarees aren't too common nowadays, but many of the neighbors turned out to chivaree Mr. and Mrs. Albert Carlson last Tuesday evening. After the noise had faded away, most of them went to the Rock Elm Grange Hall, where they square danced. Heard one person say that she hadn't had so much fun since her own chivaree.

Mrs. Eva McDermott gave a stork shower Wednesday, May 7, for Mrs. Jeanne Williams.

Mr. and Mrs. Mark Saunders were expecting their daughter, Mrs. Thelma Sibinic, home Tuesday for an indefinite stay.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Erber of Petoskey and Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Ogden visited Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Thompson of Crystal Falls, Mich. one day last week.

Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Kemp were Mrs. Alfred Johnstone, and Klon and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Johnstone of Ellsworth.

Good luck to Mrs. Clyde Ogden, who entered Charlevoix Hospital Monday for an operation.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Potter of Barnard were Monday evening dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Jake Brock.

Bob Thomas and Mary Carlson left Monday morning (had breakfast at 4:30) for the Mammoth Caves in Kentucky with the graduating class of East Jordan.

Mr. and Mrs. Datus Dean have received the good news that their son, Stanley Dean, has been promoted to sergeant in the army.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Peterson, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Bennett, Connie and Shirley, and Mr. and Mrs. Breakley, all of East Jordan, helped Mrs. Lewis Brown celebrate her birthday last Saturday. Many happy returns of the day, Mrs. Brown.

Doris Nielsen attended a tea for the senior girls of Charlevoix last Sunday given at the home of Virginia Smith.

Carol Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Foster Johnson of East Jordan, spent the week-end with her grandfather, Will Johnson.

Clothing Expert Advises On Care Of Nylon Fabric

Your nylon pretties are no shrinking violets, so don't be afraid to treat them with a firm hand, says Carolyn B. Middleton of Michigan State College textiles and clothing department.

To begin with, nylon is such a strong fiber that unless nylon thread is used in making repairs the material will cut through cotton thread. So have no fears about tossing nylon garments into the washing machine or automatic washer . . . it is the best way to keep white nylon clean. Miss Middleton cautions, however, not to combine white nylon and colored items in the same washer load . . . nylon tends to pick up dyes from other fabrics.

Another tip offered by the MSC specialist is that yellowed nylon garments can be bleached successfully in a weak solution of any household bleach.

Sewing with nylon may require some adjustment. Sharp fine needles penetrate nylon easier and make smoother seams. The fewer stitches per inch, the better . . . as few as seven stitches per inch may be used, particularly for inside seams. Lower the tension on your machine until a well-formed, but loose stitch is made, Miss Middleton advised.

Nylon thread is best for sewing on nylon . . . or the new dacron thread on the market in white now is satisfactory. Using tissue or ordinary shelf paper under sheer fabrics while sewing often gives smoother seams.

Best way to sew with nylon is to experiment with your machine, Miss Middleton urged. Finishing and pressing nylon garments should be the same as with ordinary cotton; that is, be sure to press each seam after sewing and finish all the raw edges.

A gallon of hot water and a cup each of baking soda, ammonia and vinegar will make a good wall-washing solution. Go over a few feet of wall with the solution and then wipe dry with clear water.

From where I sit ... by Joe Marsh.

Attention Ladies!

Cakes lined up—each with a number. Judges looking, breaking off pieces, tasting. The winner? Number 4—a cake with a wonderful, glossy chocolate frosting.

This was at the Women's Club last night. Then Duke Thomas stepped up—his cake was Number 4! Seems his missus was laid up, so Duke took over—and won!

Here's Duke's prize-winning frosting recipe:

Melt 3 squares unsweetened chocolate in double boiler. Remove from heat, add 1½ cups sifted confectioner's sugar and 2½ tbs. hot water and blend. Add 3 egg yolks, one at a time, beating well after each. Add 4 tbs. butter, beating thoroughly after each tbs. Fills and frosts 8-inch, 2-layer cake.

From where I sit, we all have different abilities and tastes... and these differences are sometimes surprising. Duke bakes prize-winning cakes. My wife, for example, can beat most any man at checkers. Same when it comes to beverages—you may like coffee or tea while I prefer a refreshing glass of beer. But let's not have any "half-baked" ideas that people are all the same—or should be.

Junior-Senior Banquet Held At Beaver Lodge

St. James — The Junior-Senior banquet was held Thursday, May 15. The banquet was held at the Beaver Lodge. Little Darkies served the Southern Style dinner. Following this was the Prom that was held at the Parish hall. The hall was decorated in colonial style in the Senior's class colors, pink and green. A silhouette of a colonial man and woman decorated alternate windows. A pink and green crepe paper trellis was between each window.

In the front of the hall was a colonial porch with a wishing well. On the stage was a shrine of the Blessed Mother. There were steps leading to this. Over it was the Senior's class motto, "At the Foothills Climbing". Across the entire hall balloons were strung. A chandelier of them hung in the center. At the entrance was a large trellised archway.

Fans can secure, without charge the planting records for a reasonable number of counties. Department emphasizes anglers should be sure to specify county or counties desired.

Many fishermen are unaware of lesser streams and other waters which are stocked. Each record shows species, number, size, and location of the planting.

Maxbauer Offers New Packaged Milk In Area

Packaged milk in one of the most modern sanitary containers was placed on sale in local stores Saturday by the Maxbauer Creamery. The new Pure-Pak container will replace the cone-shaped paper cartons heretofore in use by the creamery for the wholesale trade.

Installation of the new Pure-Pak equipment provides the Charlevoix area with the only completely automatic milk packaging machine in this section of the state. A marvel of modern engineering, the machine brings to Charlevoix the very latest development in the sanitary distribution of milk.

The new container is made of strong fiberboard and yet is so light is weighs approximately 1-10 the ordinary glass bottle. Square in design, the container occupies only half the storage space of the round bottles.

John Maxbauer, owner of the creamery, calls attention to the fact that Pure-Pak parkaging of milk is approved by Good Housekeeping. "We are proud indeed to offer our quality milk to the people of Charlevoix in this nationally recognized container," he said. "The advantages of our new Pure-Pak milk container is just another example of our desire to better serve our many patrons."

Buddy Poppies Will Be Sold For Three Days

Buddy Poppies will be sold here three days this week beginning today by the Auxiliary of the V.F.W. Post 1153, Mrs. Clarence Coblentz, local V.F.W. poppy chairman, has announced.

Mrs. Coblentz went on to say that most of the contributions from the sale of poppies remains in the community to help finance the relief and welfare work which the local post has undertaken in behalf of the local veterans and their families.

As part of the Buddy Poppy sale, the V.F.W. Auxiliary sponsored a Buddy Poppy poster contest in the sixth, seventh and eighth grades at St. Mary's school.

Posters entered by James Haggard and Michael Gibbons, both eighth grade students, won the two top prizes and are on display in the Charlevoix Abstract and Engineering Co. window along with the Flander's Field display made by Clarence Goldstick and Paul Kullander of the local V.F.W. post.

Other posters entered in the contest are on display in other store windows.

Four Are Made New U.S. Citizens

asked that his name be changed to Thomas.

Judge Brown went on to say as citizens of this country they were gaining much and because of their foreign birth were contributing in arts and traditions much to this country.

Judge Floyd A. Supp, representing the Leslie T. Shapton post of the American Legion and the Veterans of Foreign Wars Post No. 1153, presented the new citizens with American flags and spoke briefly. Among other things he said "I was born here; most of these people present were born here and the United States had no choice but to accept them. You people are the adopted sons and daughters of the United States, and are accepted into the Union because you are wanted; which is often the answer a parents gives to an adopted child: we want you, or you wouldn't have been one of us."

As he presented each with a flag he continued "This is my flag: now it is yours: and I think there isn't anything in this world that is more beautiful than the Stars and Sripes standing out in the wind against God's blue sky. If there ever was an emblem of freedom, this is it; and it was purchased in blood, and by blood it is being maintained."

The ceremony closed with the Pledge of Allegiance recited by the new citizens and others present.

The Rev. Joe Bekkering gave the opening prayer and Rev. L. L. Lewis the benediction.

Mr. Kiser and Judge Brown answered questions presented by the students to conclude the ceremony.

Will Call Five County Men For June Inducton

Due to a revision in the June draft call, five men will be called for induction into the armed services June 10 instead of the two men originally scheduled.

The men to be inducted at that time are Douglas W. Byers and Kenneth M. Russell of Charlevoix who were named earlier, Phil G. Martin also of Charlevoix, Robert H. Pearsall and Robert H. Thayer of Boyne City.

The five men will report at the city hall here at 9:55 a. m. Tuesday, June 10, for transportation to the Detroit Induction Center.

The induction of Marshall O. Handy of Boyne City which was previously scheduled, has been postponed for 30 days.

The call for five Charlevoix county registrants for pre-induction physical examinations June 2 was cancelled Monday by Lt. Col. Charles Pearson, of the State Selective Service office.

The five men will be called for examination later, the order said.

Reason given for the change in orders which had already been issued was to reduce expenditures from now until the end of the fiscal year, June 30.

The men who will be called at a later date include Donald F. Hardy of Charlevoix; Donald L. Giem of Boyne Falls; Harold J. Kerr, Gordon M. Grubaugh, Robert L. Bean and Melvin C. Howard of Boyne City.

The Charlevoix county draft call for the month of July has been set at 10 men, the highest this year, the local draft board has been notified.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Lorn Thompson, he was returning from the field when the team he was driving bolted, throwing him beneath the manure spreader. He was killed instantly.

Funeral services were held at Nazerene church in Pickford on Saturday.

Attending the funeral were Mr. and Mrs. Seymour and Mr. and Mrs. John Cross and family of this city.

County Clerk's Office Assumes Two New Duties

The office of the county clerk has assumed two new duties with the adoption of House Bill 294 by the state legislature, Fenton R. Bulow, Charlevoix county clerk, has announced.

All reports of births and deaths in this county's 15 townships will now be recorded with the county clerk here instead of with the township officers as was done in the past.

For example, if a death occurs in one of the townships, the funeral director who is called, must bring the death certificate signed by the attending physician to the office of the county clerk in order to receive a burial permit.

Mr. Bulow states the new action is following the trend of eliminating township officers and setting up a centralized system.

Licenses for non-commercial boats in the 16 to 65 foot class will now be available at the county clerk's office. The office here will furnish licenses for both Charlevoix and Antrim counties. Prior to this time the licenses were purchased through the Lansing office of the Secretary of State.

Workmen Start First Stage Of School Project

Preliminary work on the new school project here was started this week as the MacDonald Construction Co. workmen built storage houses and erected fences prior to the ground-breaking for the new buildings.

Heavy equipment is expected later this week. It is being moved from the Lincoln School project in Petoskey, which the company is now completing.

The project here will include the construction of a new unit to house the music and manual arts departments and a four-room addition to the existing elementary school.

Ironton Ferry Service Halted By Broken Shaft

A broken propellor shaft on the Ironton ferry late Tuesday afternoon halted ferry service across the south arm of Lake Charlevoix, T. B. Reynolds, Charlevoix county Road Commission engineer-superintendent, said.

A county road truck was dispatched to Two Rivers, Wis., to pick up a new shaft and was to return here Wednesday.

The ferry will be hauled from the water Thursday, Mr. Reynolds said, and the new shaft installed. The broken shaft is in the stern end of the ferry. However, while it is out of the water a second new shaft will be installed.

Constant use over a period of more than 25 years wore the shaft to a point where it broke, Mr. Reynolds said.

It is hoped the ferry will be back in operation late this weekend.

Capt. John Roen Wins Detroit Tugboat Race

For the first time in the history of the three-year old tugboat race at Detroit, an American tug has won the event which is staged annually for the "work horse of the Great Lakes."

The winner was the tug, John Roen V, whose owner is a former Charlevoix resident, Capt. John Roen of Sturgeon Bay, Wis.

Aboard the winning tug as it crossed the finish line at the Veterans Memorial Building were more than 75 guests including Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bridge, Dr. and Mrs. G. B. Saltonstall, Mrs. Ingina Pontious and children, Anna and Happy of Charlevoix, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Potts, jr. of Petoskey and Helena Isaksen of Ann Arbor. Mrs. Pontious, Mrs. Potts and Miss Isaksen are nieces of Capt. Roen.

The tug took an early lead as the race started at Fort Wayne. It covered the 3½ mile course in 13 minutes.

The Canadian tug, Atomic, which had won in 1950 and '51 placed sixth in the race after a minor engine-room explosion.

Announce Red Cross Fund Drive Totals

A total of $3500.88 was contributed to the recent Charlevoix county Red Cross fund campaign, H. W. Patrick of Boyne City, fund chairman, has announced.

Of this amount the Charlevnix area contributed $980.22; East Jordan area, $1003.35; Boyne City area, $1243.50; Walloon Lake area, $121; Boyne Falls area, $50.75; Ironton area, $56; Beaver Island, $40.

The local branch office has been open one day a week for the benefit of local persons during the peak load period of the years.

Kiwanis Sees Movies

Mrs. Frank Courier showed colored movies at the regular meeting of the Kiwanis club Monday evening. The films included scenes of Niagara Falls, various interesting events in and around Charlevoix and an air trip from Pellston to Willow Run.

Kit Carson was program chairman.

Plans For New Area Hospital Are Described

Plans for the new Charlevoix area hospital are now in Lansing for the approval of the State Office of Hospital Survey which administers the Hill Burton Funds for the federal government, Fred W. Willis, chairman of the Charlevoix hospital board, has announced.

The plans have already been approved by the hospital board and building committee following minor alterations recommended by the building committee, doctors and hospital administrators and representatives of the State Office of Hospital Survey.

The one-story hospital, which is being financed by public subscription and federal aid through the Hill Burton Act, will be constructed at the Trailer Park site overlooking Lake Michigan.

As was seen in the architect's drawing which appeared in the May 22 issue of the Charlevoix Courier, the building will be constructed in the shape of a modified Greek cross.

The arm which will extend to the north, overlooking the lake will house only rooms for patients as will the north side of the arm extending to the west. The most westerly section will be devoted to the maternity department.

The south side of the western extension will house the nurseries and the formula room as well as the 'heart' of the hospital, two operating rooms, a delivery room, a labor room, central supply station and an emergency room.

The eastern wing, where the main entrance will be located, will have the waiting room, laboratory, radiology and related rooms to the north and to the south the business offices, pharmacy, record and other administration rooms.

Hugh Kinner, 52 Dies Suddenly In Ann Arbor

Graveside services for Hugh Kinoer, 52, who died unexpectedly at the University Hospital, Ann Arbor, Sunday, were held at St. Mary's cemetery late Wednesday afternoon with the Rev. Leo Malioowski officiating.

Funeral services were held at St. John Birchman church in Detroit earlier Wednesday.

A native of Ellsworth, Mr. Kinner had lived in Detroit for more than 25 years.

He is survived by his wife, the former Ila Woods whom he married here; four sons; four daughters; his mother, Mrs. Myrtle Kinner of Ellsworth, who had been visiting in Detroit and Pontiac last week and was unaware of her son's death until she arrived home late Sunday; several brothers and sisters; and nine grandchildren.

City Will Observe Memorial Day With Parade, Ceremony

As it has since Civil War days, Charlevoix will join with other communities throughout the country to honor its war dead at special Memorial Day services Friday.

Following the custom of previous years, a formal program will be held at Brookside cemetery, preceded by a parade through the business district.

The Rev. Joe Bekkering will deliver the Memorial day address at Brookside cemetery.

The Charlevoix high school band directed by C. A. Odmark will open the program with the playing of "America", followed by the invocation by the Rev. L. L. Lewis; the Pledge of Allegiance led by Fenton R. Bulow, who will serve as master of ceremonies, and the Gettysburg Address by Becky Badger.

A floral tribute, salute, taps by bugler, Clifford Riley, the playing of the National Anthem by the band and benediction by the Rev. George L. Majors will conclude the ceremony.

The parade which will precede the program will assemble at Park avenue and State street at 9:15 and start the march through Bridge st. at 9:45 p.m.

The parade will halt briefly at Memorial Park for a service in memory of the sailor dead. The band will open the service with the playing of "God Bless America." Members of the American Legion and V. F. W. Auxiliaries will cast a wreath on the water. A salute will be followed by taps, a prayer by Rev. Majors and the playing of the "Star Spangled Banner" before the parade continues its march to Brookside cemetery.

Jack McDermott will serve as parade marshall.

For the first time a full military unit may lead the parade. Efforts being made to have the 310th Ordnance Depot Company composed of 60 enlisted men and two officers, Capt. John Barkdoll and Lieut. James Foster, participate as a group.

The Veterans of Foreign Wars Post No. 1153 and the Leslie T. Shapton Post No. 226 American Legion and other veterans will come next followed by members of their Auxiliaries, the U. S. Coast Guard, the Charlevoix high school band, the Boy Scouts, the Girl Scouts, the school students on decorated bicycles and the school children in buses.

The band, both scout groups and all school children participating are asked to assemble at the school.

In the event of rain the program will be held in the high school auditorium.

A committee composed of Don Meggison, Lester Smith, and Maurice Dixon of the American Legion and Leroy Plum, Clarence Goldstick and Don Wales of the V. F. W, planned the day's activities.

Traveling Airforce Family Prepares For Next Journey

For the third time in less than four years Mrs. Jones F. Webb, the former Marie Novak of this city, is preparing for a trip halfway around the world to join her husband, Capt. Webb, of the U. S. Airforce.

This time it's to Cnsablanca, French Morocco, North Africa.

Since the first trips, however, Thomas Jones Webb, now age 22 months, has joined the family, so the problems of packing and traveling has grown since the first trek to Europe in February, 1949.

At that time she went to Frankfort, Germany, where her husband, then Lieut. Webb, was a pilot on the Berlin Airlift.

It was then that Mrs. Webb first learned to live with a list in her hand and with two of them going for two years to Casablanca where it is difficult to buy American items, the lists are almost endless.

Since Capt. Webb went overseas last December with the 154th National Guard Unit, a radar outfit of the Airforce, she has been preparing for this trip.

It is easier, she has found, to take with you everything you feel you will need rather than try to order it once you are there, for then the cost of having it shipped is almost prohibitive. For this reason she has accumulated linens, household items, china, silverware and such necessities, as well as a good supply of personal clothing for herself and Tommy.

But try as you might, you can't take everything, she has found. There are things one must arrange to order, and one is children's shoes. She has made arrangements with a shop which specializes in youngsters' shoes to fill her orders.

And if she should forget something there's always the mail order catalog. They have them in all post exchanges and they are the most popular way of shopping when overseas. When in Germany, she relates, she had copies of her own and someone was always dropping in to look them over and make out an order at their leisure.

Shops overseas have clothing but it is often not the type of thing one is used to wearing or, as in Casablanca, the shops feature French clothing which is extremely expensive.

In North Africa the United States has no housing projects so it is up to the servicemen to find their own place to live. One of the reasons why she and Tommy did not leave ealier was because Capt. Webb could not find suitable quarters for them. He

Rayders Score Six Points In Ann Arbor Meet

Coach S. E. 'Irish' Coleman's thinclads tallied six points in the Class C state track meet at Ann Arbor Saturday to conclude their 1952 season. A steady rain fell on the all-day event at Ferry Field and slowed down all events.

Charlevoix's points were scored by Charles Krahnke who took a second-place in the shotput with a toss of 44 ft. 6½ inches and by Stan Whitley who placed sixth in the mile.

Other teams in the Northern Michigan Class C which tallied points were East Jordan with four points and Gaylord with one. Don Whiteford placed third behind Krahnke in the shotput for East Jordan's points and Gene Fleming of Gaylord placed fourth in one section of the 440 yard dash for Gaylord's lone point.

ODDS 'N ENDS

By Fran Martin

If there's anything you would like to know about the boatyards, just ask us . . . We've acquired a smattering of information we'd gladly share with you . . . We went back last week to see a boat launched . . . it's quite an operation and certainly worth seeing . . . We're going back in the fall to see a boat pulled out and then we'll have really completed the cycle . . .

DID YOU notice the attractive Memorial Day display made by the American Legion Auxiliary in the window of the Dime store . . . It's very well done, we thought . . . and was made by Mrs. Lloyd Barnett . . .

THE KINDERGARTEN put on a show last week for their parents because they missed out at Christmas time when so many youngsters were sick . . . And was it cute . . . Mrs. McRae does such a grand job with them . . . The best part of the show however, wasn't supposed to be . . . It all happened when one of the ferocious tigers in the play "Little Black Sambo," couldn't find her triangle to play with the rythm band . . . and shed big tears . . . And everytime she'd sob her striped tail would wiggle . . . And afterwards Mrs. McRae served chocolate milk and homemade cookies to the parents . . . Quite a day for her little charges . . .

HAVE NEVER quite doped out why people put all the pretty flowering trees in the backyard . . . If we weren't in the habit of traveling the alleys around town we'd miss a lot of them . . There's one in the Ingalls' backyard on Clinton street that's a ball, a big ball of solid pink blossoms . . . And did you notice—the pretty pink bush in bloom along the high school gym . . . Harry Powers tells us its a flowering quince . . . and a prettier thing you'll never see . . . And there's hardly a yard along the street anywhere that doesn't have something in bloom or about to bloom . . . And give us some warm days and the islands in State street will be a riot of color with the tulips about to pop . . .

A NOTE from Bill Ratigan brings the news that he and his wife, Eleanor, were chaperones of the All-State swimming candidates, numbering 225 from 21 schools when they bunked at the Cleveland Indians Training base at Daytona Beach, called the Wigwam . . . Seems while they were there a magazine appeared with one of Eleanor's stories about a State Swimming meet . . Every kid had a copy and everyone insisted he or she was the hero or heroine, and they heckled her to death, demanding the truth . . . So Patsy, even with her medal and place on the all-state team, had to play second fiddle to her mother . . .

NEXT SUNDAY we'll go to Baccalaureate services and on Tuesday to Commencement to see another class graduate from our high school . . . Those of us who are older will look upon them and say . . . It can't be, they're just kids, it doesn't seem possible that they're old enough to graduate . . . But they are or they wouldn't be there . . . And the kids themselves? They've got the world by the tail, and if you don't believe it, ask them . . . They think they know where they're going . . . and whether they realize it or not . . . they're on their way . . . We wonder how many of them have given much thought to their class motto: We go from the quite harbor into the sea of life . . . They're growing up and they'll soon be on their own . . . They've got dreams of the future . . bright rosy dreams . . . (for after all, if we don't dream what's the use of living) . . . and we hope for them that at least some of their dreams come true . . .

We found this bit written by Adolph Ochs and we'd like to pass it on to 57 swell youngsters whom you'll see together for the last time come Tuesday night . . 57 kids whom we've enjoyed watching grow up . . . It's just this: Success is won simply by practicing the ordinary virtues . . hard work, intelligence, enthusiasm, self-reliance and honesty . . From all of us to all of you . . . Our best wishes for success and happiness . . .

WERE WE surprised when we opened a copy of the Senior annual, The Rayder, to find the class prophecy written as a 1962 issue of the Charlevoix Courier . . . the flag (the page one name line), special columns and all . . . just as you see on the front page of your Courier each week . . . All 57 members of the 1952 class were written up in separate items in everything from headlines, want ads, fire sales and Charlevoix in Uniform . . . Very cleverly done . . . And, we might add, the Courier is flattered!.

Incidently, the annual, as a whole, is about the best we've seen in recent years . . . Mr. Billings and the class are to be commended for their fine work . .

BRINGING you up to date on the Novak twins . . . Each has two teeth now . . . They're growing up . . .

DEAN BOSS will be the third generation of the Chew family to graduate from the Charlevoix high school when he receives his diploma next Tuesday . . . His mother, Mrs. John E. Boss and the former Iola Chew, graduated in 1927 and her mother, the late Mrs. M. K. Chew and the former Mary Hulme, was among the early graduates of the high school . . . She received her diploma in 1894 . . .

In a letter to his parents he has written of his impressions of the place It follows in part:

"We arrived in Tangiers, French Morocco, May 3 and it is the most fascinating place I've ever seen . . . just like the movies or story books.

I saw the Kasbah and snake charmers: the market where they trade all kinds of things . . . silks, breads, wine and almost anything you can think of. They have Saturday as their Sunday and Sunday is market day for them.

"The Moslem women wear veils and gowns almost every color of the rainbow. The men wear pants that look something like a gunny sack with wicker-type bottoms on them and turbans on their heads

"In fact, I'm seeing things I never dreamed possible.

"I had a buffalo sandwich and it was pretty good. They even have snake meat but I don't think I could eat that, even if they say it is good."

If You Have A Prescription To Be Refilled?

A new federal law known as the Durham-Humphrey Act prohibits the refilling of any prescription other than vitamins. Your doctor may write on the prescription that it may be refilled once, twice or three times.

The following article "The Open Door" by Wallace Werble published in the May issue of the American Magazine best explains why.

NEXT time you go to your corner druggist and ask him to refill that old prescription, chances are you'll get the surprise of your life.

"Sorry," your friend the druggist will have to say, "but I can't refill this prescription anymore unless I get specific instructions to do so from your doctor."

"And why not?" you may explode. "What is this—a racket you druggists and doctors have cooked up to collect more fees and charge more for medicines? Here you've been refilling this same prescription for my family for five years and now you say you can't do it any more. Why, I've even been giving some of this medicine to my next-door neighbor The whole thing is outrageous!"

Stormy conversations like this between pharmacists and patients are now being repeated every day in the more than 50,000 drugstores that span the nation. You may argue until you are blue in the face, but it will get you nowhere. The druggist will still refuse. And you can't blame him. A new federal law requires him to do so.

This new law, which became effective a few weeks ago, is designed to guard you and your family against the dangers, not only of indiscrimminate refilling of prescriptions, but of using potent drugs, including the new "wonder" drugs, without adequate medical supervision. The statute is an amendment to federal drug regulations and is known as the Durham-Humphrey Act after its sponsors—two Democratic members of Congress who are also druggists. It does not affect medical narcotics, which have been strictly controlled since the Harrison Narcotic Act of 1913.

The new ban which it places on unauthorized refilling of restricted drugs undoubtedly will cause many cases of inconvenience. A lot of people, including doctors, will be angry at first. But in the long run the change should prevent unnecessary death and serious illnesses, according to the U. S. Food and Drug Administration, which strongly supported the law. Officials of this Administration report that the misuse of prescriptions, including indiscriminate refilling, cause 'more deaths, injuries, broken homes, human derelicts, and other tragedies' than all other violations of federal drug laws put together.

The FDA has a file of cases where death or serious illness resulted from the misuse of refilled prescriptions. While the largest number of these involved sleeping pills, the records show that a significant number resulted from misuse of other valuable drugs, including some of the [illegible] preparations.

In general, the need for the new law is a result of the tremendous advances made by American medical and pharmaceutical science. During the last 15 years there has come a steady stream of new and improved "wonder drugs"—sulfas, antibiotics, vitamins, antihistamines, the new hormones such as cortisone and ACTH, and, within the last few weeks, a new drug for tuberculosis. However, the availability of so many new and potent medicines in finished form, ready for use, brought unexpected perils. While these drugs—when taken under the supervision of a doctor, can contribute greatly to saving lives and to the elimination of pain and suffering, they can be as dangerous as poisons in the hands of a layman who doesn't know how to use them.

If you are inclined to feel abused, remember that the new law in no way interferes with your right to buy the many everyday drugs which are safe for self-medication and which you may want in your medicine cabinet—such as aspirin and other pain relievers, laxatives, mouth washes, dietary vitamins supplements, liniments, and salves. The new law places no restrictions on these. All you have to do is go down to the drugstore and ask for them.

Patsy Ratigan Wins Swimming Honors In South

Patsy Ratigan, who has been attending school in Lake Worth, Fla., has won all-state recognition and a medal for her fine work as a member of the Lake Worth swimming team.

She had the honor of being the only member of the Lake Worth team, including both boys and girls, to qualify at Miami as one of the top six in the state of Florida in two individual events, the breaststroke and the individual medley. Climaxing the regular season she scored in all three of the championship meets: the Suncoast Conference, the Miami Regionals and the Daytona Beach State Finals.

Patsy won her medal and made the all-state team in Class Double A, the highest possible competition.

Her greatest thrill, however, according to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Ratigan, was swimming in the same meet with Fort Lauderdale's famous Carolyn Green, who holds several national records and who will star at the Olympics this summer.

During the regular season she earned a letter sweater and became a member of the Trojanette Club, the girls' varsity letter club.

William E. Goss, local repairman, was one of four employees with long individual records of safety boasting 34 years of service and a perfect safety record.

W. T. Kirk, general plant manager for the company, was the guest speaker before 95 employees and wives.

A banner proclaiming the group record was the award presented by C. L. Tucker, division plant superintendent. Clark Elwood, plant superintendent for the Traverse City district, accepted it on behalf of the Petoskey area group.

Airforce Family Prepares For Journey was fortunate, however, in finding an unfurnished apartment in a newly-coustructed apartment building.

Except for the four traveling bags she and Tommy are allowed to take with them. The other trunks, bags, cases and boxes have already been sent to New York for shipment nverseas. Included in the shipment were Tommy's gifts for next Christmas, a tricycle, a wagon and a wheelbarrow.

No trip is complete without a last-minute incident which makes one sure they will never make it and this one was no exception. A letter from Capt. Webb Saturday reminded her not to forget the title to their car, which they are taking with them. The search that ensued brought forth no title and after a sleepless night she called County Clerk Fenton R. Bulow Sunday morning to ask what could be done. An investigation revealed that South Carolina, where the car was purchased, does not require a title, only a bill of sales, which she had.

Accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Charles Novak, who will go on to visit relatives in eastern Canada before returning here, Mrs. Webb and Tommy left Monday on the first lap of their journey. They will deposit their car at the Brooklyn Navy Yards for transportation overseas via cargo ship. It may be as much as three months before the car will arrive in North Africa.

She and Tommy will then go on to Fort Hamilton, N. Y., where they must report before noon Saturday. They expect to leave via transport ship for their new home early next week. They will reach Casablanca about June 10. Traveling with them will be other servicemen's families enroute to various places overseas to join their men folk. Six others are on the same traveling orders as the Webbs; that is they are enroute to the same port.

Mrs. Webb's first trip abroad, as mentioned before, was to Frankfort, Germany in February 1949. The following June she was called home by the serious illness of her mother and returned to Germany in October. Four months later, in January, 1950, her husband was returned to the States and she came with him. From then until October, 1951 he was stationed at Fort Sumter, S. C. where young Tommy joined the family in July, 1950. Capt. Webb was stationed briefly at Seward Field, Tenn., before leaving for his present assignment. Mrs. Webb and son have been here since then.

Capt. Webb, a native of Texas, is a veteran of 10 years service with the Airforce. The couple was married in 1945 and after World War II went to Kennedy, Tex., to make their home until he was recalled to active duty in 1948.

Charlevoix County Farm News

County Farmers Are Invited To Grass Progam

Charlevoix county farmers have been given a special invitation to attend the Grass Day at the Kenneth Bare farm, located at Petoskey in Emmet county on June 23.

Ed Rebman, county agricultural agent has been assisting the Emmet county agricultural agent in planning the Grass Day to give all the latest information on growing and using grass and legumes.

The Grass Day program is planned and conducted by county agents in this area, working with specialists from Michigan State college's Cooperative Extension Service. "The day's program is aimed at bringing to farmers of this area the most recent information concerning establishment, management, harvesting and utilization of high-yielding, high-quality forage crops," Rebman said.

Machinery companies have again been invited to exhibit equipment used in forage crop production and utilization. In addition, they have been invited to take part in a field demonstration at the Grass Day of forage harvesters, field balers, crop blowers, forage wagons, bale loaders, hay crushers and tractors.

Rebman added the opinion that many farmers in the county could increase the profits from their farm business if they would use more grass. "This Grass Day program is planned to furnish ideas for profitable use of grass," he added.

Farmers Asked To Look For Symptoms Of Rabies Disease

Farmers were asked to be on the lookout for symptoms of rabies this week by Ed Rebman, county agricultural agent.

He said that dogs, cattle and cats have rabies most frequently. Dr. Glen Reed, Michigan State College extension veterinarian, told Rebman that no cases of the disease in humans have been reported in Michigan during the past 7 years.

But Dr. Reed said that the state health laboratory got reports of 100 cases of rabies in animals in the state in 1951, 260 cases in 1950 and 177 cases in 1949. Many farm animals are susceptible to the disease.

Symptoms of the disease include a change in behavier caused by the effect of the disease on the brain. Gentle animals may become restless and excitable. Friendly dogs may become snappy and snappy dogs may become friendly. Tone of the dog's bark may change and dogs may wander.

In the dumb form of the disease, a partial paralysis may develop. The animal may stagger, drop its jaw, be unable to swallow and become extremely hungry and thirsty.

Rebman said that the disease could be practically eliminated if all dogs were controlled. Pets should be controlled and not allowed to stray. Stray dogs should be reported if there's a warden setup in the community for their control. Keep your pets away from stray dogs.

Vaccination of dogs will help reduce the disease if done on a wide basis, and will reduce the chance that your dog will become infected.

Extension Group To Have Program Here On June 5

Charlevoix county Home Extension Achievement night will be held this year at Charlevoix on Thursday evening, June 5 at 7:30 p.m. The achievement program will be held in the Church of God Fellowship Hall. There will be a short business meeting followed by the showing of a film entitled "Weight Reduction Through Diet". Lunch will be served following the program. The husbands and families of the ladies in home extension work are invited and the program is so arranged that everyone will have a good time.

Mrs. Sophie Withers has finished a very pretty black printed slip cover for both a chair and a big hassock. The chair is a lovely one filled with down and was thrown away by her daughter in Bay City. Mrs. Withers told Emma Reinbold, Home Demonstration Agent, that she brought the old chair home thinking she might practice upholstering. She tied the springs and bought material of black background and Chartreuse and red rose print in it and now she would be the last one to tell you that it looks like a practice job. The total cost of the slip covering for chair and hassock was $8.00.

Mrs. Withers has been an extension member for 25 years. She is a member of the Marion Center Grange and the Farm Bureau. When Ed Rebman, county agricultural agent and Emma Reinbold called at Mrs. Withers' home recently she had 170 pretty and noisy turkeys. She said she was getting 800 more in May. This proves that it isn't only the people with time on their hands that are the ambitious extension members. Quite often it is the busiest women in the community but they still have time to be good cooperators with the Co-operative Extension work.

Emergency Hay and Pasture Crops

They may be the answer to your problems. Now is the time to decide. Sudan grass or some of the millets will do the trick.

BUT REMEMBER — bumper crops begin with GOOD SEED plus proper FERTILIZER. You can use Farm Bureau Brand seed and have complete confidence in their quality and purity.

Another Tip — It's becoming accepted practice to plant sweet clover and/or rye grass at your last corn cultivation to prevent winter wind erosion and add humus to your soil.

Plans For New Area Hospital

All service facilities will be located in the southern extension. Here will be the kitchen, pantry for trays, staff and employees dining rooms, laundry, linen rooms, central storage, boiler room, refrigerator room, shop, staff and nurse lounges and the administrator's apartment.

Utility rooms and nurses stations will be placed at strategic points along the corridors.

There will be four entrances, the vistors or main entrance, the staff, service and emergency entrances plus two emergency exits at the ends of the north and west wings. The morgue will be located to the east of the emergency entrance.

The hospital will have a gross floor space of 22,710 square feet. It will house 16 rooms for medical and surgical patients which can be used for one, two or more beds plus another six rooms which will constitute the maternity department. All rooms will be 14½x10½ feet with toilet facilities in each. Shower stalls will be included in the maternity department rooms.

The bed capacity for the medical and surgical departments will be a maximum of 32 beds, plus a maximum of 12 in the maternity department. The nurseries, including the isolation room, will have 14 bassinets.

One room located near the central nurses station will be used as a children's ward. Two rooms at the end of the north wing will be constructed so they can be converted for isolation use.

The corridors will be eight feet wide to allow room for moving stretchers, wheelchairs, beds and other equipment. Plastic skylights will allow natural light in the corridors during the day.

All ceilings will have accoustic plaster and floors throughout the building will be covered with asphalt or cork tile to minimize sounds.

The building itself will be constructed of concrete with steel reinforcements and walls of eight inch hollow masonry and four inch brick facing. The many windows will be of thermo-glass with frames of Ponderosa pine dipped in preservative.

The building will be heated by steam heat generated by oil-fired boilers.

There will be special rooms for storage of anesthetics, oxygen and sterile supplies as well as others which will serve specisl purposes.

To build the hospital, funds amounting to approximately $275,000 raised by public subscription will be supplemented by a federal grant of approximately $335,500 or 55 percent of the entire cost of approximately $610,000. The federal grant is provided by the Hill Burton Act which provides funds for approved hospitals.

Of the $275,000 pledged, $153,308 is now in cash and bonds. An additional $53,000 must be collected before federal aid will be granted. It is necessary to have 75 percent of the total contributions in liquid assets to receive the federal aid.

Gordon Cornwell of Traverse City is the architect.

The information for this story was taken from the architect's breakdown and from the approved plans and figures provided by the Charlevoix Hospital board.

Baked beans will stay piping hot on your next picnic if you insulate the dish with plenty of newspaper wrapping.

File Petitions To Stop Stray Dog Nuisance

What can be done about Charlevoix's street-walking dogs? The city council was faced with the problems Monday evening when it received a petition signed by 100 residents asking that something be done to eliminate the stray dog nuisance.

With no dog-catcher and no place to impound dogs if they are caught, the council found itself faced with the problem of enforcing state laws and local ordinances which provide for the licensing of dogs and place responsibility for the control of dogs upon the owners.

An enforcement program would entail a sizeable expenditure, estimated as high as $3,000 by some of the aldermen. None of the alternate suggestions offered appeared to afford a solution to the satisfaction of the council.

To further study the situation the council decided a citizens committee should be named to co-operate with the police committee of the council in devising a program to eliminate the nuisance. The six persons named on the committee were William Supernaw, Frank Oleksy, Abbie Lewis, Mrs. Robert Paul, Ernie Wissel, Perry Smith, Mrs. Joe Williams, and William Heering.

S. E. "Irish" Coleman

Teacher, Coach, Friend And Representative Extraordinaire

By Fran Martin

Teacher, coach, friend and representative extraordinaire might well describe Stewart E. (Irish) Coleman who, when school closes today, will have completed 25 years in the Charlevoix school system.

In those 25 years he has taught many things to many different people . . . the appreciation of English literature, the meaning of economics and self-confidence and the will to win to an athletic event. But regardless of what the lesson has been, it was always for the good of the student.

Mr. Coleman came here in the fall of 1926 after completing his undergraduate work at Michigan State Normal college in Ypsilanti and teaching one year at Lexington. A native of Renova, Pa., he had also attended Allegheny college.

His arrival was not marked by the sounding of claxons for he was just another teacher accepting a position. No doubt when he came he had no idea of making this his home. But for some reason he adopted Charlevoix and during those years has given much of himself and asked little in return.

Primarily he is an English teacher and it has been his aim to develop in his students a sense of appreciation of literature and the message held therein.

His countless students through the years have learned Gray's "Elegy" and other gems of English literature. At the time they could see no reason for it but in later years appreciated the lesson he sought to teach.

In his classroom he has not only taught what is in the book, as all his students will agree, but has doled out bits of philosophy and advice that will long be remembered after the quatrains and sonnets escape their memories.

As a coach he probably has encouraged more boys to become successful athletes than any other man in the north. In this department he has an advantage over most coaches for he starts in the elementary school with his basketball teams.

No doubt you have heard that little boys in Charlevoix do not enter school with the thought of learning the three R's but to be playing with Coleman's Cats. This is more or less true but they must be good students to play and they learn competition, fair play and sportsmanship in their most formative years and they've Lahore, Pakistan.

Just a little matter of statistics we've just figured we have spent our nights, since we left home, in 35 different kinds of beds including two sleeperettes, several board beds, several webbing beds, a rope bed and mattresses of every kind and shape: we have traveled about 20,363 miles by plane, car or train and between us, we have spoken to about 40,845 people.

At this point home looks very good. All this because tomorrow we start on the next phase of our journey and this by car.

They say it is going to be cold. I never, never had the slightest conception that North India was so chilly. I have always pictured it as a land of brown bodies and little clothes and it is in the summer time. This chill really lasts only from November until February.

We have flown over the whole of the North Indian plain and what a flat dreary-looking place it is, as flat as a table top every place you look and so dry. The mud-walled villages are the color of dust, the roadways are filled with dust and the people's clothes look like the dust around them. The camels just blend into the general picture.

Actually Lahore, except for irrigation, would be a desert. What water they have comes from Kashmir and that is what the trouble is really about. If India gets Kashimir would Pakistan get water?

Here we are at Dehra Dun in a lovely valley between the foothills and the Himalayas themselves. The mountains rise like a wall to six or seven thousand feet and behind tower snow-clad peaks dimly visible through the mist.

It is now 9 a.m. and so cold that, until the sun gets up, my fingers can scarcely work the typewriter keys. This afternoon, in contrast, will be so warm that we shall sit in the garden and have tea.

Most of the houses here are set in beautiful gardens . . . They were built in a day when the only way to keep cool in the heat was to build ceilings 20 to 30 feet

Name Committee To Make Plans For Recreation

Plans for a summer recreational program for Charlevoix were discussed at a recent meeting of city council and school representatives.

It was decided to set up a permanent recreation committee whose members will be representatives from each of the groups named above including the mayor and one councilman, the superintendent of schools, a member of the board of education and a representative of the board of commerce. The work of the committee will be to plan the program and keep it operating.

Del Terrill, high school coach, has been employed by the city and school to serve as recreational co-ordinator.

The committee asked for a detailed recreational program which Mr. Terrill presented for their approval. It is a tentative program set up on a three-year basis. It is hoped in that time the program will be completed.

The six points and an explanation of each follow:

1. Softball. This program is already organized and will continue to lead the sports parade for the present. In the future, however, it is hoped more softball diamonds for various age groups can be constructed in various sections of the city so the program can be enlarged to care for more youngsters.

2. Hardball. A step has already been taken in this program for a local team made up of recent graduates and high school students have joined the northern Michigan hardball league. A schedule has been set up with the local nine participating in games

Memorial Service Attracts Crowd Despite Weather

Despite the cold and inclement weather, a large crowd gathered at Brookside cemetery for the Memorial Day program planned by the American Legion and the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Those who braved the weather heard Rev. Joe Bekkering, in his Memorial Day address, define the significance of the occasion and say that there is a greater interest than ever in the day because of the thousands of names that have been added in recent years.

"Today we honor those who died in order that right, not might, may rule the nations of the world and that peace and prosperiety, not war and bloodshed, may bless our land", he said. He concluded by saying that "Those who gave their lives speak to us today of sacrifice. Those of us here must be willing to sacrifice for our nation, as they did, and to obey the call to duty, should it come. Above all, we must remember our duty to God."

The floral tribute, taps and salute concluded the program at which the Rev. L. L. Lewis and the Rev. G. L. Majors offered prayers The music was by the Charlevoix high school band directed by C. A. Odmark.

Enroute to the cemetery the parade halted briefly at Memorial park for the impresive ceremony honoring the sailor dead.

Participating in the parade were military, veterans and civic groups.

Flags were not displayed on Bridge st. during the parade because of the treacherous weather, Street Commissioner Leo Allard said.

F. B. Criqui To Enter District Congress Race

St. Ignace — Francis B. Criqui (pronounced Crickey), St. Ignace Attorney, has announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination for Congressman in the 11th Michigan District in the Aug. 5 primary election.

Criqui's entrance into the Republican primary brings to four the number of announced candidates to date. The other three are, Victor A. Knox, Sault Ste. Marie, John G. Erickson, Escanaba, and Guy Rundles, Vanderbilt.

A life-long Republican, Criqui received his pre-legal education at Ohio State University in Columbus, O., and at St. Johns University, Toledo, O. Because of the depression of the mid-thirties, he had to suspend his education and worked around the blast furnaces of the Interlake Iron Corporation, at Toledo, a subsidiary of Pickands Mather.

In 1939, he went to Detroit and completed his legal training at the University of Detroit Law School, while working a

Dean Faunce Charges 57 Graduates To Set Standards Of Living

Commencement exercises for the 57 members of the 1952 graduating class of the Charlevoix high school were held at the high school auditorium Tuesday evening. A capacity crowd composed of the families and friends of the graduates heard the commencement address by L. Dale Faunce of the University of Iowa and saw the graduates receive their diplomas from Fred W. Willis, vice president of the Board of Education.

L. Dale Faunce, dean of students and director of student affairs at Iowa University, expressed his pleasure at being back in Michigan as he opened his address. He is a native of Harbor Springs.

In his address "You and Tomorrow" he offered five important but humble guideposts by which he felt the graduates could develop a successful life.

"I charge you to think through the important things in the next few days and decide the standards by which you want to live. If you follow the things which you have been taught you will have a successful life", he said.

He listed and talked at length on the five points which he felt constitute success in any and every field. They are: patience, imagination, honesty, integrity and faith in God and one's fellowmen.

One of the first things one must do, he said, is develop the idea of patience if one is to get along with and understand people.

Imagination, he went on to say, brought to mind many things but most important was to see past the little day by day affairs to the bigger things of the future.

Honesty he listed as among the most important. "Our ancestors founded and developed an Amer-

Cost Of Winter Snow Removal Set At $26,000

Snow removal on McNitt or township roads in Charlevoix county cost $26,890 this year, according to figures released this week by Ralph S. Hamilton, clerk of the Charlevoix county road commission.

The 15 townships in the county share the expense with the road commission with the townships paying 50 percent of the total and the Road Commission the remaining 50 percent from funds received from the Motor Vehicle fund.

The average cost per mile for the fiscal year of 1951-52 was $110 for the 242.6 miles of McNitt roads in the county.

In addition to this, snow removal in the county cost $205 per mile on the 122 miles of primary roads and $590 per mile on the 67 miles of state highways.

The cost of snow removal on McNitt roads was down this year to $110 per mile as compared to $159 during 1951-52. Less snow and better road construction with elimination of snow traps are given as the reasons for the decrease.

Figures of interest include the cost of snow removal in the adjacent townships including Charlevoix, $119; Eveline, $2,788; Hayes, $2,321; Marion, $2,323; Norwood, $817; St. James, $721; Peaine, $795.

The total includes $5,805 for erecting and dismantling snow fences, $20,958; snow removal and sanding, $116.

Primary roads are listed as those main roads which are not state highways but which carry traffic throughout the county. McNitt or townsip roads are those crossroads which connect and cross primary roads and state highways.

Stop The Dog Nuisance

Dogs as pets and companions or as work dogs have earned a place in man's way of life. Many a child has missed half of growing up by not having a pet dog and many grown-ups who love dogs may unconsciously overlook the nuisance that a dog may be to other people.

This week the city council was presented with a petition asking that something be done about the dog nuisance in Charlevoix. Because a person signed the petition does not indicate that he dislikes dogs. It means, instead, that he does recognize the fact that dogs running loose are a nuisance to many people, especially those who are trying to maintain attractive lawns and gardens.

We have laws which adequately provide for the care of stray dogs and the necessary control of licensed dogs. Unfortunately Charlevoix does not at present have the necessary means for enforcing the existing statutes and the cost of providing satisfactory enforcement is a bit excessive for a city of this size.

It is possible that most of our dog laws are the result of too many dog owners neglecting their responsibility. Had every owner accepted his responsibility there would have been no need for a petition and no need for the council to spend the taxpayers money on an enforcement problem.

We believe the most satisfactory solution is for each owner to keep his own dog where he belongs. Yes, it would be the next thing to a miracle if everyone heeded the suggestion but no plan works until each individual does his part to make it work. It is well past the time we of a free country assumed our own responsibility instead of leaving it to the government to force us to do the things we should do of our own volition.

ODDS 'N ENDS

By Fran Martin

Like everyone else we cussed the weather over the week-end . . . What with rain and cold weather right up 'til Sunday it wasn't very enjoyable for all those people who had come here for the week-end . . . But despite the weather a good many of them felt they were 'home', and that was the important thing . . There probably isn't a holiday in the year that brings about more reminiscing than Memorial Day . . . And we heard a lot of it . . . It was wonderful, however, meeting all those people we see all too seldom . . . They should get in the habit of returning a bit more often . . .

AND THERE were just scads of people around all week-end . . Never saw so many people we didn't know . . . Let's hope that the holiday was just a forerunner of what we can expect for the summer months . . . We could use a couple of more months like that . . . Speaking of the summer, we were talking Sunday and trying to convince someone that once upon a time we did have real honest-to-goodness summer weather . . . you know, the kind where it's hot . . . Having been a resident here for about nine years she said she'd never seen it . . . Let's hope this is the summer to prove our point . . .

WE'RE probably a little late with our announcement but for our money spring is really here . . . We've had our first bouquet of lilacs . . .They're the one flower with their cool fragrant blossoms that one dreams of from year to year . . . And speaking of flowers, if you'd like to see a rainbow garden look in on E. A. Moek's on Petoskey ave . . . With tulips in every color it looks like a bit of rainbow fallen from the sky . . .

HERE'S A story we heard last week that we thought worth passing on to you . . . Seems there's a couple of women on the southside who drop in on one another real often . . . If one should call and the other isn't in, she always moves something in the kitchen to let her friend know she's been there . . . The other day one of the women, Mrs. Emma Bogart, went to call on her neighbor, Mrs. Marie McCall and found her gone . . . As was the custom, she was removing the pans from the sink when a voice behind her commanded "You get out of here" . . It gave her quite a fright until she discovered it was only Skippy, the parakeet who had been watching the activities from his cage . . . Skippy is the parakeet, you'll remember, who is smart because he went to school . . . He flew outside one night and finally found his way to school, where Mrs. McCall's grandson, Norman Ketchman, was called to rescue him from the window ledge . . . Smart bird . .

OUR THANKS to Leo Allard for seeing that the park benches were on the street by Memorial Day . . . He's assured us that the next project is the Lake Michigan municipal beach, which will take a lot of work before it will be ready for use . . . What with the high water and wind and drifting sand it's going to be quite a job preparing it for the summer.

JUNE, the month of brides and graduates, is here . . . But in Charlevoix it's a month of preparing for the summer resort season . . . The town's taking on a new look . . . everyone is cleanup his store or shop . . . cottages are being opened, window boxes are going up, the painters and gardeners are busy . . . Typical activity in a resort town . . . It will soon be that time of year when we won't see our friend until fall . . . People who grow up elsewhere don't get that part of it . . . but let them spend a summer here and they'll know what we mean . . .

IN OUR neighborhood there's scads of apple trees and lilacs and with them all in bloom it's like a perfume shop . . . only sweeter . . . And with the winds blowing the blossoms from the trees, it's almost as though it had snowed . . . in spots . . . We're of the opinion that spring is the nicest time of the year . . . But as the other seasons come around, you'll no doubt hear us say that about each one . .

THERE'S A yarn about 'Irish' Coleman elsewhere in the Courier this week and this thought struck us as we were reading it (if we may get personal for a minute) . . . He taught the entire Martin family at sometime in the 25 years he's been here . . . all 11 of us . . . I won't vouch for what he was able to teach us but, if, on occasion, he seems a bit odd . . . Take into consideration what he's been through . . . Oh yes . . . add to that the Bergmanns and the Careys and a few others and you'll wonder why he's still around.

WE WENT to see the Jane Froman story, "With a Song in My Heart" at the local theatre this week . . . We'd heard it was good inspiring . . . If you should feel but never dreamed it could be so you have troubles and the world's against you, just go to see it and you'll think you're in clover . . . It should be a lesson to those who are downed by minor set-backs . .

FRIDAY, JUNE 6 . . . . the eighth anniversary of D-Day . . . the invasion of Normandy . . : there are somethings about World War II that are as vivid in memory as the day they happened and that's one of them . . . Never will we hear "The Battle Hymn of the Republic" that we don't think of June 6 for it was played countless times that day . . . It was the beginning of the end of the, war in Europe . . . which seemed, at the time, like a dream come true . . . But here we are again at war . . . Don't you sometimes wonder what it would be like to have peace again?

THE BOY SCOUTS attended the Camporee at Kalkaska over the week-end and from the accounts of the outing it was a huge success . . . Along with the rain the usual incidents . . . the youngster who was homesick in the middle of the night, the quartette of young scouts who decided to play-root the peg three minutes before church call and had to be rushed to the pump for a quick clean-up . . . all the usual things with that many boys . . . And have you heard the description of a tenderfoot? . . . He always has a hatchet in his hand . . he chops sitting, standing or lying down and around the clock . . . It was these little eager beavers who awakened the camp every morning with their (you guessed it) chopping . . . But all in all it was wonderful . . . Not many regulations but lots of fun . . . And their leaders must have the patients of Job and nerves of steel . . .

Michigan Mirror

by Gene Alleman

Political control of Michigan's correction system has bred unrest among inmates at the Southern Michigan Prison at Jackson, according to Gerret Heyns, warden at Ionia reformatory and a former corrections commissioner.

Heyns testified to this effect before legislative finance committees at Lansing. Riot damage at the prison exceeded $1,500,000.

His allegation was another "hot potato" tossed into the lap of Governor G. Mennen Williams who, like former Governor Kim Sigler, has advocated more appointive power for the governor to run state government.

As quoted in the press, Heyns said:

"When the director is appointed by the governor and is a political appointee the nervousness of subordinates cannot be eliminated. It even filters down to the inmates.

HEYN'S SOLUTION is a return to the five-man corrections commission law whereby prisons were taken out of control of the governor and were run by persons "chosen for the jobs on the basis of their training and experience in corrections work."

An obvious target is Earnest C. Brooks of Holland, Williams' appointee as corrections director. Brooks, a Democrat, is in the insurance business.

The so-called "model" correction commission law, interestingly enough, was a product of a Democratic governor-Frank Murphy in 1937. It continued on the statute books 10 years until Governor Sigler convinced the legislature that the governor should be responsible. Sigler took great pride in his appointment of a career man, Joseph Sanford, former deputy at Atlanta's federal prison.

WHEN THE voters' protest tide against Sigler swept unknown young Williams into the governor's chair, Sanford was promptly replaced by Williams' own appointee, Mr. Brooks. Brooks is a successful business man and a former member of the State Senate. Sanford died in 1951.

The situation thus has some contradictory aspects. Heyns criticizes political control of prisons through a Democratic governor's appointment of a one-man commission. His solution is a return to a model law inaugurated by a Democratic governor. If a Republican legislature agrees with his recommendation, it will be admitting its error in accepting a Republican governor's solution: One-man control. And so it goes.

Who's right? Who's wrong? In the game of politics the answer depends largely on which side of the party fence you happen to be. So roll your own!

IT IS comparatively easy to create and build up a new department in state government, once the legislature accedes to public pressure and appropriates money to hire manpower.

It is quite another thing, however, to get the equivalent of results through coordination of existing governmental agencies.

An illustration at point is Michigan's civil defense program, a new postwar activity of state government. Last year this department spent $1,973,000, one million dollars of which went for blood typing. For this year's budget the governor asked $3,000,000, a good 50 per cent more. The legislature, trying to cope with a rising state deficit, granted only $271,575.

GEN. LESTER J. Maitland, civil defense director, has practically shelved ambitious plans to continue blood typing for an atomic disaster, expand the ground observer plan, buy fire trucks and medical supply trucks and set up special programs for key areas such as the Soo Locks.

By dire necessity he is now resorting to an appeal to existing state agencies for coordination. The health and highway departments, for example, are asked to help carry some of the load through their own manpower and funds.

A TAX brevity: The state constitution says, in effect, that the legislature shall balance the budget. But Gov. Williams vetoed $18,000,000 of the Republican $28,500,000 program, creating a deficit of some $20,000,00 to be tacked on to the $65,00,000 accumulated deficit.

Who is now responsible for the unbalanced budget — Governor Williams or the Legislature?

Sen. Frank Andrews (R-Hillman) says, "My position is to vote no on any attempts to balance the budget. We did our legislative duty and the governor vetoed it. He won't get a chance to veto the beer tax, for it's not coming up."

Sen Leo H. Roy (R-Hancock) said, "We won't solve any of our problems until we bounce Williams—He's just a jinx."

C. J. McNeill, legislative comptroller, says quietly, "They've authorized expenditures of more than $330,000,000. That's law and you know it as well as I. Their only answer is to find more money—somewhere."

GOV. WILLIAMS' solution is simple and familiar. Distribute the wealth by taxing employers profits. FDR applied this principle of European socialism nearly 20 years ago. He called it the "New Deal."

A by-product of increased taxes and government spending, both impelled in part by the cost of Wold War II and the present cold war against communism, is inflation. Socialism and inflation

The average hourly rate of Detroit production workers last March was $2 04. A 40-hour work-week meant earnings of $81.60—as an AVERAGE! That is inflation.

If [illegible] pruning of the [illegible] group is effected in 1952 under political direction, the il[illegible] will be even greater

GOVERNOR WILLIAMS' greatest trump card is his championship of the underdog, the "common man" whose welfare he would improve at every opportunity, primarily at the expense of the profits of "big business" and under the illusion of prosperity.

It is a political mirage hard to overcome.

And the Republican legislative leaders know it.

If Michigan has more deficits, who's to blame? The governor who vetoed "consumer tax" bills, or the legislature which "refuses to tax employers' profits? The showdown is just about at that level. Take your choice.

Launch Drive To Secure Blood Donors In County

June will be known as Blood Month in Charlevoix county as the county chapter of the American Red Cross formolates plans for the annual blood procurement program to be held June 24 and 25. Mrs. Roy G. Bennett, chapter blood chairman, has announced.

The Michigan Department of Health blood unit will be in the county on those two days to carry out the program.

The goal for the two-day clinic has been set at 200 pints with at least 110 registrants each day in East Jordan and Charlevoix.

A percentage of the blood will go directly to the armed forces after it has been processed by the State Health Department while remainder will be converted into plasma and its fractions for use by Charlevoix county residents who will receive it free of charge except for administration costs, wherever they may be hospitalized.

Miss Iva Allen R.N., field representative for the blood procurement program for the Michigan Department of Health, was in Charlevoix county last week conferring with Mrs. Bennett and making initial plans for the clinic.

This is the first blood procurement program in the county since February, 1951 when 99 pints were donated by county residents.

Mrs. Phyllis Malpass is city chairman for the East Jordan clinic and Mrs. Robert Wexstaff is chairman for the Charlevoix program. Boyne City residents will receive their registration cards from Mrs. H. W. Patrick and may attend either clinic. The 1951 program was held in Boyne City.

S. E. Coleman Teacher, Friend

been learning it from him for more than 15 years.

Track is his first love and his teams reflect his interest in the sport. He first introduced track here in the late '20s but is was dropped until the late 1930s. Since then his teams have won 17 of 18 Northern Michigan Class C titles, 11 regional titles and a fair share of state recognition in Class C circles. His thinclads have consistently set conference, regional and state records.

Boys who have failed to make good in other sports have often times been outstanding in the track program because he has instilled self-confidence and the will to win in them.

As a friend he has no peer. He has helped more students and graduates to climb the ladder of success than will ever be known. He has devoted his life to helping anyone who will help himself. He has the faculty of instilling in others the will to help themselves and because of this he holds a special place in the hearts of his former students.

There is today in northern Michigan a successful coach and teacher whom Mr. Coleman befriended . . . he wasn't even one of his students. But because of the encouragement given this boy by someone who could see his inherent good qualities, this man is a success today and he is the first to tell anyone what he owes to Coach Coleman.

As a representative extraordinaire he again has no superior. As secretary of the Charlevoix board of commerce, a position he has hlep for 12 years, his job is to sell Charlevoix as a summer resort and industrial center. Through the years he has devoted much time to arranging programs and bringing visitors here. Those close to him realize what a difficult and thankless job this is but he does it with his heart and no one can ask more.

For a quarter of a century this man has given unselfishly of himself to the students who have passed through his classes, he has given much to the community through his students and his work with the board of commerce . . . the least Charlevoix can say to him is this: Thank you for coming and many thanks for loving us enough to stay.

Twenty Boy Scouts and a similar number of Explorer Scouts accompanied by their respective leaders, Robert C. Ashdon, and Leonard Burns, attended the annual Boy Scout Camporee at Kalkaska over the Memorial Day week-end.

The boys made the trip via bus with a truck carrying their equipment. They unloaded and set up camp in the rain which continued to fall for most of the week-end.

The rain did not dampen the sports of the more than 500 Scouts attending the Comporee and the group enjoyed a variety of Boy Scout activities. The camps were set up on a patrol basis with the boys planning and executing all the chores.

The outing ended Sunday afternoon. While there the boys heard Rep. Charles Potter address the Scouts who had gathered in Kalkaska for the event.

Several Groups Aid In Hospital Projects Here

During the past few months several local groups have been doing sewing and mending and other service projects for the Charlevoix Hospital, according to Miss Anne Baumgartner, superintendent.

Among them have been the Mary Brewster circle of the Congregational church, the Ladies Aid of the Community Church of God and the Women of the Lutheran Guild. Other groups and individuals offered to assist in the work.

The Senior Girl Scouts also participated in a service program whereby two Scouts reported at the hospital after school each week-day for six weeks to carry trays, feed patients, store linens and other routine tasks. This released nurses and nurses' aides for more technical work.

The program was very successful, Miss Baumgartner said.

In addition, other Girl Scout troops made tray decorations and favors for various holidays throughout the year.

"All the work was appreciated," Miss Baumgartner continued. "The hospital is a community project and it is gratifying to have so many people of the community participating in its operation, even if it is only on a small scale."

Senior Girl Scout Troops 1 and 2, whose leaders are Mrs. Lester Smith, Mrs. C. M. Bice and Mrs. Charles Duerr participated in the service program.

Long Illness Is Fatal To Nephew Of Local Editor

Battle Creek — A popular and talented Battle Creek youth, George B. (Jack) Dolliver III, nephew of J. Clark Dolliver, passed away at Leila Hospital in Battle Creek Monday after an intestinal hemorrhage suffered Friday.

Jack, who was 19 years old, had suffered from hemophilia all his life. Despite this handicap he had graduated from the Battle Creek high school, had one semester at Michigan State College and had become efficient as a radio announcer and craftsman. He entered Michigan State because of its radio workshop, but found the campus too large for his physical abilities and had recently enrolled at Albion College, intending to enter next September.

Jack was the son of Mrs. George B. Dolliver, Jr. and the late Lieutenant Dolliver, who was killed in action on Saipan July, 1944. At the time of his death, Lieutenant Dolliver was in command of remnants of his regiment which was nearly wiped out by a Japanese "banzia attack." He was posthumously awarded the Silver Star which he had won in a previous battle.

Fully aware of the dangers of life, Jack met them with unusual heroism. In school he held his own, respite long absences. In high school he was a member of the debate team, sang in the a cappella choir, worked in the radio department, and in 1950, edited the senior annual, the Paean, which his grandfather, George B. Dolliver and his father had done in their day and as his sister, Virginia Lee Dolliver has done this year. In the 1952 year book are many pictures taken by him though he was no longer in school.

After graduating in 1950, he took a post-graduate course before entering Michigan State.

He was intensely interested in sports, and though unable to participate, attended all Battle Creek high school sports events as well as following college and Tiger teams.

Jack is survived by his mother; his sister; his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. George B. Dolliver of Battle Creek and Dr. and Mrs. L. E. Haight of Bellevue and his uncle, J. Clark Dolliver, of this city.

Mr. and Mrs. Dolliver left Tuesday for Battle Creek to attend the funeral services at the chapel of the First Congregational church Wednesday afternoon.

Dean Faunce Sets Guide For Grads

ican way of life," he said. "I feel that was the religoius way of life. Either a thing was right or it was wrong and there was no middle way. Now we have a tendency to travel the 'gray' highway that has grown between right and wrong and to tolerate and excuse too many things such as one sees in government today. This you can not do and be true to yourself."

Integrity goes hand in hand with honesty, he went on, "In this age we have a tendency to follow the leader and often sacrifice our principles along the way. When we do this we lose our integrity". He advised the greduates to learn to think for themselves and regardless whet others do to stand by their principles.

Faith in God and one's fellowmen, he said, speak for themselves and need no explanation. However, he reminded the class if they did not have these things they were lost and if they were lost they would not know success.

To emphasize his points he quoted Dr. Bunch, the U. S. representative at the United Nations whose definition of success is to have a set of principles, live by them and to know how to get along with people.

He commended the parents for giving the youngsters of today, in this troubled world, the proper standards to live by.

Doris Nielsen opened the program with the salutatory and Becky Badger presented the valedictory. Special music was by the Madrigal choir, the Girls Glee Club and the Charlevoix high school band directed by C. A. Odmark. Supt. R. G. Bennett introduced Dean Daunce. The Rev. L. L. Lewis gave the invocation and the Rev. Joe Bekkering the benediction. H. E. Bingham presented the class of 1952.

At baccaluareate services on Sunday, evening the graduates heard the Rev. Bekkering speak on "The Secret of a Successful Life."

"You must be strong and be of good courage, taking the Bible and God's word as your guide if you are to attain true success", he said. "Do not forget how God Himself links success with love and reverence for His word. Only then, he quoted from Joshue 1 Verse 8 "Thou shelt heve good success."

The Charlevoix Community choir under the direction of Mr. Odmark, presented a program of religious music.

The Rev. Lewis, Rev. G. R. Kars and the Rev. G. L. Majors also participated

Mrs Stewart Henner and Mrs. Leonard Burns accompanied the choir.

Femala Turtlea

Female sea turtlas lay thair aggs at night in holes they scoop out in sunwarmed sand a short distance inland from high tides. They may deposit 200 or more eggs of golf-bsll stze with leathery shells. With the laying, their responsibility ends. Man is but one of many predators that hunt out the eggs for food, or feast on the newly hatched young

A "TOAST" TO JUNE DAIRY MONTH

20th Century-Fox Star Mitzi Gaynor raises a "toast" to June Dairy Month and the U. S. dairy industry as she drinks a glass of milk between "takes" in her Hollywood dressing room.

Dairy Month, June 1-30, a star in its own right on the American scene, is being staged for the 16th consecutive year. Its purpose is to further an even better understanding of the contribution dairy foods make to the nation's health and the stabilization of our economy.

About 10 million Americans gain livelihood from the production, processing and distribution of foods such as ice cream, milk, butter, cheese, evaporated milk and dry milk. The dairy industry contributes at least 10 billion dollars to national commerce.

Miss Gaynor will soon be seen in the motion picture comedy, "We're Not Married."

New OPS Rules Not Likely To Affect Foods

Cincinnati — Little, if any, change in the weekly food bill was foreseen today by Joseph B. Hall, President of The Kroger Co., as a result of OPS ceiling price adjustments on several food items, scheduled to go into effect soon.

"Actually, more than half of all the foods sold in grocery stores today are below peak ceiling prices, and most of these below-ceiling foods are the staple items most frequently bought by people in the lower and middle income groups," Mr. Hall said.

"Food prices are determined more by competition and supply than by price ceilings," he continued. "Most foods are in abundant supply now, and food prices in general are below those of a year ago and substantially lower than the peaks that followed outbreak of the Korean War."

Of 60 consumer food items reported on by the U. S. Bureau of Labor statistics recently, 47 are below their peaks of the last two years. Reductions are as much as 46 per cent, and a substantial number of the declines have been by more than ten per cent.

"The trend of food prices for the past year has been definitely downward," Mr. Hall explained. "For example, the U. S. Department of Labor processed food index for the week ending May 10 and covering most grocery items, is 3.4 per cent below a year ago. Similar trends are evident in meats.

"Most of the fresh fruits and vegetable prices are down also. Potatoes are an outstanding exception to this trend, due largely to an abnormal crop shortage," he continued.

Mr. Hall pointed out that cauliflower, spinach, tomatoes, oranges and grapefruit are selling at lower prices than a year ago.

Canned citrus fruits and juices, soaps, shortenings, and salad oils have declined sharply in price. Crisco has dropped from $1.12 to 83c for three pounds. Citrus products are selling at the lowest price in several years, with prices dropping as much as 30 per cent in the past year. Prices of canned peaches, pears, green beans, peas, spinach, sauerkraut, and salmon have dropped from one to six cents a can under 1951 prices.

Mr. Hall added that frying chickens have gone down to 59c a pound from 67c a pound, and sliced bacon has dropped to 53c a pound from 1951's 59c. Even beef has felt the effect of good supply and competition. Some steak prices have dropped as much as 15c a pound.

Eggs are down 9c to 12c a dozen from last year, while margarine prices are 7c to 8c a pound lower than last year's prices, he added.

Cite Poachers For Deer Losses

LANSING—Poaching in Michigan is causing a sharp loss to the deer herd with spring bringing an increase to the illegal practice of "shining" deer into immobility by use of auto spotlights.

E. E. Tucker, assistant head of the conservation department's law enforcement section, says that with back roads now open to the poachers' cars, nightly forays are bringing more and more criminal suits.

And with does carrying their young at present, threat to the deer herd by poachers is much increased. One recent case in Schoolcraft county brought two men to justice court after a doe bearing two fawns was found shot and abandoned in a field.

Tucker says that the problem of shining reaches a peak during summer months, but that it actually is a year-round enforcement problem.

Former Resident Is Mentioned In Detroit Article

In a recent issue of the Detroit Times is a story entitled "Who said our cops are mean?" which tells of several incidents of kindness by Detroit policemen and women.

Among those mentioned is a former resident, Mary Frances Zeitler, daoghter of Mr. and Mrs. John Zeitler, Sr., and a policewoman in Detroit.

It relates the story of Miss Zeitler and the 15-year old shoplifter she found in her custody after the girl had tried to steal a 25 cent box of powder from a counter.

In answer to her question, "Why did you do it?" the girl said "Because I want to be a lady".

As a result the girl is becoming a 'lady' through a charm school course with Miss Zeitler footing the expense.

high. High ceilings and spacious rooms are lovely in the summer but in the cool of winter what refrigerators. But it is funny to turn from the handsome rooms to the primitive bathrooms.

The fuel problem is difficult. The villagers use cow-dung, the more wealthy and foreigners use charcoal or wood and sometimes coal . . . but all fuel is expensive so these large houses are more than a problem.

Now I must try to catch you up on our adventures. I think our last letter got us out of Lahore. The old city of Lahore was probably more congested with narrower streets than any place we have yet seen and with more flies, not only on the food in the bazaars but on the faces of the children.

This part of the city is still partly walled with lovely old gateways. We toured in the area in a tiny English car and among other things saw two schools which our missions are running, one for girls and another for boys right in the heart of the crowded area.

When the terrible Moslem-Hindu riots took place at partition, there was a bad riot and a great deal of destruction all round the school but they mean so much to the neighborhood that the people themselves saved them from fire and slaughter.

Which reminds me of a story we heard about a village near the border: there were about 50 percent of the people who were Christians and they persuaded the Hindu to hold up the attack on the Moslems for 48 hours. In the meantime they got the Moslems together, helped with the packing, took them in ox-carts to the train and got them away in safety.

The rioting was done mostly by Sikhs on one side and Moslems on the other and the stories told are past comprehension for sheer cruelty. They ended suddenly when the rivers overflowed in unprecedented flood—both sides said it was punishment.

There are 1700 boys and 600 girls in the school. You would have been interested to see the girls building. We went up some funny old steps and suddenly found ourselves in a Moslem courtyard with high four-story buildings around the courtyard.

So many of the Moslem homes are built in the same way and, often, the women folk never leave the court and sometimes hardly leave their apartments lest another man cast his eyes upon them.

A doctor told me of a Moslem father bringing his two children to the hospital with hones unbelieveably deformed by rickets. It turned out that they had never left their mother's apartment and small sunless court in all their lives.

Which brings me to the three nderful hospitals we have seen oast few days. One of them

frict 30 by 50 miles in which are 400 villages and, in the villages, already 20,000 who have become Christians. We went with them to a village where George helped consecrate the land for a new church.

I wish you could have seen inside one or two of the Christian homes and then gone, as we did, to some of the others. The difference in cleanliness and happiness was enormous.

The village was built by a small pond which served as the public bath, the sewer and the place where the buffalo were scrubbed. From it was also obtained mud for building the houses.

This was a good village for there were two wells, a separate one for the Christians as the Moslems would not allow them to drink from theirs.

The houses were all of mud and squarish, with one doorway and no window and with a stairway outside (often very crude) up to the low flat roof—like the house in Nazareth where Jesus lived as a boy. The village must have been much the same. There was a little court in front of each house, often with a low mud wall, in which was a rought fireplace. Inside the houses was a chest, a bed or two piled one on the other and a shelf on which were the shiny family pans, trays, etc., kept for weddings and special occasions.

The new church has to be on the edge of the village because the leading Moslem does not wish his women-folk to hear the singing of hymns but it is to be next to the village school which the Llewelyns had first established. So we all sat on hoards or on the ground and dedicated the land for the first church.

Afterwards one of the men insisted we go and see some of sugaring "just around the corner." It turned out to be about a mile but it was worth the journey. We saw the cane cut and put through a press turned by oxen, the sap boiled in a huge flat pan at least six feet in diameter and then the crude sugar, dirt and all, made into balls for refining. We came away with sugar canes and balls of sugar which we would have loved to have brought home to America.

The Llewellyns also supervise two primary schools for village children and are showing them a new way of living. Of course they do not look after the 400 villages alone but they need much more help than they have.

Before we left for the border and Ferozepur we had morning prayers with the workmen and staff on the compound. It was a ıost moving experience. You lt that God was there in the with us.

Make Tentative Plans For Carey Summer Day Camp

Tentative pans for the open of the Carey Day Camp were announced this week by Bob and Bill Carey, Michigan State athletes who operate the camp.

The camp will open on or about July 1 for its third season and will run for at least eight weeks, depending on the demand.

The program, as in the past will accent out-of-door activities including games, swimming, hiking and handicraft. The camp week will be from Monday through Friday with the last day being devoted to an all-day camping outing.

Transportation will be provided by the Kiddie-Carey-All a large Chevrolet truck complete with canopy and cover against the elements.

The twins, Bob and Bill, as they are familiarly known, will return here following the close of the school year at Michigan State prior to opening the popular camp.

O. G. Eskeland Of Norway Pays District Visit

O. G. Eskeland of Rogaland, Norway, visited the United States on a World Health Organization Fellowship, visited the District Department of Health No. 3 here recently.

While here he visited the Grandvue Hospital at East Jordan and the Meadowbrook Hospital at Bellaire in Antrim county for the purpose of studing the methods by which the small county-financed hospitals are organized and operated.

Mr. Eskeland was particularly interested in public health organization and the country health service system as part of the national service organization, combining economy with high medical standards.

He left here for the Soo for a brief visit before continuing his tour of American hospitals, health centers and health departments.

Bank Provides A New Service

A new service to persons who borrow money on extended payments has been instituted by the Charlevoix State Savings Bank, according to Archie Livingston, cashier. Under the plan the borrower is automatically insured for the amount of the loan, up to $2,000.

Mr. Livingston states that this service provides security for the borrower and his survivors by providing the money to pay back any unpaid amount due on the loan in event of the death of the borrower.

"It is very satifying to us to know that our bank will be able to provide comfort instead of additional financial worries to those loved ones left behind should any of our insured borrowers not live to pay their indebtedness", says Livingston

Spraying Season Is On

A demonstration of different spray materials to control cherry leaf spot is being carried on at the farm of Bert Lumley near Boyne City, Ed Rebman, county agricultural agent, announced today. Ed Andrews, plant pathologist from Michigan State college, is cooperating in this demonstration by furnishing some of the different materials that are being used.

Five spray materials are being used to tell the exactness in the control of cherry leaf spot in these northern growing conditions. These materials are as follows: Spraycop, Ferbam, Orthocide 406, Craig Fruit Fungicide and Diathene. Mr. Lumley has always used Spraycop and the other four materials are being tested along with the balance of the orchard that he is spraying with his own material. In the spray tanks using Spraycop, Craig and Diathene, lime is also being used. All the tanks also had two pounds of lead arsenate to control tent caterpiller.

There will be only three sprays applied before harvest and one after-harvest spray. The first spray was put on Monday, May 26. The second spray will be applied on June 5 and the last spray applied on June 16. Timing is the most important factor in the control of leaf spot. At the stage of three quarters petal fall there are about four or five days when material can be applied to kill the spores that will be coming from the old leaves underneath the trees. Each one of these materials will then give protection for ten days. Thus the last spray applied on June 16 will protect the orchard through June 26.

Another important factor in controlling leaf spot is thoroughness of application of material. Many growers either do not have the right type of disk in their guns or they do not get all the leaves completely covered with spray material. The first spray that was applied on the Bert Lumley orchard took on the average of five gallons of material per tree. There are 168 trees in the orchard and 24 trees are being sprayed with each of the four materials and Spraycop is being used on the balance of the trees.

Cherry growers who are interested are urged to stop over at the Bert Lumley orchard anytime to check on these different materials. When the season is over actual count will be made of leaves to determine how active each of the materials that were used.

Nature's Fibers Provide Comfort In Summer Clothes

Man-made fibers shouldn't dim the homemaker's eyes to some of nature's wonderful fibers, advises Marjorie Eastman, extension specialist in textiles, clothing and related arts for Michigan State college's school of home economics.

The advent of the summer season should increase our appreciation of such a fiber as cotton, Miss Eastman believes. "Think of the impressive qualities we could attribute to cotton," she says. "It stands heat and washing; doesn't melt or stretch when ironed; absorbs moisture; and resists alkalis."

Cotton's toughness and durability make it the logical choice year-around for work clothes, house dresses and many children's garments. Cotton dresess appear in all form from casual sportswear to festive and expensive evening gowns.

Summer cottons are interesting for their textures, the clothing specialist points out. A variety of weaves and finishes permits any number of pleasing materials.

Smooth, glazed surfaces, as in taffetized cotton prints or chambrays are among the best sellers. They are shiny and crisp and shed dust and dirt. Make sure the glaze is guaranteed to be permanent, however.

Embossed fabrics resist crushing and soiling. They make fine play clothes, sun dresses and street wear. Again, make sure the embossed pattern is permanent.

Any one of a number of cotton materials has a place in the summer wardrobe—calico, gingham, pique, denim, and others. Each has its own particular advantage.

A final suggestion offered by Miss Eastman for summer coolness and comfort is the variety of cotton sheers which can be fitted into any warm weather wardrobe.

X-Ray Findings

U.S public health service experiences with mass x-rays shows that about 1.5 per cent of the 20,500,000 examined annually—or 307,500 persons—would be found in each of the first five years to have reinfection-type tuberculosis requiring further diagnosis.

Three Methods Given To Spray Weeds In Corn

Spraying with 2-4-D can help kill weeds in your corn field and usually reduce the number of cultivations, Ed Rebman, county agricultural agent, said today. He said that care must be taken in using the chemical, but if you have the right equipment and have weeds that are killed by 2,4-D, spraying can be both economical and effective. Three generally recognized methods may be used with corn.

A post-emergence spray may be put on instead of the first cultivation. Rate of application varies from one-fourth to one-half pound acid equivalent per acre. One-fourth pound is recommended for ester formulations. Spraying at this time has the advantage of hitting the weeds when they are most easily killed. Also you can spray fields that are to wet to cultivate. However, there is a possibility of causing some damage to the corn.

Some farmers prefer to apply 2,4-D after the last cultivation. This method has the advantage of checking weed growth later in the season and hitting the corn when it isn't hurt so much by the spray. Therefore, you can use a heavier rate of application of 2,4-D. Special equipment will be needed and material will cost more if heavier application is made.

Pre-emergency spraying is another method. If corn is sprayed before it comes up, it can stand up to two pounds of 2,4-D per acre. However, dry soil may make the treatment ineffective while wet weather may cause more injury to the corn. Soils high in organic matter will require more 2,4-D than soils low in organic matter. Pre-emergency treatments are not recommended for sandy soils.

A modified pre-emergency spray on corn can be made by applying the chemical just as the corn seedlings are shown above ground, but before the leaves unroll. At this time, a one pound rate will reduce the number of annual grasses as well as broad-leaved annual weeds.

Engineers Suggest Labor Saving Idea

A suggestion for saving labor in getting water to field water tanks comes from Michigan State college agricultural engineers. They point out that some farmers may want to look into the possibilities of the new plastic pipe now becoming available.

It is light, flexible, easy to handle and is not subject to rust or corrision. You can cut the material with a pocket knife and a screwdriver will secure the fittings, making installation easy. For temporary service, unroll it on top of the ground. For longer use, it should be covered to protect it from sunlight.

Poultry Expert Suggests Ways To Combat Heat

Hot weather is coming along to pose some new egg marketing problems for flock owners of Michigan. William A. Aho, Michigan State College poultry specialist, has some suggestions along this line.

He says that eggs should be gathered often, and stored in a moist place at a temperature of 55 degrees to maintain good quality. Also they should be marketed at least twice a week.

Most all flock owners feel they have to wash eggs at one time or another. Aho cites work done at the New Jersey Experimental stations which seems to have the answer for doing the job right.

Their work shows that eggs can be collected in wire baskets and ducked in a detergent solution made at the rate of one-half pint detergent to six gallons of water. The solution should be about 140 degrees and the eggs should be rinsed after ducking with a clean, forced spray of tap water at 140 degrees.

If they are then air-dried by a fan, they maintain quality equal to unwashed eggs under comparable conditions.

Aho also suggests putting a small basket on the side of the egg-gathering basket for collecting the dirties. In this way they won't contact the clean eggs.

New Systems Of Hay Making Are Of Local Value

Two new systems of making hay are interesting a greater number of Charlevoix county farmers than ever before, says Ed Rebman, county agricultural agent.

The two methods are grass silage and chopped hay—sometimes referred to as mow-finishing. D. L. Clanahan, of the Michigan State college farm crops department, says that both involve use of the field forage-harvester and are designed with the main purpose of saving labor and saving quality in the harvested crop.

Agent Rebman agrees with Clanahan that no "best method" for all farms and situations is available. A silo is necessary for the grass-silage and a mow-drier for chopped hay, in addition to the field harvester.

The objectives of saving the crop from field spoilage, leaf loss and loss of feeding value are met by both methods. Making grass silage almost completely avoids field spoilage and leaf losses. Mow-finishing helps get the job done before the crop becomes over-mature and takes some of the weather hazard out of the job because field exposure time is reduced.

Mow-finishing of chopped hay enables the operator to have feed of lower fiber, higher protein and higher total digestible nutrients, Clanahan concludes.

Horizontal silos are not new to many Michigan farms, though they have not been used extensively in recent years. County agricultural agent, Ed Rebman, reports a new interest in this method of preserving forage.

The horizontal silo can be used either for permanent or temporary storage for silage. Most horizontal silos are at least partially dug into the ground. Where a side hill is available, the horizontal silo can be construeted.

R. L. Maddex. Michigan State college extension agricultural engineer, advises that some type of material should be used to cover the side walls of permanent horizontal silos. Planks, preferably creosoted field stones plastered to give a smooth inside surface and reinforced concrete, serve very well for this purpose.

Location of the silo so that there is surface drainage away from the silo is important. The practice of locating the silo away from the barn in order to obtain the right ground level is being adopted by many farmers. Silage is then fed outside in bunks near the entrance to the horizontal silo.

There is a definite width to is to result. About a foot of silage per week should be fed across height ratio if minimum spoilage the face of the silo to prevent excessive spoilage.

Feed Prospects Look Better For Hog Raisers

The ratio which shows how many bushels of corn are equal in value to 100 pounds of live hog now indicates that prospects are becoming better for hog production.

Robert C. Kramer, Michigan State College agricultural economist, points out that the cost of producing 100 pounds of live hog compared with the selling price leaves some profit. But he says that several factors indicate this relationship will become even better by this fall.

Soft corn and a "short" crop has made the price of corn higher during the past six months than a year earlier. Hog prices have averaged a little lower than a year ago.

Kramer points out that the annual pig crop in the United States has increased since 1946, reaching a total of 102 million head in 1951. So prices have broken and indications are that the downward phase of the hog production cycle has begun. This downward phase of the cycle should last only two or three years. Beginning this summer, the number of hogs slaughtered will reflect the smaller pig crop this spring. Prices will rise this summer and reach a peak in August or September, Kramer believes.

The MSC agricultural economist says that figures indicate farmers should plan now for fall and winter litters. Hogs will become relatively more profitable. If we have a normal corn crop this year, 1953 should be a good hog year. So, if you are efficient hog producer, stay in the hog business.

Council Approves Plan For Lower Electric Rate

Establishment of a special rate of 1½ cents per kilowat for electric hot water heaters was tentatively approved Monday evening by the city council. The low rate, if adopted, will be effective only during the low load periods of the municipal power plant. Current used during the peak load periods would be metered at the regular rates now in force.

A special installation of time clock and meter will be necessary in order to offer the special rate. Cost to the customer for special installation is under study.

Purpose of the plan is to encourage more use of available electricity for hot water heating during the low load periods by offering a substantial saving to the customer. By connecting the water heaters to the time clock the current wil automatically be measured on the low rate meter during specified periods of the day and through the regular meter during peak load periods.

Take Soundings In Local Channel

The U. S. Lake Survey crew was in Charlevoix early this week taking soundings in the upper and lower channels.

The soundings are taken to determine if dredging operations are needed in the area.

with other teams throughout the area.

Fifteen local merchants have contributed funds for new uniforms for the team.

Perry Smith will serve as team manager, Herb Schofield as business manager and Ken Cellner and Mr. Terrill as assistant managers.

Plans are also underway for the construction of a new hardball diamond on the old golf course property on the north side.

3. Swimming. This will be set up under the direction of a qualified life guard who has an instructor's certificate. Classes for all age groups will be held and will include a program for beginners, intermediates and more advanced groups. Junior and senior life-saving will also become a part of the program.

An effort will also be made to set up a schedule whereby the instructor may give private swimming instructions in his free time.

4. Shuffleboard. Eight new courts built this spring for night use plus four others at the Lake Michigan beach will furnish plenty of space for a good program. Mr. Terrill plans to set up leagues and have tournaments during the summer months. At the present time leadership in the program is needed. Interested parties are asked to contact Mr. Terrill.

5. Tot Lots. This program will furnish supervised playground for the children in the four to nine year old class. The children will attend the lot for a nominal fee. It is necessary to work this program on a commercial basis for the present as no funds are available for the program.

The first 'tot lot' would be near the American Legion building where some facilities are now available. Playground equipment and sand boxes will be placed there for entertainment of the youngsters for two hours each morning and afternoon. Parents will sign with a qualified instructor who will care for the children during that time.

If the plan is successful, the program will be expanded with tot lots in other sections of the city operated by college girls.

6. Tennis. For the time being the existing courts will be used and hours of play will be scheduled as in the past. Plans are being made for new courts so the program may be expanded in the future.

At the present time efforts are being made to interest all age groups in the various programs. Mr. Terrill urges that you select your sport and sign up for it. If you need more information, call him.

Playground equipment of all kinds including swings, slides, sandboxes and toys are needed for the tot lot. If you have such equipment and would care to donate it for use in the program, call Mr. Terrill.

Council Adopts Water Heater Electric Rate

The proposed new electric rate for hot-water heaters on an off-peak basis was adopted at a special meeting of the city council last week.

The new rate, set at 1½ cents per kilowatt hour, will be available to users as soon as new timing-meter devices can be installed. The device will be leased to the customer at the cost of $27.00.

At present the lowest available rate is 2½ cents per kilowatt hour and this rate applies only after 100 kwh have been used at rates of beginning at seven cents per kwh.

The council also approved the plans for the new four-lane highway from the intersection of Michigan and Dixon avenues to the city limits on US-31.

Tentative plans call for the construction of the new highway this year some time after Sept. 2.

The highway will be constructed by the State Highway Department with the city paying 25 percent of the cost or $36,000, to be paid over a period of five years from revenues derived from the new Highway tax.

Grangers Mark Rural Roads In Barnard District

Signposts indicating the names of rural roads southwest of Charlevoix are being erected by the Barnard Grange as one project in the community service program sponsored by the organization this year.

First markers appeared on the Barnard road Mondoy evening when a crew of Grangers, equipped with post-hole diggers, shovels, and carpenter tools, launched into the final task of setting the sign posts at intersections.

Names have been given to all rural roads between the Barnard road and US-31, from the Charlevoix city limits south to the Antrim county line. Recognition was given early settlers in selecting appropriate names. Included among the names are Heise, Paddock, Parson, Harwood Lake, Potter, Matchett, and Beattie.

All materials for the project have been furnished hy Grange members who also are doing all the work from making and painting the signs to placing them at the proper intersections. The work has been carried on during the Grangers "spare" time in the evening and it is planned to have the job completed with a few more evening sessions. The next one will be Monday evening.

Naming of the rural roads is the last of three projects sponsored by the Barnard Grange this year in a national community service cootest with a $15,000 cash award as first prize. Other prizes in the national contest total $11,000. In addition there are a number of $100 and $50 awords on the state level.

Venetian Queen Will Be Named Next Tuesday

It's that time again . . . time to think of selecting Charlevoix's 1952 Venetian Queen.

Names of candidates are now being accepted.

The 1952 Queen will be selected at a luncheon sponsored by the Charlevoix Lions Club Tuesday. Deadline for entering is noon Monday, June 16.

Charlevoix's Venetian Queen will also represent the city as candidate for Cherry Queen in a contest to be held in Traverse City later this month.

City Welcomes Bay City C. Of C.

Charlevoix will be host to the Bay City Chamber of Commerce when their annual cruise ship, the North American, docks here Friday afternoon, June 13.

The ship will dock about 2:30 and remain until early Saturday morning.

S. E. Coleman, secretary of the Charlevoix Board of Commerce has announced plans to entertain the guests while they are in Charlevoix. Arrangements have been made for golf at the Belevedere golf course, fishing trips and a tour of the city as well as a reception at the Charlevoix Beach Hotel Marine Room.

Mobile Blood Unit Will Visit County Later This Month

Wanted: 220 registered bluud donors for June 24 and 25.

That is the request that has gone out from the Charlevoix county chapter of the American Red Cross, which is cooperating with the Michigan Department of Health in the annual blood procurement program.

The mobile blood unit with its entire staff will be at the high school in East Jordan June 24 from 3 to 9 p.m. and the following day, Wednesday, June 25, will be at the high school in Charlevoix at the same hours.

The goal for the county has been set at 200 pints.

A part of the blood donated will be sent directly to the armed forces while the remainder will be processed into blood plasma and fractions for use by residents of Charlevoix county.

That blood plasma is a necessity in the treatment of illnesses and injuries today is shown by the amount used by county residents during the past year.

At the Charlevoix hospital alone 65 pints of plasma have been used in the past year while an additional 52 pints have been administered to patients hospitalized at four other hospitals outside the county.

There is no immediate record of who received the plasma at the Charlevoix hospital but among those receiving plasma in hospitals outside the county were 17 Boyne City residents, 18 Charlevoix residents, six each from East Jordan and Walloon Lake, four from Beaver Island and one from Boyne Falls.

Charlevoix county's last blood procurement was held in Boyne City in February, 1951 and at that time only 99 pints of blood were collected and a percentage of that was sent to the armed forces.

This should give everyone a true picture of the situation and show the immediate need for blood and blood plasma.

There's no way of telling when you or someone dear to you may need plasma . . . there's no telling when someone you know in the armed forces may need a transfusion of whole blood to save his life . . . So sign up as soon as possible for the clinics in East Jordan and Charlevoix June 24 and 25.

In East Jordan Mrs. Ted Malpass is chairman; in Charlevoix, Mrs. Robert Wexstaff; in Boyne City, Mrs. H. W. Patrick or Mrs. Don Haig. Mrs. R. G. Bennett of Charlevoix is Charlevoix county blood chairman

Bright Mantle Of Freedom

"We will take the stars from the heavens; we will take the red of our mother country, separating the red by white stripes indicating that we are permanently separated from her. And those white stripes in that flag will go down in history as representing freedom."

Thus the words of George Washington were quoted recently by Judge Charles L. Brown as he explained the meaning of the American flag at a recent naturalization ceremony here.

He went on to say "Flags of other countries have glorious pasts, but this flag of ours has a glorious future.

"It represents man's desire for freedom.

"But that freedom and the strength of that flag and what it represents is only as strong as the people . . . each and every citizen . . . which the flag represents. We are only as strong as the strongest and we are just as weak as the weakest.

"So it will be up to you to see to it that the flag which has flown so many years, and which represents a glorious past and will represent a more glorious future, will continue to represent a group of American citizens who are just as strong as our forefathers would have them be, and that will grow stronger as the years go by."

Judge Brown's admonition should invoke serious thought as the 175th anniversary of the adoption of the stars and stripes. Flag Day is observed Saturday, June 14.

Do We Want Advertising On Meter Posts?

Some weeks ago the city council authorized the placing of two advertising signs on top of a parking meter. The object was to arouse public comment, either for or against having this type of advertising on all city parking meters.

Apparently the two signs have attracted little notice, possibly because the public is not aware of the main objective.

An advertising agency has offered to pay the city 50 cents per month per meter for the privilege of attaching advertising signs to the meters. This would net the city a sizable revenue. The advertising agency would carry its own liability insurance.

When the proposal was made many residents, including the editor of the Courier, were opposed on the grounds that advertising signs atop all meters would detract from the beauty of the city and cheapen the appearance of the business section.

Now the council would like to know the attitude of the public before signing a contract for the rental of the meter posts to an advertising concern. Rresidents are asked to express their opinion, either in writing or in person, to the council. Public letters to the Courier will also aid in determining the action of the council.

Mr. and Mrs. John Plumm of the Soo visited over the week-end with his brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. George Plumm.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter H. Timmer and sons, Howard and Phil, have moved to their summer home at Ellsworth for the summer months.

What with spring and flowers and what have you being discussed now that spring's really here . . . there's the rose peony in the R. G. Bennett's yard . . . They tell us they're lovely with a flower like a rose but with the texture and leaf of a peony . . . Last week one day it boasted 31 blossoms . . . And Mrs. F. E. Stroud was telling us about the lilac bush in her yard with more blossoms then she'd ever seen on it . . How about the tolip tree in St. Mary's cemetery? . . . Haven't heard anything about that this spring . . .

MANY THINGS must go when buildings are constructed, we know, but one of the things we hate the most is the removal of trees . . . It takes so many years for them to grow it seems a shame . . Some of the little red maples in the school yard had to be removed to make way for the school . . . aleng with other trees including an old, old beech tree . . It took the workmen quite a while to pull it over but when they did it snapped off, showing it's days were limited because it was rotting at the bottom . . . Miss Frances Milner told us a little story about that particular tree . . . Seems there was a hole in it and every fall the youngsters gathered acorns from a nearby oak tree and placed them in the hole for the squirrels . . . One day they would place the nuts in the hole the next day they'd take them out again to see if the squirrels had taken any . . . The squirrels will have to find other benefactors after this year . . .

AND SPEAKING of squirrels . . . Mrs. Eva Smith at the Tower Hotel was telling us about her early guests at the hotel . . . One day recently Clarence Francis found a baby squirrel on the porch . . . it looked half-starved so he took it to Mrs. Smith and went back to work . . . only to find that a second baby squirrel had put in an appearance . . . They decided something must have happened to the mother squirrel and the little ones were starving, so with the help of a medicine-dropper, two little squirrels are doing nicely, thank you . .

PEOPLE WILL beat a path to your door for many reasons, as Glenn Pemberton is finding out . . In his case it's the first television in town that people know about . . . Seems he gets pretty good reception, at times, that is, . . . but there's no controlling the clouds from which it's bouncing so one's never sure of a program . . . But it's something to look forward to . . . Every kid in town sure is, for a lot of them are visiting Glenn's shop every day in the hopes of seeing something . . .

"BO" BOWMAN told us this one the other day and it seems like a tall-tale, but he swears it's true . . . Seems he and Floyd Brown were coming up M-66 one night last week when they spotted a little black and white woods kitty in the road . . . Hoping to avoid the odiferous animal, they pulled around him but the little guy was of a suspicious nature and he used his only defense . . . Result: Bo and Brownie had to vacate the car 'til the air cleared and then made for home . . . smelling much unlike violets . . . If you know what we mean . . .

THE Charlevoix high school band members were at Mackinac Island Sunday to march in the Lilac Festival parade . . . as you no doubt know . . . But their greatest thrill came when the parade marshall asked if they would play the Star Spangled Banner . . . under the portico at the Grand Hotel for the several hundred delegates to the Moral Re-Armament World Assembly in session there . . . The delegates from 40 countries around the world were dressed in their native costumes for the occasion . . Mr. Odmark was telling that the youngsters got quite a thrill . . . Who wouldn't . . .

THIS JOB has its compensations most of the time, as you've heard us say many times . . . But once in a while it's tough going . . . and this week was one of the times . . . We had to write about a young man who died last week, Chuck Wells . . . He graduated from high school with us . . . and now he's the third member of our class to leave us . . . We haven't seen too much of Chuck in recent years but that didn't keep us from hearing of him . . . what a good friend and neighbor he was, how he cared for his folks when they were old, all the little things that made him loved by all who knew him . . . Words are of little consolation to his family at this time, we know, but we would like to say that everyone has said but one thing of him . . . He was a good man . . . . What higher tribute could one ask . . .

Marjorie Small, F. O. Ayres Jr. Wed In Petoskey

The First Presbyterian church in Petoskey was the scene of the wedding Saturday afternoon of Miss Marjorie L. Small and Floyd O. Ayres, Jr.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Small of Sao Paulo, Brazil, and the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McKeachie of Petoskey. Mr. Ayres is the son of Mrs. Floyd O. Ayres, Sr. of South Haven and the late Mr. Ayres.

The Rev. Lloyd G. Brassure read the double ring service before an altar decorated with baskets of white gladioli, peonies and snapdragons and lighted tapers in candelabra.

Mrs. Norman Risk was organist and played a program of traditional wedding music and the wedding march.

The bride was given in marriage by her uncle, C. T. McKeachie of St. Johns. She selected a ballerina-length gown of white Chantilly lace fashioned with a full skirt and a short fitted jacket of lace, which was worn over the strapless bodice. A cap of pleated nylon tulle and seed pearls held her short veil of nylon illusion. For the occasion she carried a cascade bouquet of lillies of the valley and ivy centered with a white orchid.

Miss Martha R. Gleason of Boston, Mass., was the maid of honor and Mrs. Harry Stutt of Charlevoix was matron of honor.

They wore identical ballerina-length gown of pale green net over taffeta with net stoles over the strapless bodices. Each wore a tiara of yellow rosebuds and carried a cascade bouquet of yellow gladioli and ivy.

John M. Ayres of New Buffalo was his brother's best man and Benjamin Porter of Hawks and Mr. Stutt seated the guests.

For her grand-daughter's wedding Mrs. McKeachie wore a rose crepe dress and grey accessories. The bridegroom's mother wore a coral nylon dress and white accessories. Both wore corsages of gardenias.

Girligigs

Pigeons are pouting these days . . . it seems that their mysterious sense of direction is being all fowled up by radio and television waves. Or . . . they could just be figuring that the trip really isn't necessary.

We may be missing something by not having television here . . . not yet. But at least we don't have to clutter up our scenery with various Tinker Toy arrangements on all our roof-tops, do we?

I read the other day about an Indian tribe in Brazil where the father of the bride still has something to say. He sets the day for a foot race and if the fella doesn't catch up with the gal . . . well, he has no squaw(k) coming. Naturally.

In the long run, our system is better, I think. But here's a hint to you June brides . . . "A wedding ring is like a tourniquet . . . it stops circulation."

They NOW say a good way to lose weight is . . . hrag it off! Then when you get skinny, start making new friends.

And now it's the bunny tail that is replacing the pony tail. Well, I'd rather be a little behind in things than a big behind.

Patricia Jablinsky Becomes Bride Of Samuel Hamilton

Saturday morning Miss Patricia Mae Jablinsky, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Jablinsky, and Ralph Samuel Hamilton, Jr. exchanged wedding vows at St. Mary's church. Mr. Hamilton is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph S. Hamilton, Sr.

The Rev. Max Ostrowski of Boyne City performed the ceremony in the presence of one hundred guests. White lilacs and yellow tulips adorned the altar for the occasion.

St. Mary's choir sang the Nuptial Mass and Mrs. Cornelius Geiken was soloist.

Escorted to the altar by her father, the bride chose a gown of white French Chantilly lace and net over satin. The lace bodice had a high net yoke, long sleeves and a circular lace overskirt. The full skirt ended in a chapel length train. A halo of orange blossoms held the nylon net fingertip veil and she carried a bouquet of pink roses centered with a gardenia.

Mary Alice Lagerman attended the bride as maid of honor and bridesmaid was Betty Warner. They wore ballerina length gowns of dotted nylon over taffeta. The gowns were in shades of orchid and yellow respectively. They had matching headdress of sweetpeas and carried colonial bouquets of the same flowers.

The bridegroom's best man was his brother, Nicholas Hamilton. William Wallace was groomsman and George Haggard and Gerald Left were ushers.

Acolytes tor the Nuptial Mass were William Bennett and William Sipple.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Jablinsky chose a navy suit and white accessories. Mrs. Hamilton, mother of the bridegroom, wore a navy and white redingote and white accessories. Each had a corsage of red roses.

A reception at the Tower Hotel followed the ceremony. Mrs. Clyde Warner, Mrs. Leslie Smith and Mrs. Charles Alward assisted.

For traveling on their wedding trip to southern Michigan the bride chose a royal blue knitted dress, white accessories and a gardenia corsage. Upon their return the couple will live at 403½ East Dixon ave.

Both are graduates of the Charlevoix high school.

Parsons-Carey Exchange Vows In Mason Church

Mr. and Mrs. Donald G. Carey will make their home in Charlevoix for the summer after returning from a wedding trip through northern Michigan. The couple was married at the Mason Presbyterian church May 31.

The bride is the former Joan Mary Parsons, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Parsons of Mason and the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Leo Carey of Charlevoix.

The Rev. Paul L. Arnold read the double ring service before an altar decorated with gladioli, palms and candelabra.

Mrs. E. G. Millard, soloist, sang several selections, accompanied by Mrs. N. S. Davis who also played the traditional wedding marches.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a ballerina length strapless gown of French nylon lace and net. Her fitted lace jacket buttoned to the waist and had long sleeves. The full skirt had tiers of lace and net. A tiara of stephanotis and pearls held her fingertip veil and she carried a bouquet of red and white roses.

Mrs. Raymond Snider, matron of honor, and Gloria Rathburn, bridesmaid, wore ballerina length strapless gowns with matching stoles in lavender and green respectively. Each wore a matching tiara and carried a bouquet of garden flowers.

William Carey assisted his brother as best man and another brother, Robert Carey, William Parsons, brother of the bride, and Edward Ware were ushers.

Mrs. Parsons selected a gown of lilac brocade and purple accessories. Mrs. Carey wore a navy and white dress and matching accessories. Each had a corsage of white roses.

A reception followed in the church parlors. A three-tiered wedding cake topped with wedding bells centered the refreshment table. Assisting at the table were Mrs. S. E. Coleman of Charlevoix, Mrs. John Swanson of Sturgis, Betty Hinkle and Sue Bergeon.

For traveling on their northern Michigan wedding trip the bride chose a rose suit, navy accessories and a corsage of red roses.

The bride is a graduate of the Mason high school. Mr. Carey, a navy veteran of World War II, is a graduate of the Charlevoix high school and Alma College. He is coach at the Mason high school and will return to his position after spending the summer here.

Guests were present from Grosse Pointe, Spring Lake, Detroit, Sturgis, Port Huron, Canada, New Baltimore, Lansing, Mason, Mulliken, Flint, Midland, Dearborn, Ithaca, Wyandotte, Royal Oak, Mt. Clemens, Cedar Springs, Williamston and Plymouth.

From where I sit ... by Joe Marsh

"Good Neighbor Policy"

Remember one time when I told about the old loose-stone wall that separated Easy Roberts' property from Handy Peterson's?

That was when they decided they really didn't need the wall between them in the first place — so they simply stopped repairing it.

Now I hear where a fellow, who bought the old Johnson place, wants to buy all those stones. It seems he figures a stone wall is just what's needed on his property.

From where I sit, if that fellow wants to build himself a stone wall, that's his business. But if it's not really serving any useful purpose he may sooner or later discover —just like Handy and Easy did— that he'd be just as well off without one. Even some old-fashioned walls of prejudice are disappearing— like those that would deny a person's right to a friendly glass of beer now and then. Most Americans are learning that "walls" can get in the way of the persons inside as well as the persons outside.

Somebody's Going to be Surprised!

Well, it's Junetime—and the top is down—and his heart is filled with memories . . . and where do you think he's going?

He's going halfway up the hill, to a spot where a lane strays into the wildwood and he can glimpse the top of a fieldstone chimney above the trees. That's his lane—and he's going home!

It has been a well-guarded secret. Just two people have known about it all these months—himself and his Cadillac dealer.

To make doubly sure, he has hinted at everything under the sun as a fitting tribute to this wedding anniversary — except a Cadillac!

Well, it won't be long now. He's getting closer and closer. And now the stones in the driveway crunch under the wheels . . . he gives the familiar three "toots" on the horn . . . and then she sees him, with his cap in his hand, bowing and pointing to the driver's seat.

Surprised? Never so much in all her life. And never more thrilled—for it's the "car of cars" for the "day of days"!

And is he happy!

Maybe it has taken him ten years—or fifteen—or even twenty . . . to make his dream come true.

But during all this time he never wavered in what he wanted. He wanted to make one anniversary mean something special above all the rest . . . by the gift of a Cadillac.

Perhaps, as you read this, you are looking forward to some very special anniversary of your own.

If you are—and you're planning on giving the gift of gifts—then you'd better come in and see us soon.

We've kept many and many a secret, for many and many a man—so you may trust us not to tell!

We'd be delighted to see you . . . at any time you find convenient.

Extension Clubs Close Year With Family Night

The Charlevoix county Extension group concluded its activities for the year with an achievement program and social gathering at the Community Church of God Fellowship hall Thursday evening.

Mrs. Emma Reinbold, district Home demonstration agent, greeted the members and their families numbering more than 125 who gathered for the event.

Ed Rebman, Charlevoix county agricultural agent, spoke briefly and commended the members on the work accomplished during the program.

George Johnson, Cheboygan agricultural agent, who had studied in Sweden in 1946, showed movies taken then and gave an interesting conmmetary on the country and its people and industry.

Mrs. William Boss of Ellsworth, program chairman, presented an entertaining program which included piano solo and vocal selections by Jean, Jane and Joan Slough and Lois Boss; and a one-act play, "Glamour on the Farm" with Mrs. Milton Donaldson of East Jordan and Mrs. Roy Studenmier and Mrs. August Bullman of Ellsworth portraying the characters and a reading by Mrs. James D. Frost of East Jordan.

A cake walk and a potluck lunch concluded the evening.

Exhibited were many lamps, lamp shades, rugs and other items made during the year.

The county organization is composed of 15 clubs totalling a membership of approximately 400.

A delegation of approximately 12 members are planning to attend the annual Homemakers Conference at Michigan State College July 22-25, Mrs. Reinbold said.

Permanent pastures that are thin and weak can be improved considerably by renovation, according to MSC farm crops specialists.

Make First Check Of Oat Growth On Demonstration Plots

PLOW WEEDER
TNT PLOW DISC SPIKE
DISC SPIKE

The center plot fitted with the TNT plow, the disk harrow and the spike tooth harrow looks the best. The plot (right) that was fitted with the field cultivator is the weediest and the poorest looking one. The left plot fitted in a single operation with the plow and weeder appears to be the second best plot.

The oat variety plots on the Charles and Tony Faculak farm are coming along in good shape. Dry weather has slowed up some of the growth of the oats but the rain that we have had in the last week or two has done wonders for small grains.

There is quite a discussion as to which is the best looking plot. According to Tony Faculak, the best looking one is the one that was fitted with a TNT plow, disked twice and spiked twice. Ed Rebman, county agricultural agent, also likes the TNT plot but believes that the plot that was fitted with the plow and the clodbuster also looked very good.

As a general rule the best looking plots are those that were plowed. They are cleaner and freer from weeds. Also the oats in these plots are up taller and look better. The weediest plot, if you can call red clover weeds, are those plots that are not plowed. The weediest plot is the one on which the field cultivator was used. Next comes the plots fitted by the chisel plow and the disk harrow. The plots fitted by the disk plow and the disk tiller have a few weeds in them.

Tony Faculak stated that he would like to spray the plots for wild mustard. County agent Rebman suggested that spray should not be applied until the oats are 6 to 8 inches high. The oats at this stage of the game are more tolerant to weed killer and young weeds are the most susceptible. Since there is alfalfa planted in these oat plots a Dinitro Selective spray would be safer to use than 2, 4-D.

Plans are being made to keep watch of these plots all summer long. Prior to harvest a meeting will be held at the site of these plots so that farmers may see some of the results. In the meantime, farmers are urged by the Faculaks and by Ed Rebman, county agricultural agent, to visit these plots whenever possible.

Farmers Urged To Cull Flocks Now To Reduce Losses

At present egg prices, farmers can't afford to pay room and board for loafing hens. So Ed Rebman, county agricultural agent, today advised a culling job to help bolster sagging profits.

Rebman said that bleaching in yellow-skinned hens is a good sign of how long they've been laying-however, it works only for the first six months of laying.

He explained that pigment from yellow corn and green feed ends up in the fat of a young chicken's skin. When laying begins, the pigment goes directly to color the yolk. So long as "Biddy" keeps laying, her skin keeps on losing its yellow color until it is completely bleached.

You can estimate how long a bird has been laying by the color pattern, Rebman pointed out. The yellow color leaves the vent seven to ten days after a hen starts laying, the eye ring after two weeks, the earlobes in three weeks, the beak in six weeks, front of the shanks in 18 weeks and heel of the shanks in 20 to 24 weeks. The yellow color leaves the backs of the hocks and tops of the toes last.

When laying stops, the color returns to various parts of the hen's skin in the same order in which it bleached—but much faster. If color is coming back, it means that the hen is loafing on the job and you're feeding her with no return.

DHIA Cows Set New State Record

A new all-time high in production has been set by cows in the Michigan Dairy Herd Improvement Association testing program, according to L. A. Johnson, Michigan State College extension dairyman and head of the state DHIA program.

The new record was set in 1951; results of which have just been tabulated by the state association. The record was 9,466 pounds of milk and 373 pounds of butterfat per cow. The previous record of 9,221 pounds of milk and 366 pounds of butterfat was set in 1950.

The summary also shows that one high-producing cow yielding 500 pounds of butterfat a year makes as much income above the cost of feed as do four cows producing at about the 200-pound butterfat level. The average Michigan dairy cow produces about 235 pounds of butterfat a year.

Cows freshening in the fall returned the most income over the cost of feed, even though their feed costs also were the highest. Spring freshening cows gave the lowest return.

Nine of the 107 associations completing a year of testing averaged over 100 pounds of butterfat. In order of rank, they were: Ingham-Williamston, Isabella No. 1, Shiawassee No. 1, Livingston No. 1, Oakland No. 2, Huron No. 1, Barry No. 1, Mason and Missaukee.

Don't waste money on fancy disinfectants and colored chemicals to add to your poultry's water. They are unnecessary and may even be harmful.

Cows Need Shade In Hot Weather

Dairy cows sweat very little when the summer temperature climbs so their body heat rises sharply. That was found by dairy research men, according to C. F. Huffman, Michigan State college experiment station worker.

That means that cows need shade during the heat of the summer day. Otherwise milk production will suffer. Some farmers let cows come back to the barn or shed. If it is cooler and free from flies, the cows will find it more comfortable.

Haying Time Calls For Safety Check

Haying operations mark the beginning of a season when farm accidents run high, caution Michigan State College farm safety specialists. To assure safety and avoid lost time, check haying equipment carefully.

Pay special attention to loft floors and make sure hay chutes are guarded to avoid falls. Special care should be taken in making starts and stops while loading, especially on rough ground. Never dismount fro mtractors or mowers while they are in operation.

Remember that damp hay is one of the main causes of barn fires, say farm safety authorities. Make sure hay is well cured before it is stored in hay mows. Freshly stored hay should be checked regularly for several weeks to see that there is no sign of heating.

Woodlots Not Meant For Cattle Pasture

Resist that temptation to pasture the farm woodlot, say Michigan State College foresters. Woodlots not only make poor pasture, but become worthless for any serious wood production if grazed much.

Keith Hudson, MSC forester, says that farmers with good land in forest, who are desperately in need of additional pasture, would be better off to cut the area clear except for a few shade trees and convert to improved pasture.

But the farmer who has his woodlot on a poor or sloping area, would be far better off to improve existing pastures and to keep livestock out.

Prof. Holden Given Honorary Degree

tural college in 1885. At that time it was the only college of its kind in the country.

Following his graduation in 1889 he was appointed assistant in farm crops and started his first extensive study in corn breeding. He received his master's degree in agriculture in 1895.

The next year he went to the University of Illinois to join his old instructor, Eugene Davenport. Because the school of agriculture had only 16 students, he was able to devote a great deal of time to research. One of his most recent writings, "Corn breeding at the University of Illinois 1896-1900", tells of his work in the breeding of hybrid corn at that time.

In 1900 he left the University of Illinois and after two years with private seed companies went to Ames, Iowa, where he organized the agronomy department at Iowa State College.

At the turn of the century, things looked bad for the corn growers of Iowa. Prof. Holden diagnosed the trouble as poor seed corn and set about teaching the farmers how to select the seed for their acreage. To bring the lesson to a wider area, the railroads, stock growers and bankers co-operated in the experiment and the "Corn gospel trains' were born. They carried Prof. Holden and his assistants to every corner of the state demonstrating to the farmers the methods of selecting good seed corn in an effort to increase the yield. The project, which eventually made Iowa the great corn state, was the forerunner of the present-day extension services. The first extension courses offered by Iowa State College in 1906 were the result of Prof. Holden's conviction that agricultural education and new discoveries should be taken to the people instead of forcing the people to attend the colleges.

In 1912 he left Iowa State to join the International Harvester Co. to organize their extension courses. He remained with the company until 1932 when he retired. During the 20-year period his classroom was the Mississippi valley, where he taught the idea of diversified farming, particularly in the southern states, which had previously depended on one crop, cotton, for which there was no market, demonstrations, conferences . . . anything to aid the farmer.

After retiring Prof. Holden resided on a poultry farm at Whitehall. Later he lived in several southern Michigan cities before coming here in 1948. Since last summer he has been in East Lansing where he has completed the compilation of his papers.

Despite his age, he is as energetic as ever, still finding things to be done.

The girls will not attend camp until 2:30 Thursday afternoon and will remain for the evening activities.

Music Program To Start On Monday

The fifth annual summer instrumental program will get underway Monday, June 16, C. A. Odmark, director of the project has announced.

The class, which will be held at the local school, already has an enrollment of 80 instrumental students, most of whom are members of the Beginners or Junior bands.

Tax Rate Is Lowered To 16 Mills Due To Increased Valuation

The Charlevoix city council Monday night adopted a budget of approximately $112,000 for the 1952 fiscal year and approved a levy of 16 mills on property on the city tax rolls.

The 16 mills will be levied on the new assessed valuation figure of $5,005,000 and will raise $80,080 toward the city budget.

The move marks the first time in recent years the council has been able to cut the millage. The action was possible because of the new assessed valuation figure.

In 1951 20 mills was levied on $3,860,050 and the revenue derived totaled $77,021. The 1951 budget was $109,000.

Other revenues which make up the difference in the appropriations and the budget are derived from municipally-owned utilities, weight, gas and sales tax returns.

10.8 mills of the 16-mill levy was appropriated to the general fund, two mills to the district street funds and 3.2 mills to the interest and sinking fund.

In other action taken by the council, a bid submitted by the Erber Oil Co. for 200,000 gallons of Diesel fuel for the light plant was accepted, later reconsidered and then tabled until the June 30 meeting.

The sale of the city-owned black-top machine to Lawrence Swanson for $1,400 was approved after some discussion.

INTERPRETING THE NEWS

by Gene Alleman

Michigan labor unions, CIO and AFL, believe they possess the key to more and more social benefits . . . all magically financed, without direct cost to the workingman, by a tax on profits.

Get control of the Legislature! How is this to be accomplished? It's simple, mister.

Just reapportion the Legislature, such as the map shows would be done for the State Senate, by putting legislative representation strictly on a basis of population, not population and geographical needs as at present. Petitions are being circulated to place the plan before the voters at the November election.

The Michigan CIO plan, fronted under the name of the "Michigan Committee for Representative Government," would ask Michigan voters in November to approve 33 Senatorial districts for the entire state, all on a strictly population basis.

As the CIO reapportionment map shows, Wayne county (Detroit) would have 12 out of 33 Senators. Oakland county would have two; Flint and Grand Rapids, as cities, would each have one. By electing social-minded legislators to the Senate from a handful of urban counties, labor could dominate the legislative chamber.

Furthermore, the CIO reapportionment plan would give Wayne county (Detroit), probably 36 representatives out of a total of 99. Under the CIO plan, no district could have less than 85 per cent nor more than 115 per cent of the ratio resulting from dividing the total population by the number of seats. Wayne gets a real break!

The AFL reapportionment." plan is being fronted by the "Committee to Enforce Constitutional Reapportionment". Population is again the sole basis for arranging Senate Districts. The present distribution of members of the House of Representatives, according to population, would be continued. Reapportionment of both the House and Senate would be taken eway from the Legislature and turned over to the Secretary of State.

Under the AFL plan the present "bedsheet ballot" would be continued in Wayne county whereby all Detroit representatives are elected at large. This burden on voter intelligence has led to "name" voting rather than selective judgment of candidates' merits.

The end result of the AFL plan would be pretty much the same as that of the CIO scheme: power control over legislation by heavily populated urban centers.

Why are these reapportionment plans, getting voter attention in 1952?

Here is some factual background information.

When the present state constitution was adopted in 1908, the charter provided that in 1913 and each tenth year thereafter the legislature shall rearrange the senatorial districts and apportion anew the representatives among the counties. Thus, 1953 becomes a reapportionment year.

Since the beginning of the Century Michigan has changed from a rural and agricultural state to an urban and industrial state. Population growth has been 163.2 per cent since 1900. The 1950 census shows that Wayne, Oakland and Genesee counties and the city of Saginaw had one-half of the 6,371,766 people residing in the state.

It is quite apparent that if both the house and senate were to be organized on a strict population basis, these urban centers could theoretically attain a near majority control over state legislation. From the viewpoint of the CIO and AFL labor union leaders, who seek constantly to improve the welfare of their dues-paying members, such control is most desirable.

The governor's office is already sympathetic to the cause of the workingman; Governor Williams constantly pleads the merits of financing public benefits by a tax on corporation profits. It the legislature would be responsive to popular needs, the combination would be perfect, so the argument goes.

It should not be a surprise to the reader of this column, in view of the above facts and the writer's own interpretations, to add that leaders of Michigan business, industry, professions and agriculture are alarmed about the AFL and CIO ballot plans.

These leaders obviously do not want to see control of the legislature go to big cities.

Under the inspiration of the Michigan Industrial Conference, a group representing business, industry and agriculture, a third reapportionment plan has been advanced. Sponsors operate under the name of the "Michigan Committee of a Balanced Legislature." They also are circulating petitions to amend the constitution.

A "balanced" legislature, under the third plan, would be attained by apportioning the House of Representatives on a population basis, as at present, with what is known as the "moiety" clause retained and clarified.

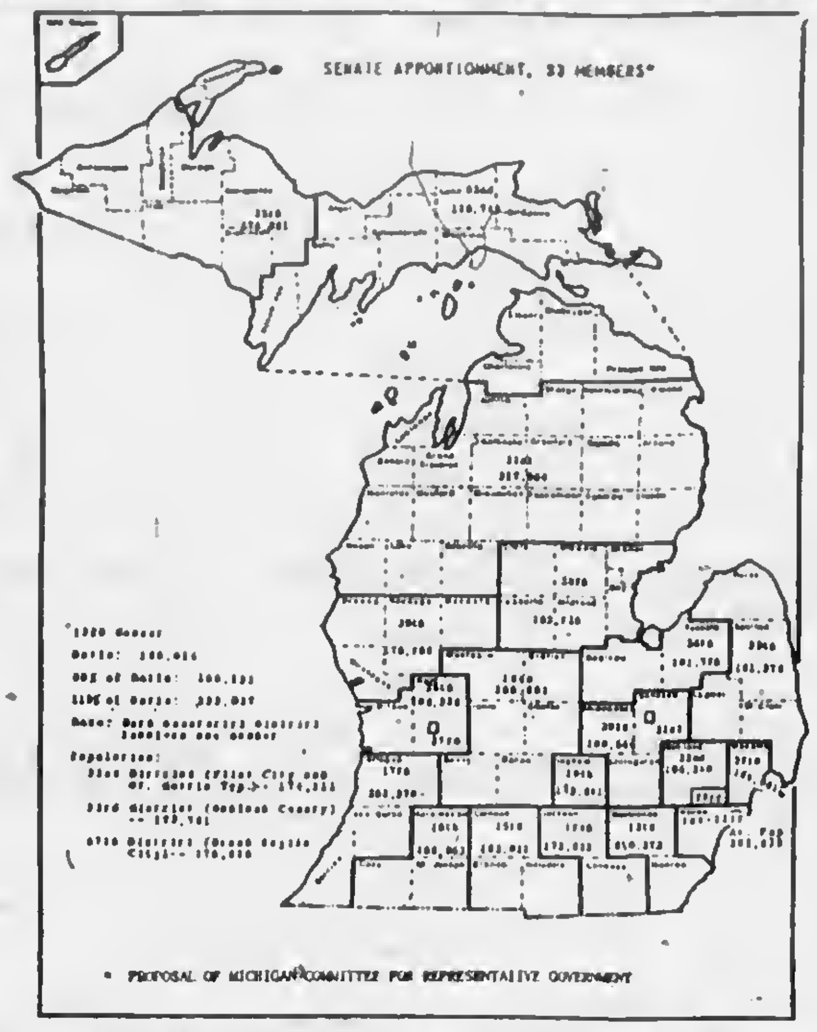
Senate seats would be increased from 32 to 34. House seats would be increased from 100 to not more than 110. In Detroit where 21 representatives are now elected at large, the supervisors would create districts whereby not less than two nor more than three representatives would be chosen by voters in the district. Result: More intelligent and selective voting by smaller ballots. "Captive minorities: would elect representatives of their own party instead of being snowed under by tha preponderant strength of one major party.

The "balanced" reapportionment plan would not upset the present geographical division of members of the Senate, as contrasted to the AFL and CIO plan.

It would adopt the federal principle of representation at Washington whereby the House reflects needs of population, while the Senate preserves needs of individual states regardless of their size.

If the three committees are successful in getting their plans on the November ballot, Michigan voters will have a choice of three ways whereby reapportionment of the legislature may be effected in 1953.

The voters' decision will be far-reaching.



SENATE APPORTIONMENT, 33 MEMBERS*
* PROPOSAL OF MICHIGAN COMMITTEE FOR REPRESENTATIVE GOVERNMENT

How the Michigen CIO would gat control of the State Senate at Lansing under a reapportionmant amendment to the constitution is shown by the abova map of Michigan. A handful of urban counties, by electing a majority of senators, would dominate the chamber. Tha CIO plan is sponsored by the "Michigan Committee for Representative Government."

Did you notice the temperatures in such places as Chicago, St. Louis and Cincinnati over the week-end . . . A bit on the warmish side to say the least . . . It's weather like that that makes a good season for Charlevoix . . so . . . won't you cross your fingers and hope for the best? . . Please.

ANOTHER SIGN of summer . . . the gypsies . . . We didn't see them but we understand there was a band of them in the community last week . . . Remember when they used to travel in wagons? . . . Of course it was long ago but it always seemed like a romantic life . . . That and the circus . . . Or didn't you ever have a yen to join the circus . . . In our book you just weren't normal if you didn't . . . But getting back to the gypsies . . . the real gypsies, we understand are fine people . . . aren't half as dishonest as one would have you believe . . . And they're the most wonderful fortune-tellers . . . so we've heard . . .

ONE OF the little squirrels at the Tower Hotel we mentioned last week had an accident but fortunately it wasn't fatal . . . Seems, like all squirrels, he was curious . . . while looking over his new home he found a bottle and his curiousity got him into troubles . . . It was a bottle of melted soap . . . He was going down when his cries were heard and he was rescued, but not before he was very soapy . . . A more chattery squirrel you never heard 'til he was dried out . . .

SAW CLAUDE Fairman of Fairman's Orchard . . . . where they have the wonderful fruit . And he tells us it won't be too long before the sweet cherries will be ripe . . . the first ones are due shortly after July 4 . . . He also told us it looks like a good year, particularly in this area, for little damage was felt from the late frosts . . . And what's better than sweet cherries? . . .

JUNE 21 is just another Saturday to most people but to some it is the day of days . . . namely the bass fishermen . . . Seems the season opens at midnight Friday . . . Every Michigan newspaper and magazine has been carrying all sorts of ideas on how to catch the little fish . . We hope some of the ideas work for all we know about bass is that they make mighty good eating . . . Incidently, after this year the bass season will open the third Saturday of June, regardless of date .

LEO ALLARD was sure on the ball Saturday . . . he had the flags out for Flag Day early in the morning despite the fact that at times the weather was a bit treacherous . . And didn't they look nice, up and down the street . . .

ONE OF the nicest features of the summer season will get underway next Wednesday evening in East Park . . . Of course you know we mean the weekly band concert presented by the city band . . . . And while you're listening to that band, give a thought to what its members are doing for you . . . . They meet every Monday all year through for practice sessions, and all summer they play, not only every Wednesday evening but also on special occasions, for your pleasure . . And what do they get out of it? . . The fun of playing and the pleasure of giving something to the community . . . They receive no financial compensation for their efforts . . . So by way of appreciation, turn out to hear them . . Charlevoix has one of the very few such bands still in existence . . . so let's show them we appreciate their efforts . . . And the fine work of their director, C. A. Odmark . . .

SLEEPING PILL ...Handle With Care!
A leading cause of fatal accidental poisoning in America is the careless use of barbiturates—commonly known as "sleeping pills". These drugs provide welcome relief for many sufferers—yet their very purpose can be defeated by misuse. These so-called "harmless pills" are potentially dangerous unless taken under the advice and direction of a doctor. If barbiturates have been prescribed for you, be sure to follow directions implicitly. With full appreciation of the nature of barbiturates, we will not dispense them without a written prescription from a physician known to us.

Local Milk Supply Rates With Best In State

There are some things householders in a community take for granted—the newsboy who leaves the daily paper, the postman who delivers the mail and the milkman who regularly leaves a fresh supply of milk and milk products on the doorstep.

Of these, the milkman probably receives the least thought for local residents are so sure of their milk supply that they never give it a second thought. Few realize that Charlevoix is one of those rare places with a fine milk supply or the reasons for it.

Those reasons are the two groups most interested in the health of the community, the sanitarian of the district health department and the local creamery. In this case it is Maxbauer's Creamery operated by John E. Boss.

Through the combined efforts of the two, the city council last month adopted a milk ordinance which assures users of milk and milk products a supply of these products which measure up to the high standards set by the State Health department.

Added to this ,the local creamery has responded to the increased demand for milk and milk products in cartons. This combined with the fact that the Charlevoix area now has approved top grade milk, is carrying out Mr. Boss' prediction that the new ordinance will revolutionize the milk industry in the area.

The local creamery is now bottling milk in cartons for six other creameries in the area besides the local supply. Milk from 20 dairy farms is now being transported to the local creamery for processing and delivery. Before the month is out an additional five dairy farms will be added to the list.

There is no way of knowing Mr. Boss said, just what the summer will bring but without a doubt it will be the greatest the milk industry has known.

John Boss. manager of the Maxbauer Creamery, checks operation of the recently installed Pure-Pak machine which automatically forms and sterilizes paper containers then fills them with milk and seals them in one operation.

More and more customers are demanding milk in cartons. It is the ideal way to market the milk, particularly in a resort area, and for this reason we installed the Pure-Pak bottling machine which packages milk in cartons, Mr. Boss continued.

The machine has a capacity of 1200 cartons an hour and to the uninitiated, is a most amazing gadget.

All one sees is a stack of unwaxed flat cartons being placed in the machine but out of the other end comes milk in cartons.

It's not quite that simple, however. The unwaxed flat cartons are placed in the machine where they are dipped in hot paraffin, cooled, filled with pasteurized milk piped directly from the cooling machine, sealed and pushed into the turn-table.

From the time the milk is brought to the creamery and placed in the pasteurizing machine, it is never touched. It is heated to 143 degrees for 30 minutes for pasteurization, piped to the hemogenizer or to the cooling pipes and then to the Pure-Pak machine.

It is then stored in coolers until it is delivered to the stores or homes.

The cartons have many advantages, Mr. Boss said. They are easier to handle, lighter in weight, easier to store in the refrigerator and there is no need to care for bottles because the cartons are discarded when empty. In a resort area, such as northern Michigan, it is the ideal way of marketing milk. Regular year-around customers are also finding it to their advantage to purchase the milk in cartons and are requesting it.

The milk business, like many others in northern Michigan is a seasonal business. The low point is during the first three months of the year but the graph starts up in April and reaches its peak about the last week in July and the first two weeks in August. It tapers off slowly during the next month and then starts on the downward trend until January.

During the peak weeks it is necessary to import milk by tank trucks. During those weeks trucks carrying 2,000 gallons bring in milk from as far south as Pontiac several times a week. With the increased market for the carton milk, the demand is expected to be greater than ever.

Now that the Charlevoix area has the new milk ordinance, the milk surplus here during the winter months can now be shipped any place in the state where a shortage may arise. In the past the surplus milk was utilized by making it into cheese or butter.

The future of the dairy farmer and the creamery in the Charlevoix area looks bright . . . thanks to the city fathers, the district health department and the local creamery.

Sgt. E. A. Barber Earns Medal For Service On Guam

A medal which few airmen ever earn, the Commendation Medal, was awarded to T/Sgt. Eugene A. Barber at the Air Force School of Aviation Medicine, Randolph Field, Texas recently.

Sergeant Barber won the award for his outstanding service in a difficult job on the Pacific island of Guam. At the start of the Korean war the island was a stop-over and refueling point for troops enroute to Korea.

In his citation conferring the decoration on Sgt. Barber, Air Force Secretary Thomas K. Finletter wrote:

"T/Sgt. Barber distinguished himself by meritorious service as administrative assistant to the transient officer of Anderson, AFB, Guam, from July to August 1950. During these two months the facilities at the base were taxed to maximum in providing service, maintenance, billeting and processing of combat units being rushed to engage the enemy in Korea.

"Sgt.'s Barber's exceptional clerical ability and extreme devotion to duty enabled him to render invaluable assistance in the instigation and supervision of new procedures which made possible the expeditious processing of personnel. His unusual initiative, judgement and superior leadership contributed to the rapid and timely entrance of these units into Korea, and reflect great credit upon himself, his organization, and the U. S. Air Force.

Sgt. Barber is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Barber. A 1946 graduate of the Charlevoix high school, he joined the Airforce shortly after graduation. He went to Guam in 1949 and returned home last November. He was assigned to the School of Aviation Medicine and is now Sergeant Major in the School's headquarters squadron.

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED that the consent of this municipality to the designation, operation and maintenance of Highway US No. 31 as a State trunkline is hereby given: and that such plans be, and they are, hereby approved; and to induce the said department to proceed with and complete the aforesaid project, this municipality promises and undertakes as follows:

That it will participate in the cost of this improvement in conformity with existing laws;

That it will cause all water lines, sanitary and storm sewers, house connection, gas mains, electrical conduits, and other underground work, both public and private, within the limits of the construction area throughout the length of said improvement to be inspected and repaired, and, where necessary, to be put into first class condition forthwith, and will cause all additional and new underground work within aforesaid area (except such as provided for on the plans) to be properly installed before the contractor starts work. All backfilling of trenches, abandoned structures and other underground work within the limits of the proposed construction area shall be done with bank run gravel, sand, or course aggregate placed in horizontal layers not to exceed 12 inches in depth, and thoroughly compacted by tamping, flooding, or other effective means which will produce maximum compaction.

That the Department shall be reimbursed for future repairs to the pavement included in this project, made necessary on account of faulty material or workmanship in such underground work by this municipality, on bill rendered by the Department when such repairs are completed;

That it will forthwith adopt and keep in force the proper ordinances to control building construction abutting on this improvement, so that same will correspond with the right of way existing or proposed, as shown on said plan;

That it will at no time hereafter, without the written consent and approval of the State Highway Commissioner, attach any further construction to the improvement so made; nor will it erect, install, or permit to be erected or installed any sign, signal, or other device to control traffic or parking, or for advertising purposes, except in conformity with State law and witt the rules and regulations of the Michigan State Highway Department for uniform traffic control.

Charlevoix County Farm News

Plans Completed For Northern Michigan Grass Day June 23

Monday, June 23, is Grass Day for Northern Michigan, Ed Rebman reminded Charlevoix county farmers today. This year's Grass Day event will be held in Emmet county on the farm of Kenneth Bare located six miles southwest of Petoskey. This is a 160-acre farm that was laid out in contour strips in 1947.

Grass Days are sponsored by the Michigan State college and the County extension office. Their purpose is to emphasize and demonstrate the importance of good forage in the successful operation of the farm enterprise.

The grass day program will start at 9:30 a. m. The morning program will consist of a tour of the farm to visit the various demonstration plots that have been established. These plots will include methods and rates of seeding, variety plots, land use, livestock utilization of forage and weed control and indentification. Wagons and tractors will be used to transport the crowd around the farm. At each station college specialists will discuss the work that has been done and the results obtained. The noon program will consist of an interview between the host farmer and the county agricultural agent.

One of the interesting features of Grass Day is the farm machinery exhibit, all types and makes of machinery used in the handling and processing of forage crops This machinery will be on display during the morning and will be demonstrated during the afternoon. The demonstration will start with the seeding of a field to a legume crop. This will be followed by the haymaking demonstration. Machinery that will be demonstrated will include Hay Crushers, Balers, Field Choppers, Wagons and Blowers. It is expected that eight different makes of balers and ten different makes of choppers and blowers will be demonstrated. Grass silage for summer feeding will be made from the chopped hay, using a temporary silo made from snow fence and fibre paper.

It is anticipated that more than 2,000 people will attend the event. A food service stand will be operated by the county 4-H clubs with the proceeds going to the 4-H Center Fund. The county Dairy Council is cooperating in sponsoring the event. The committee in charge of arrangements is composed of Ben Bochniak, Eugene Coveyou, Fred Foltz and Art Fettig, all of Petoskey; and Albert Cetas of Harbor Springs. There will be five other Grass Day events in the state this month.

Hunter Bags Duck With 1938 Leg Band

Probably the oldest—and the toughest?—duck shot last fall in the Great Lakes area was a 14-year-old mallard, judging from a bird band report just received by the conservation department.

Duck number 37-622149, banded on Munuscong bay in 1938 and reported bagged on Wisconsin's Hooker lake last October, is estimated by game men to be at least 14 years old since the drake was an adult when banded.

While it is the oldest department-marked mallard of record, the oldest duck of any species banded in Michigan is a black duck released at Munuscong in 1932 and shot in Virginia in 1949.

Good Pasture And Quality Roughage Keys To Milk Cost

Good pasture during the grazing season and high quality roughage during the barn feeding period—that's the way to keep feed costs of producing milk at the lowest level, Ed Rebman, county agricultural agent, said this week.

The dairy herd improvement association records show that June is the month with lowest feed cost—it takes $1.14 worth of feed to produce a hundred pounds of milk on the average. December and January are the highest months when feed costs increase to $2.15 to produce 100 pounds of milk.

Those figures show the value of good pasture in cutting the cost of milk production. They also show that every effort should be made to provide good pasture for as many summer months as possible.

Demonstrations on how this job can be done will be given at the Grass Day for this area on Monday, June 23 at the Keneth Bare farm located six miles southwest of Petoskey, in Emmet county.

The county agricultural agent suggest putting up some hay crop silage or hay from some of the extra growth during June to feed if pastures get short later this summer.

Value of roughage is shown by the fact that you can feed nutrients from roughage at about half the cost of grain. Dairymen with low feed costs for producing milk during the winter are feeding roughage liberally and cutting grain to one pound for each six or seven pounds of milk. This program has been used successfully on herds producing up to 400 pounds of butterfat per cow average for the year.

To do this you need to plan on about four tons of hay or 12 tons of silage per cow per year. This will allow a small surplus, perhaps.

Well Kept Silos Assure Good Food Values In Silage

Check your silo before you start putting in grass silage this summer if you want the material to have high feeding value, advises Ed Rebman, county agricultural agent. He has several suggestions for farmers who plan to use vertical silos. Upright silos need to be in good repair for top quality silage. Concrete stave or cast-in-place concrete silos need to be resurfaced periodically. This job calls for a cement wash or cement plaster, depending upon the amount of etching in the silo.

Tile silos cannot be resurfaced on the inside, Rebman says, but replacement blocks or door frames are available for many of the tile silos.

If you are thinking of erecting a silo, take a look at the service qualities of various makes of silos in your area. That is a good indicator as to which would be the best investment. Wood plank silos can be erected at much more reasonable cost than concrete stave or tile. They are generally shorter lived, but very serviceable.

Temporary silos made from baled straw, or snow fence and reinforced paper work satisfactorily. Height of temporary silos is usually limited to about 16 feet, Rebman said.

State Youths Start Annual Camp Trips

Summer group camping season gets underway June 15 when over 1,000 members of the organized youth groups go into 13 camps in 10 conservation department park and recreation areas.

Beginning one and two week camping programs are public school groups, church youth organizations and Girl and Boy Scout troops. A total of 18 camps will be operating before the end of June.

Over 8,600 youth and adult group members camped out last summer.

Suggest Ways To Get Most Benefit From Vegetables

Those few fleeting hours after fresh garden produce is picked are worth prolonging. If you select carefully and then care for the vegetables and fruits correctly you will be awarded with flavorful, nutritious products, Louise Kelley of the Michigan State College foods and nutrition department declared.

Be sure to examine fresh produce carefully before you buy, she urged. Fresh, crisp, whole products are what you want to look for, and when you find them she warned against overstocking Long storage cuts down on flavor and food value of such seasonal foods as asparagus, peas, greens, rhubarb and strawberries. So buy only amounts you can use immediately.

When you do have to store fresh garden vegetables and fruits be sure to keep them as much like they came from the garden as you can. Peas can be shelled shortly before they are to be cooked, but don't allow unshelled peas to stand at room temperature. Always refrigerate peas until just before cooking time, Miss Kelley warned.

Asparagus and greens can be trimmed a little early, but keep covered and in the refrigerator. Rhubarb, too, should be refrigerated. Strawberries, on the other hand, lose flavor if they are too cold, so plan to keep them at room-temperature before serving, Miss Kelley suggested.

The MSC specialists offered tips on cooking these on-the-market products. She recommends cooking fresh peas as rapidly as possible and until they are just tender, but not mushy and over cooked. Asparagus should be washed in cold water after tough stalk ends have been cut off. Aside from buttered asparagus, Miss Kelley suggested saving some of the tender tips for salads combined with hard-cooked eggs or cucumber.

Grange To Observe 50th Anniversary

The Marion Center Grange will observe the fiftieth anniversary of the Grange with an anniversary party at the Grange hall at 8 p. m. Saturday, June 28.

An old membership get-together will be a feature of the event to which all Granges in the county will be invited. Visitors will also be welcome.

4-H Clubs Hold Dairy Calf Judging Meet

More than 75 4-H club members, their leaders and their parents attended the dairy judging and fitting demonstration last week, Monday, held at the Peter Winnick farm north of Charlevoix, Ed Rebman, County agricultural agent, reported today. K. C. Festerling, District 4-H Club agent, was in charge of the demonstration, assisted by Don Murray, Extension Dairyman from Michigan State college.

The morning was spent judging a class of four Holstein cows. Don Murray first gave a list of points to be considered in placing these cows. The first point was general appearance. The cow should look like a dairy cow according to its breed characteristics. The next characteristic was dairy character. The third point that was discussed was body capacity. In order for a dairy cow to produce plenty of milk and butterfat she must have a large heart girth and a deep barrel in order to consume plenty of roughage. The last point considered was the mammery system. The udder should be strongly attached, carried well forward with a good rear attachment.

As it generally happens when carrying on a dairy judging demonstration sometimes there is a close pair of animals. It was very easy for those attending the dairy demonstration to pick the top animal and the bottom animal. The middle pair however were very close and there were arguments for either animal to be placed above the other one.

There is one fallacy in dairy judging and that is the best type may not always produce the most milk. This was true in this demonstration as the animal placed fourth was the one with highest butterfat production and the animal placed first was the lowest in butterfat production.

The afternoon was spent with Mr. Festerling demonstrating how to make a rope out of binder twine. Many farmers can make a rope making machine very easily with plans from the county extension office at Boyne City. Later a rope halter was made out of the rope made from binder twine. Again 4-H club members and farmers should have a rope halter or two on their farms. They are easy to make and plans can also be secured for this at the county extension office.

The proper fitting and training of a dairy heifer was the last item on the program. Some of the points that Don Murray suggested were take the best animal that you can get and train and groom her properly. The heifer should be brushed for a month or six weeks prior to showing but do not use a curry comb. A blanket can be used to soften and loosen the hide to make it more pliable.

To train the animal to lead, tie it in a shed similar to the place where it will be shown so it will be accustomed to those surroundings. Lead the animal to water and every once in a while stop and pose the animal for showing. Sometimes to start an animal to lead it can be accomplished by putting her off balance.

The feet should receive proper care. Train the feet both underneath and the length so that the foot will set down squarely. This should be done two or three weeks before showing. The animal should be fed and watered from a box or pail which will be used at the fair. Clip the animal as little as possible and do it about three weeks before showing.

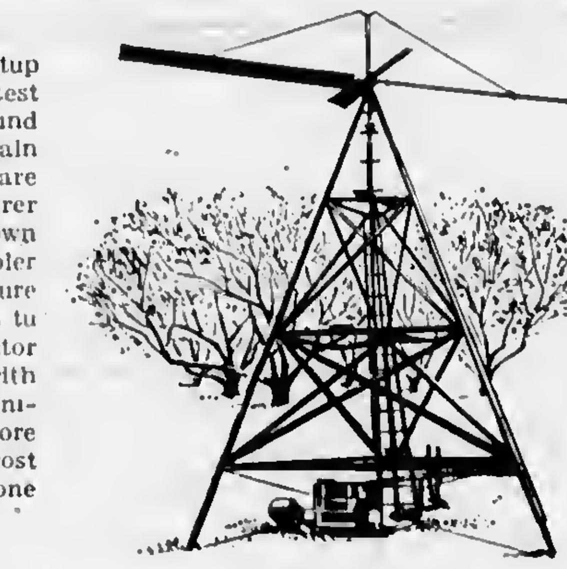
Helicopter rotor helps control orchard frost damage



This 22-foot helicopter rotor, spinning atop a 20-foot tower at a Michigan State College test installation at Beulah, Michigan, was found to reduce danger of frost damage under certain conditions. Night temperatures at 300 feet are sometimes 20 degrees warmer than those nearer the ground, and the helicopter rotor pulls down the warmer air and mixes it with the cooler ground air. In one test, the ground temperature 40 feet out from the machine rose from 26 to 35 degrees within a half hour after the rotor started. When orchard heaters were used with the wind machine in the same test, the temperature went from 26 to 38 degrees. For more information on this new weapon against frost damage in fruit orchards, write or telephone your County Agricultural Agent.

Efficiency speeds rural telephone service
In telephone work as in farm work, experience generally adds up to newer, better, faster ways of doing things. The linemen you see adding more telephone wire and cable in rural Michigan have plenty of telephone experience behind them. Last year alone they used that experience to increase by 9,000 the number of telephones in Michigan Bell rural areas. Today, 3 out of 4 establishments in Michigan Bell rural territory have telephones. And we're adding more just as fast as we can.

Fire Destroys Hayes Township Home Saturday

Fire, believed to have been caused by defective wiring, destroyed the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thurlow McClellan on the Murray school road in Hayes township late Saturday evening.

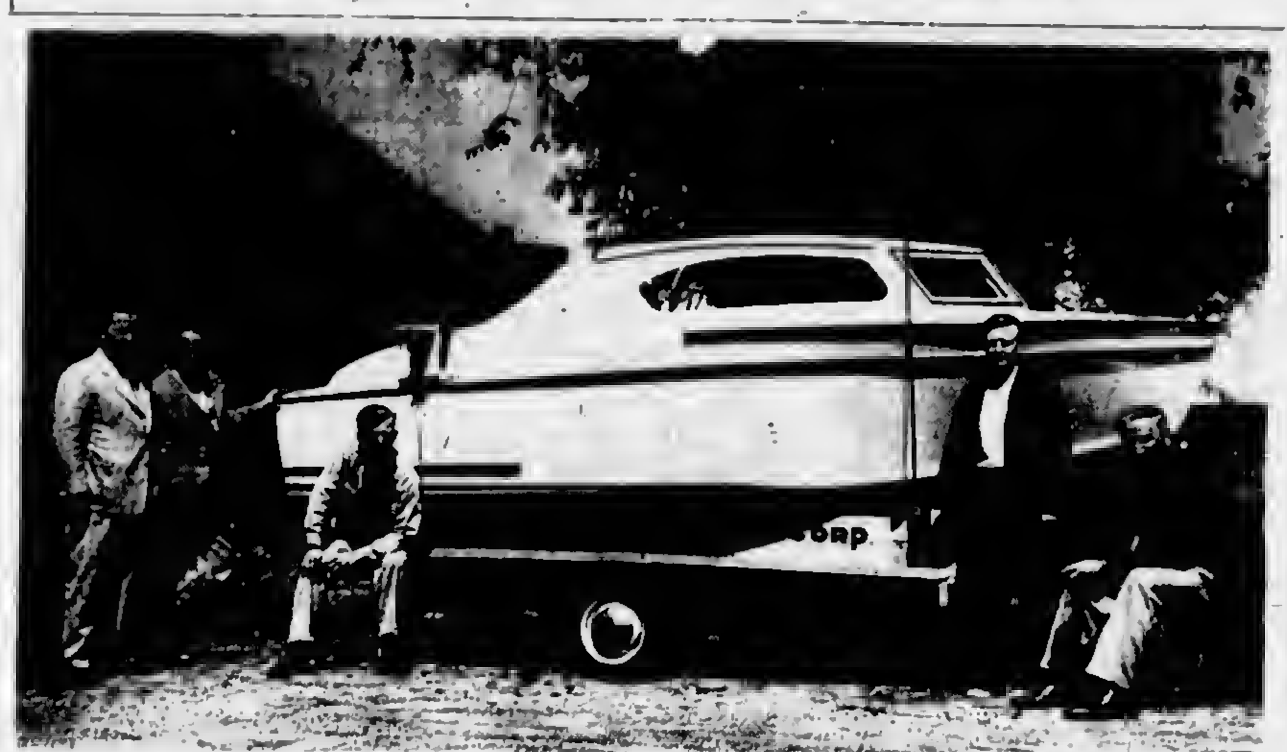
New Outboard Cruiser Is Introduced



Huron-Charlevoix officials look over the new 16-foot outboard cruiser prior to sending it to Chicago for trial runs at the request of a well-known Chicago mail order house.

Boating can be fun . . . fun for everyone.

With this thought in mind the Huron-Charlevoix Corporation has built an outboard cruiser designed to provide fun for the entire family.

The 16-foot craft constructed of plywood features a cabin on the front and is powered by a 16 to 25 horsepower outboard motor set in a specially-built well. In recent test-runs on Lake Charlevoix, the boat made up to 30 miles an hour with the 25 hp. motor, Allan Berg, general manager and vice president, reported.

The cruiser, a newcomer to the boat business, has created favorable comment in boat circles and at the present time is at a test basin near Chicago where it is being put through its paces for officials of a well-known mail order firm.

If the boat passes the rigid tests set by the company, which Huron-Charlevoix officials feel certain it cao, and is accepted it will be built on a mass-production basis in the local plant on Ferry avenue.

The first models will be displayed in the company's stores in lake aod river areas.

Later they will appear in the company's mail-order catalogs and will be delivered directly from the Charlevoix plant. For the man who has a yen to build his own boat, it will be available in a boat kit with instructions for assembling.

The boat is designed for the "in-between" people who want something bigger than a row-boat but less luxurious and costly than a regular cabin cruiser. Simple and inexpensive to operate and of a size that can be enjoyed by a family, it definitely has its place in tha industry.

The cabin on the front gives the owner two six-foot three-inch bunks under cover and room for deck chairs in the open for sunning or fishing. The wheel is on the outside of the cabin.

The 16-foot boat has a 79 inch beam and weighs 526 pounds without the outboard motor, thus making it an easy boat to transport by trailer if the need should arise. It can be used as a run-about on a lake or river for the family's enjoyment or for duck-hunting or fishing by the man of the family.

The model pictured above has a white painted hull and a cream-colored cabin trimmed with light blue. A darker shade of blue is used on the buoks and the entire interior of the boat.

Fred Eddy, acting plant superintendent, re-designed the craft from plans already in the company's possession and supervised its construction at the Ferry ave. plant.

The company, which has been in operation here since early spring, now employs 32 men.

Resort Managers Anticipate Good Summer Season

Charlevoix, the north's oldest summer resort, is poised for another summer resort season.

Resort operators in the area are optimistic for the first time in several seasons and hopes are high for the best season in recent years.

Weather is the one thing that will determine the success of the season. If the weather in the cities remains hot and if Charlevoix has some warm weather, the north can be assured of a good year, is the answer given by everyone interested in the resort business.

Hotels, rooming and eating houses, cabins and local restuarants are ready for the summer after weeks of preparations and all are looking forward to the first big week-end of the season, July 4. The three-day week-end should bring many visitors north.

The Michigan Press Association convention will open the Charlevoix Beach Hotel for the 1952 season. The organization's summer outing will bring more than 200 editors and publishers and their guests to Charlavoix for three days starting Friday.

Eight other state conventions will follow during the next two months at the Beach Hotel, which is becoming the convention hotel of the north.

Other reservations are about the same as last season, Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Kramer, owner-manager report.

The Belvedere Hotel, under the management of E. J. Edwards, will also open this week-end. Meals will be served family style in the hotel dining room until July 3 when the regular service will start.

Mr. Edwards said this week

Find Possible Clues To Long Missing Plane

A tire and tube from a small plane and a shirt found early this week on the Birchwood ranch property north of here on the shore of Little Traverse Bay may be the first clues of the fate of two Kent county men missing since May 11 on a flight from Beaver Island to the mainland.

The tire, tube and shirt Tuesday were turned over to the State Police by the Charlevoix Coast Guard and were taken to the Rockford State Police post where they will be shown to relatives and mechanics who had worked on the small plane. It is hoped they may identify the items.

The Coast Guard Tuesday patrolled the beach north and south of here but found no new clues.

The men, Harry Marcinek, 25, of Dorr, pilot of the plane, and his passenger, Roy Koperski, 45, of Grand Rapids, vanished while on a flight over Lake Michigan while returning to Wayland following a fishing trip to Beaver Island.

ODDS 'N ENDS

By Fran Martin

Recently the Courier carried a story on Dr. P. G. Holden and the honorary degree bestowed on him by his alma mater, Michigan State College . . . We'd like to say it's an honor long over-due but it has been granted and for that we are grateful . . . And like many other Charlevoix residents, we're grateful too for the privilege of having known him . . . He is a teacher, first, last and always . . and whether there was one or a dozen people around he always had something to offer . . . a lesson of some sort to pass on to you . . . He has given generously of himself and this honor is but small recognition for all he has given the world through the years . . . In behalf of his many friends here may we add to the myriads of other good wishes our own "Congratulations" . . .

THE ENGLISH hawthorn tree in the Weiss yard at the corner of Michigan and Ainslee reached its peak over the week-end . . . when it was covered with its beautiful rose-colored blossoms . . How a tree as big as that can have such colorful flowers we'll never know . . . And that's not the only one in town . . . We hope those in other neighborhoods are appreciated and enjoyed as much as this one . . .

IT'S HERE . . . the summer . . Saturday marked the official start of the three months by which a summer resort's calendar is guaged . . . Let's hope it's a good one . . . Lots of people were around . . . if that means anything, and we think it does . . . Seems as tho' we spent most of the afternoon Friday and Saturday greeting friends back for the summer. In behalf of the year-round residents . . . may we say to our summer visitors . . . . Welcome, home . . . We hope you had a nice winter and we hope you'll have an even nicer summer . . . It's wonderful seeing you again . . . And to the newcomers, we'd like to add a special welcome . . . We hope you'll like Charlevoix and that you'll learn to love all the things we're so proud of . . . our lakes, our beaches, our town and our people . . . We think it's a pretty nice place and we'd like to have you think so too . . .

HAVE YOU noticed the unusual color of the lakes recently . . . don't know if it's the sky or the atmosphere or what but one day recently the islands . . . North and South Fox . . . stood out so plain they looked as tho' they were only a short row-boat ride away . . . And they happen to be close to 30 miles away . . .

ISN'T IT good to see the Coast Guard cutter back at her old berth . . . She was doing patrol duty in the St. Clair river but the steel strike put an end to that . . . no ore carriers . . . so she's back for awhile . . .

CHARLEVOIX did alright in a recent issue of a Chicago newspaper . . . with a picture of one of our beaches and a story about the city as a summer resort . . . It's that kind of thing that makes for good publicity . . .

AND SPEAKING of beaches, we understand the high water in the lakes reached the 1929 level in May and is continuing to rise . . . We were down on the Municipal dock Saturday and, unless you've been there, you can't imagine how high the water really is . . . One gets the feeling that the water is going to roll over everything . . . One misses most the beach which has disappeared along Little Island on Round Lake . . . Heaven only knows what it's going to be like before the peak is reached in August . .

A LEI of orchids to the Girl Scout Council . . . for the most successful day and troop camp to date . . . To give you an idea of how it went over the youngsters voted to have the same camp again next year with the same leaders and other personnel . . . and even the same mosquitoes . . . Charlevoix may rightfully be proud of its Girl Scout program . . .

And did you hear about Bill Ratigan who took Mrs. R. to camp and then decided to do his Girl Scout duty for the day by volunteering to help . . . He got what he asked for . . . a job . . . peeling potatoes . . .

SAW SOME funny sights last week . . . when people parked their cars and realized the parking meters were on . . Caught short without change car owners were standing by meters waiting for someone to come along so they could get change or they were scrambling into stores for pennies and nickles, hoping the meter policeman wouldn't come along before they got back . . .

A NOTE from the H. E. Paddocks brings the news that they're enjoying a grand trip through the west . . . Capt. Paddock was a delegate to the Kiwanis International convention at Seattle, you'll remember . . . They've gone on down the coast and spent some time in San Francisco taking in all the sights . . . They'll be home by mid-July . . .

MAY WE ask you a very personal question? . . . Have you registered to vote . . . There's only a few more days left, you know, so you'd better get going . . . We think somebody ought to pass a law that if you don't vote, you can't gripe . . . That sure should get people to the polls . . . Must take that up with our Congressman . . .

TWO YEARS ago yesterday, June 25, rumblings were heard half a world away . . . Everyone scrambled for a map and looked for a place that was just a name . . . Korea . . . Few knew exactly where it was . . . And now the names of its cities are as familiar as those in Europe . . . And the rumblings have grown . . . the war that was to be but a flash affair has gone on and on . . . Wouldn't it be something to know what it's all about . . .

There's definitely something to what a yachting cap can do for a man. Take that bevy of be-visored smoothies that sauntered off the South American recently . . . each one looked like maybe a silghtly older . . . or younger, skinnier . . . or fatter Errol Flynn. (Right now I am going to ask Santy Claus to bring the boss one.)

Frosting for your summer wardrobe comes in white pique again this summer . . . even the newest white shoes are pique, ribbed and waffled.

You can still be a pin-head, if you want, and not look like one on the beach anyway . . . just pin up your curls and pull on one of the new "watar wigs." They'ra quite cuta.

They say it doesn't take anything business-like to hold up the strapless bathing suit . . . but I'd say it takes some figuring. And that's for sure.

Mary Ann Murphy Weds A. F. Gengle In Double Ring Church Ceremony

Blush pink and white peonies decorated the altar of St. Francis Xavier church in Petoskey on Saturday for the wedding of Mary Ann Murphy and Anthony F. Gengle of Dearborn.

The Rev. Cronant J. Murphy O.F.M. of Indianapolis, Ind., brother of the bride, performed the double ring ceremony and also was celebrant of the Nuptial Mass.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Joseph P. Murphy of Petoskey and the late Judge Murphy. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Gengle of this city.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, John T. Murphy of Detroit. She selected a gown of white rose point lace and orlon tulle over satin. The lace bodice had long sleeves and the hooped skirt of orlon tulle and lace was caught at the hemline with orange-blossoms. Her only jewelry was a pearl necklace, a gift of the bridegroom. A Juliet cap trimmed with pearls held her fingertip veil and she carried a bouquet of shasta daisies and white roses centered with a white orchid.

Mrs. John T. Murphy of Detroit, sister-in-law of the bride, was matron of honor. Her gown of white organdy over yellow taffeta was styled with a scalloped neckline, cap sleeves and sashed in yellow taffeta. White gauntlets and a matching yellow tulle headdress completed her costume and she carried a bouquet of blue carnations and pink roses.

Mary Ann Gengle of Grand Rapids, sister of the bridegroom, and Grayde Patterson of Charlevoix, as bridesmaids, wore gowns identical to the matron of honors in blue, matching blue headdresses and carried bouquets of yellow carnations and pink roses.

Edward Gengle of Melvindale assisted his brother as best man and another brother, Frank Gengle and Lester Gallagher of Charlevoix seated the guests.

Mrs. Murphy wore a black and white sheer dress and white accessories for her daughter's wedding. Mrs. Gengle chose a gray print crepe and white accessories. Both had corsages of white carnations.

A wedding breakfast at the High Manor Tea Room for the bridal party and their immediate families was followed by an afternoon reception.

The bride wore a powder blue summer suit, white accessories and a corsage of white carnations for traveling on their wedding trip through southern Michigan. The couple will reside in Dearborn.

The bride is a graduate of the Petoskey high school and teaches in the Charlevoix public schools. Mr. Gengle, a graduate of the Charlevoix high school, is employed at the Barton-Marlow Construction Co. in Ecorse.

Wedding guests were present from Detroit, Coldwater, Grand Rapids, Cheboygan, Muskegon, West Branch, Dearborn and Charlevoix.

Anticipate Good Summer Season

that reservations for the season are above last year's level in June and with a break in the weather the hotel should have a good season.

He said that the majority of the 87 cottages on the club will be open this year with only a few to be rented. Many of the club's regular members are aleady here.

The Belvedere Golf Club which is already open, will be the site of the Michigan Amateur Golf Tournament July 9-13. The event is expected to bring more than 200 participants to the city.

Class Of 1902 Holds Reunion

Mass.

Other guests besides the husbands and wives of the class members were Mr. and Mrs. Lynn Purdy (Marion Harris) of Detroit and Mrs. Harvey Campbell (Linda Cook) of Charlevoix.

The group met at the school building and made an inspection tour of the present buildings and facilities offered the young people of today, according to a report on the reunion made by Mrs. Campbell.

After a social hour, they dispersed to meet at Shady Corner for a 6:30 dinner Saturday evening.

Places for 22 members and guests were laid at a long table decorated with red and white snapdragons, the class colors and lighted tapers. Adorning the speakers' section of the table was a bouquet of summer flowers sent with the congratulations and best wishes of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Livingston.

After the bountiful turkey dinner, Mr. Cameron, president of the class, gave a brief welcome address and introduced Mr. Smith, class secretary, who read the minutes of the last meeting held at the home of the late Miss Emma Bennett in June, 1912.

Possessed of a wit and charm experienced through years of fraternal work, Mr. Smith also served as toastmaster. He introduced various speakers and then called on each member of the class of 1902 to give a brief sketch of his activities since graduation.

The committee in charge of the affair was Mrs. Cline, Mrs. Genett and Mrs. Block.

Mailhot's Add New Touch To Front

Turquoise lettering on a four-foot stained cedar paneling background across the front of the building at 226 Bridge st. has added an attractive new touch to Mailhot's Outdoor Outfitters.

Under the lettering are four small pallettes carying the names of the four major companies whose stock is sold in the store, which is owned and operated by Jack Mailhot.

To the left of the large sign is a small extension over the sidewalk which carries a sign on each side reading "Men's and Women's Sport Wear."

Eleanor Carson, Secretary

Today's business cannot afford to be without interest in national affairs . . . his investment is too much and his risk too great. Each of us is personally affected by the way our government is run, at home and abroad. Our system of government is based on two parties, with the one in power running the show and the other watching and criticizing.
It's a mighty good system, too. Its like a backseat driver making certain that the man at the wheel stays alert and observes all the rules and signals.

Unfortunately we have no Insurance Policy that will stop Communism and when Communism creeps too far, THERE IS NO BUSINESS.

Vote as you please — but PLEASE VOTE in the November Election.

James and Donald McCafferty and Robert and Ronald O'Donnell, who sail on the Joshua Hatfield were also here for the week-end.

Mrs. Dan D. Gallagher returned home Sunday after being a patient in the Charlevoix hospital.

Lester Gallagher was in Charlevoix this week visiting his mother, Mrs. Dan D. Gallagher.

The X-ray clinic was held at the Parish Hall Thursday afternoon. The clinic was under the supervision of Mrs. Marian Rice, Mrs. J. M. Newitt and Doctor J. L. Isbister.

Mrs. Marian Rice was the guest of Mrs. Nora Gallagher during her stay on the island. Words of praise are due Mrs. Rice for her continual hard work for the people of Beaver Island.

Miss Leona Evans of Central Lake spent a few days here visiting her brother, Marian Evans who is stationed here with the Coast Guard.

Guests at the Beaver Lodge this week were Mr. and Mrs. James M. Ryskamp, jr., of Ann Arbor; Mr. Benjamin Dykhuis of Grand Rapids; Mr. C. L. Johnson of Petoskey; Mr. C. V. Libke of Traverse City; and Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Newitt and Dr. and Mrs. J. L. Isbister and family of Lansing.

Ben O'Donnell, who was so badly burnt last week has been transferred to St. Vincent's Veteran's Hospital at Saginaw. Ben is coming along quite well.

Bass season opened Saturday. Friday evening a number of Yachts from various places came in here to await the opening of the season. The fishermen fished at Garden and Hog Island. Most of the fishermen reported that the fishing was excellent.

The other afternoon Mr. George Donat, while traveling from his cottage to town on the East Side Road, struck a coyote that was carrying a young fawn in his mouth. When Mr. Donat noticed the coyote he speeded up his car and was able to brush him enough to knock the fawn from his mouth. He tried to give further chase but the animal took off for the woods. Only a portion of the fawn was left and Mr. Donat brought it into town to show to others. This proves that even after a successful winter of hunting coyote, these animals are still raising havoc with our game.

The repair work on the Lighthouse has all been completed except for the finishing touches on the electrifying of the building.

Saturday evening Noreen Cross entertained her girl friends with a beach party in honor of her birthday.

The Christian Brothers arrived Friday to spend 100 days at their Lodge here.

Whitey Sure "Rang the Bell"

Telephone woke me out of a sound sleep last Friday about eleven-thirty. "This is Whitey Fisher out on River Road," says a voice. "I just wanted to tell you how much I like this week's Clarion."

"Thanks, Whitey," I told him. "But why in blazes call to tell me at this time of night?" "Simple," he says, "your paper boy just delivered it a short while ago. Been waiting for it all evening."

Next day, Buzzy Wilson tells me he delivered Whitey's paper late because he stayed for the school dance and thought it would be OK to drop it off on his way home.

From where I sit, I can't blame Whitey for his joke. He was just reminding me we owe other people the same respect we expect from them. Since I'm always talking about respecting the other fellow's rights—including his right to enjoy a glass of beer if he chooses, it was only fair that Whitey should "wake me up" to his right to get his copy of the Clarion on time. Thanks again, Whitey!

Insects Cause Much Damage To Pine Plantings

This is the time of year when insects cause considerable damage to pine plantings, Ed Rebman, county agricultural agent, said this week. One of the major pests on these plantings, the pine sawfly, has hatched and is beginning to feed.

The sawfly that is already hatched will feed for about four more weeks, stripping the trees of their needles and causing them to die. The red-headed pine sawfly and others will be along any day now causing more damage. Now is the time to inspect your plantings to get the best results if you intend to do anything about it.

Sawflies can be controlled because of their heavy feeding habits in the early stages. Spraying with DDT or arsenate of lead at the rate of 3 pounds of 50 percent wettable DDT or 3 pounds of arsenate of lead to 100 gallons of water will do an excellent job of controlling sawflies.

Some people may prefer dusts and a 5 percent DDT dust will give good control.

Another insect which should be mentioned is the European pine shoot moth. This insect is found only in the lower half of the state. It works on mugho, red jack, and scots pine, particularly in the lateral growth causing the new growth to be killed. It is too early to spray for this insect because the larvas are nearly full grown and have stopped feeding. Use of 3 pounds of 50 percent wettable DDT, plus 3 pounds of Black Leaf 155, in 10 gallons of water on the date is prescribed to control the European pine shoot moth.

Isolate newly-purchased hogs for a month before adding them to your herd. Sales barns and yards may be important sources of disease infection.

Spraying Of Oats Becoming Popular

The picture shows Ernie Brock on the left with Curtis Evens his hired man and young Dale Evans sitting on the trector. This outfit will sprey 10 acres per hour with 35c worth of materiel per acre.

Spraying oats to control wild mustard, pig weed, lambs quarters and other weeds is now becoming popular on many Charlevoix county farms, Ed Rebman, county egricultural agent, said today. Ernie Brock of Charlevoix has now sprayed his oats for four years and he is convinced that it hes more than paid for itself. Some of the advantages of weed spraying in addition to killing the weeds according to Mr. Brock, are that it makes for nicer combining and definitely increases the yield of oats.

Mr. Brock has 55 acres of Swedish Seleet oets which did not contein any grass seed. Thus he has used a chemical known as 2,4-D to control the weeds. It takes about one-half a pint to the acre and the chemical costs would be about 35c per acre. He believes that he can cover about 10 acres per hour with his outfit. Last year he had one field that was badly infested with wild mustard but by spraying the field yielding 100 bushel of oats per acre. Mr. Brock has a 110 gallon tank on the back of his tractor and he can cover 18 acres with one filling of the outfit. He has a 20 foot boom.

Different crops use different chemicals to control weeds. Sodium chloride is used for beets, Stoddard solvent is used on carrots, Sulfuric acid is used on onions, 2,4-D is used on corn, grains not seeded to legumes and on lawns. Dinitro is used on grains that are seeded to legumes. Anyone interested in obtaining the latest information regarding the spraying of different crops for weed control should ask for Circular Bulletin 214, "Chemical Weed Control" from the county agent's office at Boyne City.

Should Locate First-Aid Kits In Handy Places

With farmers smack in the busy season of the year, inexpensive first-aid kits properly located where they may save a life or prevent serious infections from injury are especially important.

Modern farm equipment includes first-aid kits, according to Ed Rebman, county agricultural agent. He points out that such equipment should be available both in the house and at convenient points about the farmstead and on farm equipment.

Rebman explains that it is a simple matter to provide satisfactory home-made first-aid kits at low cost. The National Safety Council recommends several materials for assembling a good kit. The box should be tight to keep dirt out. A cash box, fishing tackle box or even a tightly-covered tin can will serve as a container. It should be thoroughly cleaned and well labeled.

The kit should contain rolls of adhesive tape of varying widths, sterile cotton, swabs and sticks, and sterile white cloth for large bandages and tourniquets. Also essential is a tube of sterile white vaseline for minor burns, scissors, boric acid, tincture of benzoin, an accepted antiseptic and aromatic spirits of ammonia.

Fishing Licenses Reach Record Peak

Unprecedented 33 to 154 percent increases in resident and nonresident fishing license sale, undoubtedly due largely to the earlier 1952 general season opening, is reported by the conservation department.

"We've never had comparable increases at the end of the first," says Arden L. McNeil, head of the department's license section, who adds that latest returns are not complete.

Resident license sales reported total 331,449 or 33 percent more than the 253,352 recorded through May last year. Nonresidents have picked up 23,777 permits as contrasted to the 9,384 reported sold by agents in 1951.

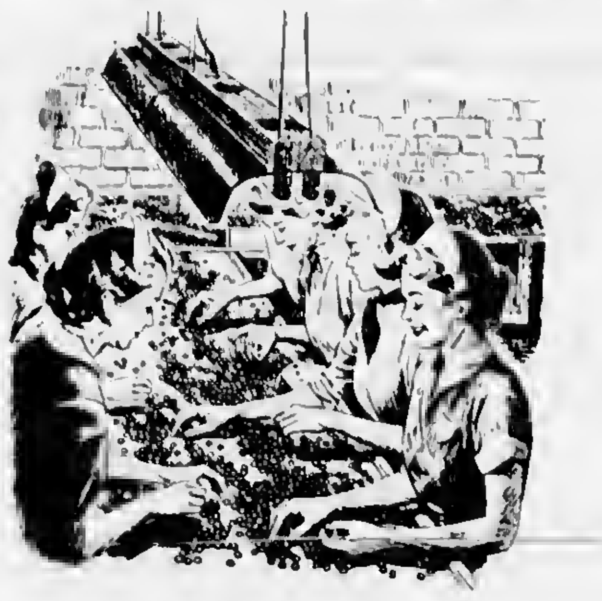
Colored lights speed culling of cherries



Colored lights help sorters of fruits and vegetables to detect small but important defects before processing. In a new technique developed in the agricultural engineering department of Michigan State College, plain white, blue and red fluorescent lights were tested. Under blue fluorescent light, sorters spotted defects 10 to 30% more efficiently than under white fluorescent. Under red fluorescent, sorter efficiency increased an average of 64% over white. Red light proved especially effective in culling cherries. For more information, call your County Agricultural Agent.

Got a Pig in the Pasture?

Experiments show pasture feeding alone isn't enough to get the fastest and most economical gains. But there's a way! You can feed those porkers a supplement like Farm Bureau PORKMAKER to supply those factors in sufficient quantities that are lacking in pasture alone.

A plastic makes listening easier

Inside your telephone receiver a sensitive diaphragm produces the sounds you hear. Bell Telephone Laboratories have developed a new kind of diaphragm made of stiff, light plastic, driven by a magnetic-metal ring. This new diaphragm reproduces the human voice more naturally than before, lets you hear higher tones that make a voice more personal. Also, telephone lines need deliver only a third as much power to work this new receiver, so finer wires can be used. Once again telephone research increases the quality of service, keeps costs down.

GROUCHO MARX NEVER USES ZEPHYR GASOLINE

. . . . "But then I'm no car," Says Groucho

HOLLYWOOD (ZP) — Motion picture actor Groucho Marx announced today that he never uses Zephyr Gasoline. "I can't," lamented Marx, "It's sold only in Wisconsin and Michigan."

Michigan authorities verified Marx's statement, pointing out that Zephyr gasoline is made by the Naph-Sol Refining Company in Muskegon, Michigan. They further disclosed that this higher octane gasoline is distributed direct to dealers in Michigan and Wisconsin, eliminating costly railway, small truck hauls and storage, giving motorists in these states good Zephyr gasoline at a lower cost per gallon.

"Actually," claims Marx, "Zephyr users get a longer ride for their money." When last seen he was driving east on Route 66 looking for the red and white sign of Zephyr.

Watch for Groucho's Latest Decca Record Album, "Hooray For Captain Spaulding and Other Songs Sung by Groucho Marx."

Schroeder-Hovey Drug Celebrates By Remodeling

Everyone celebrates anniversaries.

The Schroeder and Hovey Drug is no different from anyone else, so it is celebrating its tenth anniversary in business by remodeling and redecorating its store located at 401 Bridge st.

Patrons will be surprised on entering the store to find, among the major changes, an open prescription counter at the back of the store. A high glass counter displaying hospital supplies forms the front for the prescription room with its white shelves lined with medicines, which gives the place a clinical look.

The depth of the store was enlarged by moving the prescription room and its balcony back several feet.

The floor has been covered in a gray and red tile laid in an attractive pattern, the fountain covered in a matching black and red tile and the walls painted in a cream and turquoise combination. A touch of "On the town" red behind the soda fountain adds a charming touch of color.

Two new display gondolas and a new showcase will be installed before the project is completed.

The overall effect is one of a larger, lighter and more attractive store.

The business is owned by John Schroeder and Jerry Hovey of Harbor Springs and operated by Mr. Schroeder.

It has been a Walgreen agency since 1946.

Give Results Of Drive For Blood Donors

Charlevoix county's blood procurement clinic held in East Jordan and Charlevoix last week netted a total of 109 pints of blood, Mrs. R. G. Bennett, county blood chairman for the Charlevoix county chapter of the American Red Cross has announced.

The county Red Cross chapter co-operated with the Michigan Department of Health in arranging the clinic.

Forty pints of blood were donated in East Jordan on Tuesday and 69 pints in Charlevoix on Wednesday. The goal for the two-day clinic had been set at 200 pints. Ten prospective donors were rejected at East Jordan and 15 at Charlevoix.

Twenty-five percent of the blood or 27 pints will go to the military as whole blood for the armed forces and the remainder will be processed as plasma and fractions for use by county residents.

However, 60 pints of the remaining 82 will be used to pey a deficit owed the department of heelth for plasma already used by county residents. This will leave only e 14-pint reserve in the county.

Because the goal was not reached at this time, the department of health is planning to return to the county for a one-day clinic this fall. It will be set up in the

ODDS 'N ENDS

By Fran Martin

WE THOUGHT we'd had our quota of wild animal stories for the year but after last week we decided we just hadn't heard anything . . . Mrs. Charles Pontius had told us earlier they'd had a nocturnal visit from a porcupine and that they'd barely rescued their dog Ranger . . . a while later they'd seen another one which Ranger had 'treed' . . . but the pay-off came the other day when they found a baby one overhead in the garage . . They've decided a family of them have moved in . . . .

* * *

AND THEN the Clayton Trimbles tell us about seeing a 'possum crossing Michigan ave. near the Petoskey ave. junction . . . Couldn't believe it because we didn't know there were any around but they had a good look and know that's what it was . . .

AND SPEAKING of porcupines, as you know the Michigan Press convention was on at the Beach Hotel over the week-end . . . The boss, being host, dashed home Friday evening to change for dinner and when he didn't return Mrs. D. was thinking of sending out a posse when he comes back with one of those tales that you can hardly believe . . . Seems since they moved into the Park ave. house they've been occupying until this week, Earl Young's been telling them about a porky that lives in a near-by pine tree . . . They've never even seen the thing til Friday night when their cocker, Mandy, spies the thing in the yard and decides to investigate . . . The boss spent a bad 15 or 20 minutes rescuing the pooch so she wouldn't get into the qoills, the Youngs were trying to corner their dogs and bedlam reigned supreme . . . while the Press convention waited on the whims of a porcupine . . . Wouldn't you know it would happen that way?

But that wasn't all . . . Harold Totten's grandson picked Friday as the day to make his entrance into this old world so Mr. and Mrs. T. took off for Lansing to see the proud parents, the Jack Abfalters, and his Highness, James Morrison . . .

But that's not all . . . the sister of our girl, Friday (Marge Plum) picked Saturday for her wedding day and Marge was busy with that . . . The event incidently was a 'family' affair . . . Marge's sister, Rena Knudsen married Calvin Plum, the brother of Marge's husband . . . And if you're confused what do you think we are.

But despite all this the convention was a huge success . . . so we were told by many of the visitors . . . We're hoping they enjoyed themselves enough to return in '54 . . . the welcome mat will surely be out for them . . .

WE WERE the lucky recepient of a bouquet of pink lady slipper or wild orchids . . . from Willard and Shirley Drost . . . They are lovely . . . But we understand that there was someone around town selling huge bouquets of them . . . Which is a shame for if they're picked like that they'll disappear again . . . Someone said they're protected . . . We don't know about that but it seems a shame to pick them in such quanities . . .

And another lovely bouquet of blush pink and white peonies from the John Stebes . . . They were so beautiful and we enjoyed them so much . . .

And speaking of flowers, the Jim Flynns called our attention to the exqisite roses in the Lakeview Inn yard . . . Mrs. Flynn has all sorts of fancy names for them but we'll settle for beautiful . . . We were given a red bud that unfolded into something that didn't even seem real it was so perfect . . . When you go past the hotel take a look . . .

WE UNDERSTAND Charlie Martini at Dal's barbershop isn't speaking to us mere mortals now that he and our Governor sawpped words about bow-ties last week . . . Seems the Governor was in town, noticed Charlie's 'purty' bow-tie and greeted him as fellow-bow-tier . . . or something . . . We hope such recognition won't turn Charlie's head . .

* * *

'OH TO BE young again' were our sentiments this week as we said Bon Voyage to eight of our kids who were taking off on a long-anticipated trip to Alaska . . You'll read about elsewhere in the Courier but we wish you could have seen those kids . . . It was wonderful . . . We just hope they appreciate what they have . . .

WE HAVE a problem and we need your help . . . It's like this . . . we had a letter from Des Milligan recently . . . He's in the Pacific with the Navy and he'd like the names of the Charlevoix guys who are in the area . . . He said he could probably get to see quite a few if he only knew where they were . . . So here's the favor we're asking . . . We'll give you Des' address and, will you either send it to your serviceman or will you send your serviceman's address to Des . . . It would mean a lot to the kids if they could get together . . . So here 'tis . . . Desmond E. Milligan RMSN USS L. F. Mason DD852 % Fleet postoffice San Francisco, Calif. . . . And don't forget to send it on to your serviceman . . .

ONE OF THE summer's biggest holiday week-ends is coming up and we're asking another favor of you . . . Do be careful, won't you, so we can see you around come Monday . . . We'd much rather be saying Hi to you than writing your obituary . . .

IF YOU thought you were seeing things late Sunday afternoon when the bridge opened for a seaplane making its way via Pine River into Round Lake . . . you weren't, so don't rush to the doctor's office . . . The Coast Guard tells us the plane landed in Lake Michigan and went through to Round Lake without any trouble . . . Of course we have our doubts if the Cleveland district office will believe the tale when they see it in the log but it's true . . . Seems the plane came in with some parts for a boat in one of the yards here . . .

WE'VE always been lucky enough to have kids in our neighborhood who love to put on shows . . . It used to be the Smith kids and their annual circus but now it's the Schofields and the Novaks and a roller-skating show . . . They presented one Sunday, it was lots of fun and there were refreshments too . . .

Over 2½ million in Michigan enjoy Blue Cross - Blue Shield protection!

There is a proved and practical way to protect yourself and your family against onexpected hospital bills.

Some years ago, Michigan hospitals and doctors started the famons Blue Cross - Bluo Shield Plans. Today these plans provide protection for over 2½ million people in Michigan. They have provided benefits worth over 222 million dollars in the last thirteen years.

FOR LIMITED TIME ONLY . . . enrollment opened to everyone in Michigan under age 65!

Most members joined Bluo Cross - Bloe Shield through group enrollment. However, to approach its goal of protection for everyone in Michigan, Blue Cross - Bluo Shield provides this special non-group enrollment opportunity. Now, anyone under age 65 can enroll themselves and their families without belonging to a group.

Why non-group enrollment is for a limited time only!

If non-groop enrollment was kept open indefinitely, many people would pot off joining until they had to go to the hospital. That would increase the cost of Bluo Cross - Blue Shield to everyone. Mass enrollment over a limited time, however, "spreads the risk," keeps cost low. That's why yoo most inquire before July 12th . . . during this special campaign. No physical examination, no health statement is necessary. Yoo don't even have to be employed to get Bloo Cross - Bloe Shield protection now!

The cost of Blue Cross - Blue Shield protection is low for the benefits provided!

Blue Cross - Blue Shield rates vary somewhat according to the type of protection yoo select. For a single person costs go as low as 10 cents a day. Protection for hosband and wife can be yours for as littlo as 27¢ a day. To enroll your whole family costs only a few pennies more.

Rena Knudsen Weds Calvin Plum In Double Ring Church Service

Rena Joan Knudsen became the bride of Calvin J. Plum at a quiet ceremony solemnized at the Ironton Congregational church Saturday afternoon.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Knudsen and the bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Helen Plum.

The Rev. George L. Majors performed the double ring service in the presence of more than a hundred guests before an altar decorated with blush pink and white peonies.

Preceding the service Glenda Maxwell of East Jordan and Detroit sang several selections accompanied by Margaret Blossie of East Jordan, who also played the traditional wedding marches.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose a white linen suit, and white accessories for her wedding. She carried a colonial bouquet of red roses.

Mrs. Leroy Plum, sister of the bride, was her only attendant. She wore a pink linen suit, pink and white accessories and carried a colonial bouquet of pink and white carnations.

Leroy Plum assisted his brother as best man. Melvin Plum, brother of the bridegroom, and Karl Knudsen of Milwaukee, Wis., brother of the bride, seated the guests.

Mrs. Knudsen selected a light green suit dress and white accessories for her daughter's wedding. Her corsage was of yellow camellias. Mrs. Plum, mother of the bridegroom, wore a white silk jersey print, white accessories and a corsage of pink camellias.

A reception followed in the church parlors. A tiered wedding cake centered the bride's table which was decorated with white daisies. Bouquets of summer flowers were used about the room. Mrs. Walter Kemp, Mrs. Homer Nasson, Mrs. Harold Thomas, Mrs. Ole Nielsen, Marie Nielsen and Mary Carlson assisted.

The couple left Sunday to make their home at 3317 North Oakland ave. in Milwaukee.

The bride is a graduate of the East Jordan high school and the Elkhart Business Institute, Elkhart, Ind., and has resided in Milwaukee for several years.

Mr. Plum is a graduate of the Charlevoix high school and is a veteran of 2½ years with the Navy during World War II. He is employed in Milwaukee.

Wedding guests were present from South Bend, Ind., Milwaukee, Detroit, Grand Rapids, Mt. Pleasant, Traverse City, East Jordan, Ellsworth and Charlevoix.

Carter-Lupein Vows Exchanged

In a quiet ceremony solemnized at the Methodist manse Saturday evening June H. Carter, daughter of Mrs. H. C. Willis of Rochester, N. Y., became the bride of Robert H. Lupein, ET.2, U. S. Coast Guard, son of George V. Lupein, also of Rochester, N. Y.

The Rev. Lloyd M. Schloop officiated at the double ring service in the presence of their attendants, Stanley L. McGrath, EN2, and Robert H. Morgan, EN2, U.S.C.G.

The bride selected a ballerina length gown of pink tissue sheer, white accessories and a corsage of white roses for her wedding. She carried a white Bible for the occasion.

The couple will spend two weeks together here before the new Mrs. Lupein returns to Rochester.

Mrs. Douglas Byers Honored At Shower

Mrs. Douglas Byers, the former Donna Sommerville, was guest of honor at a post-nuptial shower given Saturday evening by Barbara Bice.

Guests enjoyed a social hour and refreshments served at a table decorated with summer flowers. Mrs. Byers was presented with a variety of lovely gifts.

Invited guests were Nancy Ikens, Marilyn Bulow, Carolyn Smith, Dorothy Allers, Leona Scott, Doris Nielsen, Margaret Poole and Bette Gill.

Fresh peas should be cooked rapidly and until just tender so they keep their fresh green color and stay sweet, advise Michigan State college home economists.

Tight Races Are On In Softball League Program

Several tight races are now on in the softball leagues, Del Terrill, recreation director, reports.

Although Silver Birches has a slight lead in the Class A league they are being pushed by the Sinclair Red Caps, which derived their name from the new caps purchased for the team by Jimmy Ries of Cincinnati, Ellsworth and Cadillac-Olds.

In Class B Parsel's and the Scouts are tied for first place with a hot contest on.

Edwards' Grocery is ahead in the Class C league and the popular Ellsworth A's are ahead in the Girls' league.

The Belvedere Club has built a new softball diamond near the club grounds between E. Lincoln and E. Garfield and have made it available to the city, Mr. Terrill said. All games in which Belvedere teams participate are played there and it is used by other teams.

The Tot Lot operated by Becky Badger near the Legion building needs more children to be a success. Miss Badger has a full program arranged for the children and in addition is taking them to the beach. If more people will use the facilities, the program can be enlarged. Anyone interested may register with Miss Badger.

The swimming program will get underway after the July 4 week-end.

Luncheon Honors Two New Residents

Mrs. Charles Duerr and Mrs. James Foster were co-hostesses at a luncheon Thursday noon honoring two new Charlevoix residents, Mrs. Allan Berg and Mrs. Frederick Eddy.

A motion made by Davenport and seconded by Bellinger to ask for new bids ended in a tie after City Attorney Norman Ance ruled that Mayor John Knight could not break the tie because the full council was not present.

County 4-H'ers Attend Camp

Charlevoix county completed its seventh annual county 4-H camp at the Church of God camp grounds last week, Ed Rebman, county agricultural agent, reported today. There were 52 girls and 39 boys registered and four counselors who assisted in the camp program. These counselors were Margaret Zoulek, Rose Mary Lehrbass, Sharon Brock and Arveta Liskum all from East Jordan.

Anna Warner from Charlevoix was the camp cook. In addition to the extension staff in Charlevoix county others who assisted in the camp program were Mrs. Earl Johnson, Charlevoix; Dallas Alsup, Traverse City and Bill Grimm, Boyne City.

The camp started Tuesday, June 24. Fortunately the weather was good during the day but there was plenty of rain and electrical storms during the night. Recreational programs included ball games, archery, treasure hunts, picnics and swimming. The members are very much indebted to Howard Stephens who furnished the tractor and trailer in order that the youngsters could get to the beach to go swimming.

Two craft classes were conducted during the camp. One was under the direction of Mrs. Earl Johnson and was in making artificial flowers. All the girls and some of the boys made these flowers and they really were very attractive. The other class was under the direction of K. C. Festerling and Margaret Zoulek and was in making stereoscopes. This scope was made out of a paper tube, two pieces of glass and a cardboard to form a prism and various objects were placed in the end so the youngsters could look and see different forms and shapes. All of them enjoyed these craft classes.

Marion Center Grange Holds 50th Anniversary

The members of the Marion Center Grange celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of the organization at the Grange Hall Saturday evening.

Among the 75 guests were many old members, their families and friends.

Four charter members still living were honored. They were Mr. and Mrs. George Meggison, Will Straw and Mrs. James Meggison. Vern Stockman of Mt. Pleasant, overseer of the state Grange presented Mr. Meggison and Mr. Straw with buttonaires and Mrs. George Meggison with a corsage in the Grange colors, green, rose and gold. A similar corsage was sent to Mrs. James Meggison who was unable to attend.

Mrs. Earl Balch, present secretary, read the minutes of the organization's first meeting held Feb. 1, 1902.

Mr. Stockman and William Brake, deputy master of the state organization, also of Mt. Pleasant, were the guest speakers and commended the Grange members on their fine work through the years. Ed Rebman, Charlevoix county agricultural agent, spoke briefly on the Grange and its work and showed a movie.

Midway in the program a storm disrupted electric service and the lights went out but the group enjoyed group singing with Mr. Stockman at the piano until candles could be found and lighted.

A mock wedding was staged with Mr. and Mrs. Rowley Williams who had observed their thirty-sixth wedding anniversary June 27, playing the roles of the bride and groom.

Lavern McGhan played the deacon, Joe Martinchek the bride's father and Mrs. Russell Dohm, the ring bearer. All were attired in costumes of fifty years ago.

Following the entertaining performance, a 'reception' was held in the Grange dining room where the 'bridal' couple cut the golden anniversary cake.

Observe Fifty-Ninth Anniversary

Mrs. Meggison recalls how she attended school in what is now the court house because the public school was overcrowded. She was attending classes there when the school house burned and the students had to attend school in improvised classrooms in church basements. The school which replaced the burned building was the Central School which was razed several years ago.

At that time, she went on, the area west of the present school building was still a wooded area and she went through the woods to school daily from their Antrim st. home.

Mrs. Meggison drives the family car, does her own housework and for relaxation crochets and quilts.

The couple has gone south a number of times in the past ten years. The past winter their daughter, Mrs. Grant Mudge of Detroit, drove them south in their car so they would have it while in the south.

They are charter members of the Marion Center Grange and the Methodist church.

They have one son, Clarence B. of Charlevoix and three daughters, Mrs. Mudge of Detroit, Mrs. Laverne McGhan of this city and Mrs. Theodore Gravelin of Barstow, Calif.

They also have eight grandchildren and nine great-grandchildren.

Area Responds Generously To Appeal For Aid

The response to the call issued by the Charlevoix county chapter of the American Red Cross for clothing and furnishings for the Thurlow McClellan family at Bay Shore was excellent, Mrs. Don Haig, of Boyne City, chapter chairman, reports.

Many people in the Charlevoix area gave clothing for the couple and their eight children who ranged in age from two months to 16 years after they were left destitute by a fire which destroyed their Hayes township home June 15. Others gave furnishings and canned fruit and vegetables.

The response was equally good in Boyne City where residents gave generously to the McClellans and to the Delbert Hart family of South Arm township whose home was destroyed by fire the same day.

HEAT AND POLITICS dominated the news over the Fourth of July week-end. Sweltering atmosphere in most of the nation drove thousands of holiday vacationers to the North seeking relief.

WHILE PLANS were being made last week for the Republican national convention which convened in Chicago Monday, President Truman got the Democratic presidential campaign off to a fiery start with an open appeal for Southern votes and an attack on private power companies and other "special interests."

SENATOR ROBERT A. Taft of Ohio, grabbed 17 Georgia votes and set his sights on a first ballot victory.

GEN. DWIGHT D. Eisenhower moved into Chicago Saturday promising a "slugging match from beginning to end" in his battle for the Republican presidential nomination. Growing bitterness between supporters of Gen. Eisenhower and Senator Taft caused great concern among many GOP leaders.

THE CONTESTS over the seating of disputed delegates slowed down convention machinery while the Credentials Committee held open hearings at a downtown hotel.

THE FIRST mass movement of United States Air Force jet fighter planes across the Pacific got under way last Sunday with a take-off of a squadron of F-84G Thunderjets for Honolulu.

THE 82ND Congress adjourned Monday after breaking a week-end deadlock over two appropriations bills. It passed the compromise appropriations bill boosting atomic energy funds by $898,800,000 and a rivers and harbors bill.

Marion Center Road Work Is In Final Stage

The Charlevoix county road commission has completed the construction of 1.1 miles of county road known as the Marion Center road, T. B. Reynolds, road commission engineer-superintendent has announced.

Only the trimming and finishing of earth grade remains to be done this year, Mr. Reynolds said. The Commission plans to cover the road with a non-skid surface treatment next year.

The construction work started at the 31-State street intersection and extends past the Belvedere Golf course property. It includes .3 mile inside the city limits.

Major changes in the existing road include the easing of three corners, the widening of the roadway to 36 feet, the cutting down of a hill through the Belvedere Golf club property and the installation of a new culvert over Stover creek.

The new road-bed which was widened from 23 to 36 feet now has a gravel surface of 21 feet where it was formerly 16-18 feet black top surface. A 60 ft. metal arch culvert has replaced the 30 ft. concrete slab culvert over Stover Creek. The hill approaching the golf club was cut down 4½ feet and two very sharp corners at the end of State street were eased and made into curves, thus eliminating serious traffic hazards.

The project, which started six weeks ago, required 12,000 cubic yards of earth excavation, 8,000 yards of sand and sub-base, 1,700 yards of salvage and 900 yards of manufactured gravel. The work was done by the Charlevoix county road commission crews.

This is the first of several road improvement projects planned by the road commission to be financed by funds derived from the increased gas tax.

Long Time Dream Comes True

A dream of more than a dozen years is close to realization this week for two Charlevoix boys who have planned since childhood to make a trip to Alaska.

A four-year hitch in the Air Force for the pair interrupted the trek but it did little to lessen the enthusiasm of Dave Hardy, 22, and Bernie Zeitler, 24, who with six friends, two of whom are also veterans, are now enroute to the great northwest territory.

Since they were 10 and 12 years old respectively and lived down the street from each other, the two have collected all available information on Alaska and planned the trip.

When Dave graduated from the Charlevoix high school in 1948 two years after Bernie had finished, they were on the verge of making the trip and even purchased some supplies, Including a tent, but a little matter of ready cash proved to be a barrier.

Instead the pair, with several friends, including Dick Donaldson and Frank Lagerman, enlisted in the Air Force for three years.

Bernie was the only one who tried to get to Alaska via the service and was sent to Adak in the Aleutian Islands when he asked for a transfer to the land of his dreams. Although he spent a year in Adak, he never once saw the mainland of Alaska.

The Korean war added a year to all their enlistments so it wasn't until late in June this year that they were discharged and returned home to complete arrangements for the trip.

Bernie came from Helena, Mont., Cliff from Selfridge Field, Dick from his recruiting duties in northern Michigan and Dave, the last to arrive, from Biggs Field, Tex., after returning recently from duty in England.

Police Request Co-Operation On Solicitor Laws

Have you been bothered by solicitors, peddlers, hawkers, itinerant merchants or transient vendors?

Residents of Charlevoix are reminded by the Charlevoix Police that the city has an ordinance against the above mentioned unlicensed salesmen. If you have not invited or requested them to call at your home, you are asked to report them to the police at once.

The local police have received several calls recently regarding persons unlawfully soliciting or selling various things but the incidents have been reported several hours and, in some instances, several days after the incident occurred. Because of the lapse of time, the police were unable to find the offenders.

Registrations Hit New High For This Area

New registrations have raised the number of eligible voters in the Charlevoix area to a new high, it was revealed this week as the deadline for registering for the August 5 election was reached.

Clerks in the immediate area, with the exception of Eveline township, report a larger number of registrants than in recent years.

The exact total of eligible voters in the city was not immediately available but 61 new registrants are expected to bring the total to well over 1800.

In Charlevoix township 18 new registrants brought the township's total registration to 103. Mrs. Kathryn Smith, township clerk, said Tuesday.

Frank Burnett of Hayes township reported 29 new eligible voters for a total of 302; William Parsons of Norwood township reported 11 new registrations, bringing the township's total to 140; Charles Mascho of Marion township said the books showed a slight increase with 15 new registrants bringing the total to 218.

Ralph Price of Eveline township had 22 new registrations but despite this there are 26 less eligible voters than in 1948 when registrations were high because of a local issue. The present total is 304.

Unless a registrant has voted in the past two years, his name is removed from the roll. Transfers to another area and deaths account for the rise or fall of the number of registrants.

Michigan Mirror

by Gene Alleman

Socialized medicine (you should pardon the term) has been conducted in Michigan for the past 27 years.

But it has never met the vigorous and vocal opposition that usually attends the introduction of any medical plan that opponents can tag with that label.

In fact, few Michiganders were aware of this unique situation and might never have been if the state hadn't hung out a figurative "Help Wanted" sign.

APPROPRIATELY enough the scene of the unusual experiment—if anything extending 27 years can be still called experimental—is Beaver Island, that charming spot just west of the tip of the Lower Peninsula.

Beaver Island has a fascinating history of the unusual. It was there that King Strang established his religious domain and created a political entity that was without equal in Michigan history. Under his iron-fisted, capricious leadership, Beaver Island flourished.

But political rivalry that erupted into a pitched battle ended his royal career and the population of the island began slowly to dwindle. Today there are only about 300 year-round residents, although the island is each year becoming more popular as a tourist attraction and its Summer population zooms.

IT WAS IN 1925, when there were about 1,500 persons on the island, that diphtheria struck with a vengeance. Appalled at the toll of the disease, the Legislature established the unusual medical set-up.

A physician was engaged on a Civil Service arrangement. He was allowed to collect whatever fees he could and the State paid him a salary. Today he receives between $5,500 and $6,500 from the Michigan treasury.

Dr. Russell Palmer, who has held the post for 25 years, is ready to retire and Dr. Albert E. Heustis, state health commissioner, is looking for a successor. "We need a physician who will provide his own home and medicines and will take care of the islanders and visitors at a minimum salary," says Heustis.

He calls the arrangement "the private practice of medicine with a state subsidy." He points out that "the island is being developed more now as a tourist attraction and the people of the region feel that the absence of any physician on the island would be a serious drawback."

THE ISLAND'S main contact with the mainland is by ship, although airplane service is offered all year 'round. Winter flights often have to be cancelled because of the weather.

So, if you know some physician who, in Dr. Heustis's words like the outdoors and doesn't mind being somewhat isolated and held down in one spot', refer him to the state health commission.

WITH THE quadrennial circus going on at Chicago this week, the average Michigander has been getting an abundant political diet direct from the Windy City via his newspaper, radio and television.

So it's little wonder that another political gathering has been overshadowed by the Republican convention.

It's the seventh annual forum on state and local government on the Michigan State College campus. It won't have as great an impact on the nation as the party convention but its sponsors believe that it's almost as important on the long haul because it creates a better interest and understanding of government at the grassroots level.

It's been just as hot on the thermometer at East Lansing as it's been in Chicago and there were moments these past few days when the political temperature soared, too.

THE REPUBLICAN delegates had some explosive topics, FEPC, the international plank, seating of contested delegates and, of course, the titanic battle between Taft and Ike. But the Michigan conference had a couple of their own that were hardly conducive to a cool and academic discussion.

There was the explosive triple of state governmental reorganization with Gov. G. Mennen Williams leading the discussion on the opening day Monday.

Equally controversial was the Tuesday topic: Reapportionment of representation in the Legislature.

Both of these issues are certain to be major bones of contention in the coming elections. Two reapportionment proposals will be on the November ballot and voters must make a direct choice. Governmental reorganization will undoubtedly be one of the campaign battle lines and there, too, voters will make a decision even if in a more indirect manner.

SESSIONS today and tomorrow are scheduled to take up the financial problems of both state and local government and during the next two weeks, students will confer with leaders of every branch and at every level of government and with political science experts.

They'll discuss everything from states rights and decentralized government to the labor movement and two party system.

The political leaders who attend this conference are influential in their own communities. The conclusions they draw, and pass on to their fellow-citizens at home, will certainly have an effect on the November elections.

In that way the conference, now overshadowed by the Chicago convention, may become far more important that the headlines alone would indicate.

TWO NEWS EVENTS have again underlined Michigan's importance in the arsenal of democracy. One was the unveiling of the new T-48 tank by Ford and General Motors that is expected to give the United States the edge on its opponents' mechanized striking force.

The other was the visit to the Lansing Oldsmobile plant by Vice Adm. C. Turner Joy, former head of the UN truce team at Panmunjon. At the Olds plant he saw the manufacture of the 3.5 inch bazooka rocket that seems to have been more effective in Korea than the efforts of the Admiral's team.

A combination of both is needed in Korea, Joy said. "Keep on trying for an armistice and meantime exert military pressure, the only language the enemy understands." That was the recipe he gave capitol newsmen.

Michigan products will help exert that pressure.

ODDS 'N ENDS

By Fran Martin

PEOPLE . . . scads of them . . . never saw so many in this town we didn't know . . . It's wonderful . . . just the thing you hope for in a summer resort . . . And don't ever say again Charlevoix can't on occasion, have grand weather . . . Three more beautiful days we never saw than last week-end . . . Lots of sunshine and warm weather but always a breeze . . . Let's cross our fingers and hope all our week-ends for the next ten weeks will be like that . . .

IN THE NEWS recently was an accident near Manton in which Ken Bovee, band director at Oxford for ever so long, was killed . . . He was enroute to Interlochen where he directed the all-state band . . . He not only was a good friend of our own director, Clarence Odmark, but the youngsters in the band knew him . . . he was guest conductor and adjudicator for the Massed band festival three years ago . . . Well on his way to a brilliant career, his loss will be felt throughout the state, especially in music circles . . .

ADDING machines are something we take pretty much for granted but Mrs. Dolph Young came up with one the other day the likes of which we've never seen . . . It was patented some 63 years ago . . . At first glance it looked like a large and small gear placed together but upon closer inspection was this gadget with numbers on it up to 100 for the cents and on the smaller one was the numbers for the dollars . . . A small pointed wooden stick resembling a pencil was placed in the little holes opposite the numbers you wanted to add and turned much as a dial on a telephone works and there before your eyes was your total . It would have been a handy thing to have had in school . . . we never could add . . .

WE'VE been meaning to get to the south side to see the lovely blooming cactus Mrs. Edward Lakies has . . . Mrs. Charles See told us about it and said it is lovely . . . If you happen up that way stop by and see it . . .

HAVE YOU noticed the sailboats out on Lake Charlevoix . . . They make just about the prettiest sight we know of . . . scuttling over the blue water . . . It looks like great fun . . . And something else that fascinates us is water skiing . . . How anybody can stay on the things and added to that stay on top of the water is more than we can understand . . . It must be great sport.

* * *

C. A. ODMARK and his city band go in for realities but we thought they were going a little too far one night recently when they played 'Stormy Weather' with real sound effects . . . Thunder, lightening, wind and finally rain drops . . . We felt they could have left a little to the imagination . . . But all kidding aside . . they're doing a grand job with their Wednesday night concerts in East Park . . . And if you haven't heard them yet you'd better take yourself right downtown come next Wednesday . . . Charlevoix's one of the few towns in the state which still has a city band so turn out and let the band and its director know you appreciate their efforts . . .

AND HOW about the softball and baseball teams . . . They're doing a grand job too . . . Furnishing lots of good fun for a lot of people . . . So why not stop by some night soon and watch them play . . .

See Alewife As New Threat To Lakes Fishing

The Michigan Great Lakes fishery, pillaged by the trout-seeking sea lamprey, may face a new threat in the next few years.

The third alewife has turned up in a Lake Michigan commercial fisherman's net, the conservation department discloses. The small, practically worthless fish could seriously compete with the herring and other fishes for food.

An alewife showed up in a net off Whitehall over a year ago and the latest one turned up in a net further north off the Leland fishing port. Port involved in the third catch is unidentified.

The trash fish is quite common in Lake Ontario and seemingly has followed the path of the sea lamprey in migrating further into the Great Lakes chain, says Dr. A. S. Hazzard, director of the department's fisheries research Institute.

Joseph J. Graham, formerly of the institute staff and now with the Ontario fisheries laboratory says, "I am sorry to say that they will probably establish themselves in Lake Michigan." Finding just one alewife is in itself a good indication of the presence of a school, he asserts. If they are able to ascend streams draining into Lake Michigan during the spring migration period, Graham speculates that they also may get a foothold in some connecting inland lakes.

The alewife is such an extreme pest in netting operations that they sometimes discourage eastern U. S. commercial fishermen from fishing for the economically important lake herring.

Hazzard adds that the alewife resembles the true herring, and is native to north Atlantic coastal waters, but was unknown above Niagara Falls prior to the opening of the Welland canal.

Qualities Of New Fabrics Outlined By Specialist

Acrilan! Dacron; Orlon!

Magic words to add to your vocabulary. They are the newer man-made fabrics coming into stores now, and follow-ups to nylon that has been so quickly and completely utilized by American women.

Caroyn Middleton, of the Michigan State College textiles and clothing department, outlines some of the special qualities of these new fabrics.

Acrilan is the newest-born of the chemical fiber family. Early uses have been in women's and men's suits, blouses and dresses. It is prominent for its great bulking properties, that is it has a pile and depth. Warm to the touch, acrilan is non-shrinking and has low moisture absorption making it easily and quickly washed and dried. It is especially suitable for blankets and heavy-coat linings, Miss Middleton said.

Dacron came on the market last summer as Fiber V. It is a strong, durable fabric that is notable for crease and wrinkle resistance. It is now being used widely in men's socks, and trousers, women's blouses and underclothes. Dacron is a resilient fiber that holds a crease very well, the MSC specialist said.

Orlon has good shape-retaining qualities. It is a dry and warm to tho touch, Miss Middleton said, in commenting that a frequent criticism of nylon had been its cold feeling. Strong and light weight, orlon has proved especially suitable for curtains since it does not shrink, holds shape and resists smoke and other atmospheric gases. Heat, sunlight and perspiration do not affect orlon, either.

Two Local People Are Studying At Bay View College

Mrs. Marjorie Ayres and Betty Methner of Charlevoix are among the 93 persons studying this summer at the Bay View Summer College of Liberal Arts, Bay View, according to Dr. Joseph J. Irwin, dean. While the majority of the students enrolled are from Michigan, he said, others come from a wide variety of states: Ohio, Illinois, Iowa, Minnesota, Indiana, Tennessee, New York, and Virginia. One student is from Germany.

Many colleges are represented as the "home" institution of the students with the largest number, 36, coming from Albion College. The University of Michigan is represented by ten, Central Michigan College of Education by five, Aquinas College by four, Northwestern University and Northern Michigan College of Education by three each.

Students presented credentials from 34 different colleges and universities as widely scattered in location as Massachusetts, North Carolina, and Arizona but most of the colleges are mid-western institutions. Some are state supported schools but many are private or church related.

Cotton Clothes Still In Style For Summer Use

American fashion designers and manufacturers have not forsaken their old friend, cotton. While man-made fabrics such as nylon and acrilan make headline news, beautiful variations on the age-old cotton theme continue to hold our interest.

Margorie Eastman, of Michigan State College department of textiles and clothing, points out that cotton is good style this summer for every kind of costume, from sturdy denim play clothes to expensive evening gowns.

Broadcloth and chambray are ever-popular in the classic golf dress, and ginghams come in small and large plaids this year to add a new twist in go-together separates. Miss Eastman suggests making a blouse of a small plaid and skirt of matching large plaid.

Pique is especially good in stripes this year and that easy-to-launder seersucker is decked out in attractive wallpaper prints that combine stripes with floral patterns. Miss Eastman suggests sleeveless dresses, sunbacks with jackets and two-piece dresses of seersucker.

Dress-up cottons in calico prints fashioned with full skirts and scoop necklines are in good stylo any place this summer, she says.

Cool styles for summer include printed lawns, batistes and dimities as well as tissue gingham and voile. The absorptiveness of cotton, its washability and versatility make it an ideal summer fabric. Combined with nylon, cotton assumes some characteristics of both cotton and nylon, it is cool, washes easily and quickly.

Miss Eastman urges women not to overlook the importance of slips to be worn with sheer summer cottons. A cotton slip may be just right, for it will be cool and can be very attractive with camisole tops and fancy hemlines.

Long Time Dream Comes True

For months letters have been flying back and forth, making plans for the trip. Lists that Bernie and Dave had made were brought out and used as raferences in making final preparations.

Their enthusiasm was evidently contagious for in the past month, Dick Donaldson, who was carrying out the plans on the home front along with his service duties, recruited four others for the trip. They are Warren Shadko, a student at Michigan State, George Haggard, Jr., who attends John Carroll University in Cleveland, Larry Petersen, a student at the University of Michigan, and Tom Donaldson, a 1951 Graduate of the local high school and the youngest of the group, who has been employed in Saginaw. He is a brother of Dick Donaldson, Shadko is a '49 graduate of the local high school and the others are '50 graduates.

Two cars, a Mercury owned by Dick Donaldson, and a Ford owned by Bernie, are carrying the group over the 5,000 mile trip which they hope to make in eight days.

At the last minute they decided to take a two-wheeled trailer to carry supplies and lighten the loads in the cars.

There were few requirements laid down for the trip. Each one had to deposit $100 to be used for supplies and the trip north plus his own sleeping bag, blankets and one barrack's bag of clothing. They also purchased a good supply of cooking and camping equipment. The tent, purchased more than four years ago was brought from its storage place and will be used for camping enroute and will become 'home' if they stay in the north.

Among the supplies purchased hera wera $400 worth of groceries, including a variety of meats, vegetables, fruits, milk, coffea, tea, prepared cocoa and dried soup.

The Donaldson brothers, Shadko and Haggard went to Hamilton, Mont., to pick up a service buddy of Donaldson's, Dick Flannagin, who will join the party. They were to meet the second car carrying Zeitler, Hardy, Petersen and Lagerman, at Shelby, Mont., 15 miles from the Canadian border. There they planned to re-arrange their loads and pack the trailer for the trip over the Alcan highway to Alaska passing through Calgary, Edmonton and White Horse enroute to Fairbanks.

Their first act in Fairbanks will be to visit a former classmate, Arnold Loper of Charlevoix, who has been stationed at an airbase there since December, 1951.

After that they will seek employment and if they aren't successful in Fairbanks they will go to Anchurage. Before they left they decided they wouldn't be fussy about the kind of employment as long as it will bring in an honest dollar.

And if they don't find work, they will come home. They aren't too concerned about that part of it. They have enough supplies to last several weeks by supplementing them with local meats and produce and they have enough money to get home on. With several fishing rods they figure they can catch a few fish and won't go hungry.

If they find employment they plan to stay until early September when at least one car will return with the students. Tha others may decide to stay longer.

Beyond that they have no plans. Right now they're concentrating on enjoying every minute of their adventure.

"And when we start home", Bernie Zeitler said in leaving, "We will send you a picture so you'll recognize us. You see, there isn't a razor or a pair of dress-pants in the crowd."

W. L. Billings Will Leave Local School

The Charlevoix Board of Education Monday night accepted the resignation of William L. Billings, commercial instructor for the past two years in the Charlevoix high school, Supt. R. G. Bennett said Tuesday.

Mr. Billings plans to leave the teaching profession to accept a position in industry at Allegan.

This brings to two the number of vacancies to be filled in the teaching staff in the local school. Mrs. Donna Stutt, speech and English instructor, resigned earlier after two years here. She has gone to Detroit to make her home.

Card of Thanks

I wish to thank the ministers of the Church of God, Rev. Majors and Rev. Hammond for the calls they made on me when I was in the hospital and I want to thank them and the church for the many prayers that were offered in my behalf and thank the church for the beautiful flowers they sent and the many cards received from my friends. I appreciated each and every one. Thank you again.

What's doing at Camp Charlevoix

"Once Again We Come Together" has been a song ringing through the dining room at Camp Charlevoix since last Saturday when boys from twelve states arrived in camp to spend another happy summer, The camp is filled to capacity with boys from all parts of the country.

Saturday night, after the boys were located in their cabins, and a good dinner was had by all, they enjoyed the traditional pillow fights in the club house. Some of the boys who won their matches were: Ricki White, Grosse Pointe; "Koky" Cummins, Mansfield, Ohio; Timmy Barnes, Detroit; George Davis, Richmond, Ind.; Gordon Peterson, Detroit; Doug Nichols, Decatur, Ill.; Lance Warner, Vermilion, Ohio; John Williams, Dayton, Ohio; John McBride, Lapeer; and Art Sullivan, Grand Rapids.

Sunday morning, Ken Smith, director-owner of the camp, gave the chapel talk, speaking on "Building a Reputation". In the afternoon, the boys were put through physical tests and waterfront swimming tests. In the evening, vespers were held with Phil Shoup in charge. Tom Peterson, Director of Activities, from Denver. Colo., was the speaker.

The staff this summer represents eighteen different colleges and universities, and among the men on tho staff are: Harry Bingham, of Charlevoix, returning for his sixteenth year, as business manager; Joe and Helen Shaw from Miami University, as cooks for their third year; Tom Peterson, who coaches at Mead, Coloado, as Director of Activities; Jim and Nancy Conrad, University of Michigan, as Doctor and Nurse; Jean Rush, Wittenberg College, as tutor; "Tex" Johnson, Texas, as Head cowboy, assisted by "Whip" Burnside, Oklahoma; Mick Potter, Kansas State, and Frank Smith, Albion College. Others on the staff are Bud Bigelow, Michigan State, Head of Junior Section; Bill Cameron, University of Michigan, Head of Intermediate Section, and Phil Shoup, Head of the Senior Section, from the University of Dayton.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth W. Smith, of Grosse Pointe, owners and directors of the camp cordially invite Charlevoix people out to visit the camp this summer during its twenty-sixth season.

The first week was one filled with varied activities for campers at Camp Charlevoix. Campers were orientated on the various activities Monday, making their choice of activities at the dinner table Monday evening. Tuesday was the first day of regular activities with boys participating in tennis, handicraft, archery, riflery, sailing, riding, campcraft, fishing, baseball, canoeing, and Junior life saving along with the regular instructional swim and free supervised swim periods.

The captains for the Green and Grey Leagues were elected Wednesday and consist of the following boys: for the Junior Green team, Tom Manley; Junior Grey for the Intermediate Green team, team, Jimmy Smith, Ricky White John Beeman, Intermediate Grey team, Sandy Proctor and John Hudson, Co-Captains Senior Green team and Richard Smith was elected Captain of the Senior Grey team. The first Green and Grey event of the year was the annual Counsellors Hunt with seven of the eighteen counsellors being caught by a total of eleven campers who were: Allen Leadbetter, Tim Stevens, Bob Gordon, Sam White, Danny Ross, Dick Smith, Chris Roosevelt, Tim Mast, Koky Cummins, William Fox and Dick Mayo. The Greys were the victors of this event coming out on top 11-2 points to 1-2 points for the Greens.

Thursday again was a day of various activities with the campers having a "cook-out" on the camp grounds, feasting on picnic fare which included hot dogs, baked beans, potatoe chips, punch and ice cream. The preparations for the picnic were made by the camp's business manager, Harry Bingham, who serves as principal of the Charlevoix High School during the winter months.

In celebration of the Fourth of July the campers had a Green and Grey track meet consisting of twenty-five, fifty and seventy-five yard dashes, relays from each section, baseball throws, baserunning, and egg throwing. This time the Greens were victorious taking the most points in the Junior, Intermediate and Senior competion to add three points to their laurals. After supper the boys were allowed to shoot off their individual fireworks under counsellor supervision. The shooting of these fireworks was followed by a display of night rockets and stars donated by Dr. and Mrs. George W. Smith, of Dayton. Ohio, parents of Jim and Dick Smith, campers of this year. The display was immensely enpoyed by all.

Saturday evening campers attended the first Council Ring ceremony of the season, which was for the purpose of initiating new campers. By the light of the campfire, campers saw Chief Smith, in Indian clothes and feather headdress, sitting on his Thunderbird throne. Counsellors in cermonial procedure gave talks on friendship, courage, sportsmanship, loyality and unity.

Sunday morning chapel services were held in the outdoor chapel with Don Danneeker, former activities director, giving a talk on what he remembered most about Camp Charlevoix. The afternoon was spent at the waterfront with a Swim Meet between the Green and Grey campers, with the Green again coming out on top with a total of two points against the Grey's one point.

Professor Will Take Family On Outboard Cruise

From the Indiana border to the Straits of Mackinac stretches more than 300 miles of Michigan's west shoreline with a natural beauty that has led many travelers to call it the "American Riviera."

Along this west shore a college professor, his wife nad three small children will set out in a 20-foot outboard cruiser on June 26 to prove how easy, inexpensive and safe it is for a family to vacation on the water.

Making the trip will be Dr. Edwin Hodge, head of the Commerce Department at the Milwaukee extension division of the University of Milwaukee, his wife, two daughters and one son.

The family was invited to make the cruise by the Evinrude Boating Foundation in a craft built with a molded plywood hull and powered by a Evinrude 25 hp engine which will give them a cruising speed of 15 miles per hour.

During the trip Dr. Hodges will carry on further research on the marketing problems of the expanding outboard motor business.

Dr. Hodge, a summer resident of northern Michigan since childhood, and his neophyte crew, expect to reach Mackinac Island about four weeks after leaving South Haven, the starting point.

Dr. Hodge will keep a color movie and still picture record of the trip. The films will be shown on a national basis through the Evinrude Library of Films and in Michigan through the auspices of the West Michigan Tourist and Resort Association.

They plan many stops enroute including a visit to Charlevoix on or about July 11.

Spare Honey Bees When Spraying

Various wild bees and the honey bee are among the legume seed grower's best friends. Fortunately most of the destructive insect pests affecting legumes can be killed by insecticides before the plants bloom.

E. C. Martin, Michigan State college entomologist, says this means that the job of controlling harmful insects should be completed before the bees come to the blossoms to gather nectar and pollen.

"Present recommendation for control of insects harmful to legumes-for-seed in Michigan is to apply DDT at the rate of one and a half pounds of actual DDT per acre," Martin said. This DDT should be applied as a spray or dust a short time before the plants come into bloom.

If properly applied it will kill the harmful insects but will not bother the bees when their turn comes to work on the blossoms. Putting DDT on before the blossoms bloom will "kill the bug but spare the honey bee," Martin explains.

A coyote was found washed up on the west side shore this week. The coyote was in a trap that was secured by a plank. Spring Smelt Haul Above 1951 Take Smelt fishing boom hiked the total March and April catch of the Michigan Great Lakes fishing industry some 27 percent over the 1951 two-month haul, the conservation department discloses.

The take, includes all commercial species, totaled over 4,266,000 pounds, an increase of 908,000 pounds over the same 1951 period.

Smelt fishing was particularly good, with 2,484,000 pounds being taken, a total leading all other type catches by a wide margin. Catch was more than 1,080,000 pounds better than the 1951 Mar. and April harvest.

Second was the chub catch with 306,000 pounds, about 273,000 pounds before. Carp harvest dropped from second to third place with 271,000 pounds as against 413,000 pounds previously.

Now! Your only chance this year as an individual . . .
(with your family, if married) to get Blue Cross - Blue Shield protection against hospital and surgical bills without enrolling through a group!

The chances are now 1 in 3 that you or a member of your family will face hospital bills this year! You don't have to risk your savings! You can get Michigan's most widely-used hospital and surgical protection sponsored by Michigan hospitals and doctors, if you act NOW!

Your ticket to worry-free recovery! Your Blue Cross - Blue Shield card is all you need when admitted to any one of the over 190 Blue Cross participating hospitals in Michigan.

WHERE WOULD the money come from, if an accident or sickness put you, or a member of your family in the hospital?

The time to do something about protection against hospital bills is NOW . . . while your family has its health. It's too late, after an accident or illness strikes. And strike it will, to put someone from one out of every three Michigan families in the hospital this year.

Over 2½ million in Michigan enjoy Blue Cross - Blue Shield protection!

There is a proved and practical way to protect yourself and your family against unexpected hospital bills.

Some years ago, Michigan hospitals and doctors started the famous Blue Cross - Blue Shield Plans. Today these plans provide protection for over 2½ million people in Michigan. They have provided benefits worth over 222 million dollars in the last thirteen years.

FOR LIMITED TIME ONLY . . . enrollment opened to everyone in Michigan under age 65!

Most members joined Blue Cross - Blue Shield through group enrollment. However, to approach its goal of protection for everyone in Michigan, Blue Cross - Blue Shield provides this special non-group enrollment opportunity. Now, anyone under age 65 can enroll themselves and their families without belonging to a group.

Why non-group enrollment is for a limited time only!

If non-group enrollment was kept open indefinitely, many people would put off joining until they had to go to the hospital. That would increase the cost of Blue Cross - Blue Shield to everyone. Mass enrollment over a limited time, however, "spreads the risk," keeps cost low. That's why you must inquire before July 12th . . . during this special campaign. No physical examination, no health statement is necessary. You don't even have to be employed to get Blue Cross - Blue Shield protection now!

The cost of Blue Cross - Blue Shield protection is low for the benefits provided!

Blue Cross - Blue Shield rates vary somewhat according to the type of protection you select. For a single person costs go as low as 10 cents a day. Protection for husband and wife can be yours for as little as 27¢ a day. To enroll your whole family costs only a few pennies more.

Banks School To Have Election Monday, July 14

Ellsworth — Again comes the time when it becomes the duty of every adult citizen of the Banks Township Public School district to cast their ballot at the school election. The election will be held at the local school house in Ellsworth on Monday, July 14. No school board can know the complete will of its voting constituency unless every person votes. Any person that has lived in the school district for thirty days can vote for the trustees and the first proposal. The second proposal of levying 8 mills for repairs and operation can be voted only by tax paying people.

This year the terms of two trustees are up for election. Petitions have been circulated and the following names will appear on the ballot. William Petter, present board secretary, Linn Carpenter and Anthony Kuiper, former board members, and William Goeman and Syrus Doctor. Two persons will be elected to the present board.

Two proposals are also included on the ballot. The first proposal, that the 15 mill limitation be lifted can be voted on by every elector. The second proposal that the district levy an 8 mill tax for school purposes can be voted on only by taxpaying voters living in the Banks Township district.

At an open meeting the 8 mill levy was discussed and it was the consensus of those present certain improvements to the building were necessary. These recommendations included the improving of the lights in the upper rooms and a fire exit from the upper rooms. If the school continues its band program added monies will have to be raised to care for the extra expenses incurred.

For more information on the school program plan to attend the annual meeting held in the evening of the same day. At this time the annual financial report and other business of the school will be taken care of. This is your school and it is the obligation of every person to be sure that the best orogram that can be secured for the children of the Banks Township Public School be secured. It is the writer's sincere belief that there are certain important organizations that merit your support. First your church, then the home, and certainly next the school.

Upper Torch Lake

At the second business meeting of the Upper Torch Lake Association for 1952 on July 7, reports were made on the success of the information booklets and the auction-rummage sale of July 5. Everyone concerned is extremely gratified at the results of both ventures. Mrs. James Gibb, as main-spring of the pamphlet proposition deserves much praise, and she in turn wishes to express her thanks for the help she had.

The committee in charge of the auction sale, Wilda and Guy McPherson, also deserve the appreciation of all for the time and effort spent in organizing the affair. They express their gratitude for the co-operation accorded them by everybody, including the donors of clothing, white elephants, etc., and especially by Ralph Zook, auctioneer, whose efforts on behalf of the Association on that hot, sunny day brought remarks of approval from all quarters.

Among other things discussed at the meeting were the Firemen's Field Day on August 7 and the next business meeting. Some unusual features, such as a home baked goods sale and a morning softball game were hinted in addition to the usual field day program. You will read more about the field day in this paper in the next three weeks. Plan to be there for a big time. The place will be Barnes Park, Eastport.

The next business meeting of UTLA, on Monday, August 4, includes the election of four officers and four board members. Members be there! Are your dues paid so that you are eligible to vote? If not, Hattie Arnold will be pleased to write you a receipt. You can find her at her refreshment-vegetable stand on the east side of Torch Lake just off M-88 any day or evening.

We almost forgot something. Watch for the announcement of weekly games parties and dances, to begin in the very near future.

The complete opera program is as follows: Thursday (July 10) "Falstaff" and "The Medium"; Friday, repeat of Thursday's performance; Saturday, "LaServa Padrona," and "The Old Maid and The Thief."

Michigan students who are cast for leading roles in the operas are Bill Cole of Bay City (If Men Play Cards); David Murray, Ann Arbor; Joan St. Denis, Detroit; and Tom Bailey, Michigan Center, all of whom will have major parts in "Falstaff". Dave Murray also will have a leading role in "The Medium" and Bill Beodler of Frankfort, Mich., will dance the important role of the mute in this score.

The Falstaff performance will be sung in Italian but will be in concert version, with no scenery or action, but only singing of familiar arias from the second scene of Act I of the opera. This is the first time "Falstaff" has been done at Interlochen. The heavy opera schedule is part of a new five hour course in opera offered by the University of Michigan at Interlochen.

R. J. Doyle Tells Kiwanis Of Need For Sound Money

Russell J. Boyle, editor and owner of the Michigan Tradesman, Grand Rapids, addressed members of the Kiwanis club and their guests at the Charlevoix Beach hotel Monday night, speaking on the Gold Standard.

He said that Americans are being lulled to sleep by a stupendous spending program, with Russia set up as a false bogeyman to sell the people on defense spending for "prosperity."

The only safeguard the United States has and the only way to stop inflation is to return to the Gold Standard and a sound money policy, he stated.

Pesent were Mrs. Jack Parsons of Grand Rapids, Mrs. Douglas Stanke of Lansing, Mrs. Sam Hamilton, Sara Coleman, Joan Hess, Jeanine Loop, Ann Gill, Marion Seymour and Marilyn Blissett.

Number Of School Age Children Drops

The number of children of school age in the Charlevoix school district has decreased in the past year, Supt. Roy G. Bennett, announced this week as he released the figures on the 1952 school census completed recently.

The number of children of school age, that is in the five through 19 year old group, dropped from 930 in 1951 to 893 in 1952.

The number in the pre-school group, however, jumped from 312 in 1951 to 352 this year.

Census takers this year were Ernest Peaslee, Orton VanDusen and Mrs. Harry Ladd.

Dry Cleaners Hold Successful Meeting

The Michigan Dry Cleaners association concluded a successful three-day convention at the Charlevoix Beach hotel Sunday.

The convention brought more than 80 members and visitors to Charlevoix during the holiday week-end.

County Clerk Will Attend State Meet

Fenton R. Bulow, Charlevoix county clerk, plans to leave next Wednesday for Blaney Park in the upper peninsula to attend the annual convention of the Michigan County Clerks Association.

The convention will be in session July 16-17-18.

Change Rules On Coyote Affidavits

Notarized affidavit as to time, place and manner of taking coyotes, wolves and bobcats is no longer required, the conservation department advises.

Recent conservation commission action eliminates the expense of providing notary public commissions for conservation officers and the need for pelt sealing, resulting in a slight saving.

State statute still specifies that: "Any person who shall secure or attempt to secure any bounty payment under the provisions of this act by fraud or false statements of any kind, shall be guilty of a felony . . . etc."

Getting Ready For Calf Auction

Gary Curtis is shown holding his Hereford steer that he is planning on taking to the Charlevoix County Fair, September 2-6.

Twenty-nine boys and one girl are feeding out beef calves for the second annual fat stock sale to be held at the Charlevoix County Fair, September 4, Ed Rebman, county agricultural agent, reported today. Ten of these calves are calves that were entered at the calf scramble contest at last year's fair. About 15 boys entered this scramble contest with a piece of rope and had to tie their beef calf to the fence. The 10 boys who won these calves took them home and are feeding them to compete for the grand prize at the fair this fall.

The other 20 calves are extra calves that were obtained with the assistance of John TerAvest and placed with 10 boys and one girl for them to feed and try to receive the grand champion award among themselves. The calf scramble calves and the other 20 calves will be judged separately.

Most of the beef club members have their animals dehorned. All of them are trying to train their calves to lead and to make a show animal out of him. They are also trying to make the animal gain at least 2 pounds per day between now and fair time. An animal aquires its most finish the fatter it gets, therefore, it's to the members advantage to have the animal gain as much as possible so that he will have a better chance at the grand champion award. Gary Curtis of Charlevoix, son of Russell Curtis, is one of the beef calf members who is raising a calf for this fat stock sale. Gary's calf is a Hereford and weighed 430 pounds when he received him last fall. Other beef calf members in the Charlevoix area are Ken Allison and Chester Ferrel of Ellsworth.

How Nervy Can a "Tenant" Get?

"Harry the Hermit" dropped in to see Judge Cunningham the other day and started complaining about that dilapidated house he lives in over near Greenwood Lake.

"Who's my landlord?" Harry wanted to know. "Whoever you pay rent to," says the Judge. "Don't pay any rent," says Harry. "Moved into that house twelve years ago and nobody ever came to collect."

"Well," says the Judge, looking mystified, "what do you have to complain about?" "Plenty," replies Harry. "Rain's pouring in my living room and if someone doesn't fix that roof, I'm moving out!"

Now Harry was only having a little joke, but from where I sit I've seen people act just about as nervy as this sometimes—seriously. Like those who enjoy all the rights Americans have worked for, and yet would take away some of those freedoms from others—for example, our right to enjoy a friendly glass of beer. I say these "leaks of intolerance" have no place in the "home of liberty."

"Ring" Test Is Used In Bang's Disease Control

The "ring" test used in control of Bang's disease is an accurate, simple procedure, D. L. Murray, extension dairy specialist at Michigan State College told Ed Rebman, county agricultural agent, today.

The test is performed by mixing one cubic centimeter of milk with one drop of a stained antigen in a small class tube. The mixture is allowed to stand for one hour. Any Bang's organism present will stain and rise with the cream layer causing a colored ring to form, hence the results of one test is shown.

The test is practical and inexpensive, Murray pointed out, and will quickly determine those heards with Bang's reactors present. Milk or cream samples can be taken at the farm or dairy plant and the test performed quickly. The milk or cream samples that show positive indicate that there are Bang's reactors in the herd. Blood samples can then be taken on those herds that have shown positive to the "Ring" test to find the individual reactor animals.

Murray advised that the ring test be made on a milk or cream supply twice a year so that animals not in production at one time will be tested the other time.

Noting the accuracy of the "ring" test, Murray reported that if 40 herd milk samples were positive to the test, 35 of those herds would show up with some reacting animals to the blood test.

The "ring" test makes it necessary to give blood tests only to reacting herds, he said, making it possible to cover a greater area each year in the Bang's control program.

Nitrogen Boosts Yield Of Corn, Specialists Say

Corn is a heavy feeder, particularly on nitrogen. E. D. Longnecker of the Michigan State College soils department, warns that corn cannot be starved of nitrogen and produce a satisfactory crop.

Portions of a 50-bushel corn crop which appear above the ground, stalks, grain and cobs, contain about 80 pounds of nitrogen, 28 pounds of phosphoric acid and 55 pounds of potash. The quantity of nitrogen consumed by a corn crop nearly equals that of phosphoric acid and potash combined.

Nitrogen hunger in corn is indicated by slow growth, light green color of foliage and later by a browning of the lower leaves starting at the tips and extending up along the mid-ribs.

Corn makes a marked response to a July side-dressing of extra nitrogen, Longnecker says.

Experimental work done at the Michigan Agricultural Experiment Station by MSC soil scientists indicates that where the extra nitrogen is needed, two pounds of elemental or actual nitrogen will produce an extra bushel of corn. Forty pounds of actual nitrogen to the acre appears to be the most profitable amount to apply. This amount would be furnished by 200 pounds of ammonium sulfate or 125 pounds of ammonium nitrogen per acre.

In addition to the extra bushels, the protein content of the grain is likely to be increased by one or two percent . . . that is, from a low of seven and one-half percent up to eight and one-half or even nine percent.

Demonstration areas of corn in various parts of Michigan which were side-dressed during July last year with 200 pounds of ammonium sulfate resulted in greener leaves and stalks, larger ears and better yields, and more resistance to frost injury.

County Agent Attends School

Ed Rebman, county agricultural agent, will go back to school in early July to brush up on latest developments and research in agriculture. Members of the Michigan State College Cooperative Extension staff will conduct the meeting from July 7 through 11 on the East Lansing campus.

Along with about 80 other county agricultural agents, Ed Rebman will have an intensive week of catching-up. Field trips and talks from Michigan agricultural experiment stations researchers will take up most of the time. Also on the program will be discussion of administrative principles and instruction in the use of visual aids and television as teaching methods.

The agricultural agents will live and meet in Shaw Hall on the campus, Rebman said.

Animals Eat Grass With Or Without Spray, Revealed

LANSING—Just how tasty is a patch of grass sprayed with weed killer?

Associate Professor B. H. Grigsby of the Michigan State college botany department placed this question before a "classful" of cows, sheep, pigs, horses and chickens recently, but none of the animals came up with an answer.

Grigsby, at a meeting of herbicide users called by the conservation department, said it apparently doesn't matter whether livestock eat green things plain or with a frosting of herbicide.

The botanist, running experiments on the palatability of herbicides, sprayed halves of several plots of pasture using a different weed killer on each. Then he turned assorted livestock loose in the plots and watched for results.

The stock ate widely from both sprayed and unsprayed sections of the pasture. Grigsby said the same probably would be true with Michigan's deer herd, which does considerable browsing along sprayed highways.

The concentrations of weed killers Grigsby used were four to six times as strong as ordinary but no after effects showed up in the cattle. Even the chickens, which had pecked their way through the pasture, came out without being injured.

Clean Combine To Get Cleaner Grain

With grain harvest time coming up, Michigan State College farm crops specialists remind farmers that a thorough cleaning job on the combine will mean cleaner grain.

That means more than just knocking off the worst of the dust. It involves a complete clean-up to make sure the first grain that comes through will be in good shape.

Suggest Feeding Chicks In Shade

To keep poultry eating and gaining, Michigan State College poultrymen advise farmers to put feeders in a shady spot.

Good, weatherproof feeders will encourage proper feeding, reduce waste and help prevent contamination. Possibly even more important than shade for feeders at this time of year is the water supply. Plenty of fresh, clean water also should be made available in a shady location, the poultry specialists urge.

If your pressure canner has a rubber gasket, keep it clean and free from grease. Some types of rubber gaskets may be turned upside down when they no longer give a perfect seal in the original position. If the rubber shrinks, stretch it carefully between the fingers until it fits the rim.

Seed Producers Use New Method For Pollination

A new approach to the problem of getting maximum pollination of alfalfa is being tried by Michigan legume seed producers.

E. C. Martin, Michigan State College entomologist, says that many growers are moving four or five colonies of honey bees per acre into the field soon after bloom is well started. The bees are moved from an apiary at least a mile and a half away so the bees will work the alfalfa to a greater degree in becoming oriented to their surroundings again.

Pollination of alfalfa presents a special problem because the flowers must be "tripped" or opened by the pollinating insect before pollination can take place. Although some wild bees such as the leaf-cutter bees and the bumble bees are efficient trippers of alfalfa, they are so limited in numbers that they normally only pollinate for a small seed crop.

Honey bees collecting nectar from alfalfa are not very effective in pollination, but honey bees collecting pollen from alfalfa trip the flower fairly satisfactorily.

Since honey bees often prefer to get their pollen from clovers or some other plants, it's important to bring them into the alfalfa field at the right time. That way they work the alfalfa while looking for some of their more desirable blossoms.

Seed growers, who plan to bring bees into the field for the blossom period should make arrangements with beekeepers well in advance of the date on which they will be required, Martin said. Importance of good pollination lies in the fact that without it, seed production is reduced.

Name Farm Crops Head At State

Kenyon T. Payne, associate professor of agronomy at Purdue University, will become professor and head of the department of farm crops at Michigan State College, effective August 15.

Dr. Payne, who will fill the vacancy left by the death of Prof. Roy Decker, was appointed by the State Board of Agriculture, governing body of the college. The new farm crops department head is a native of Kansas and has done extension work in plant breeding and in forage crops.

He is a 1939 graduate of Kansas Agricultural College, has a master's degree from the University of Nebraska and received a doctor of philosophy degree from the University of Minnesota.

From 1930 to 1941, Payne served as a special agent for the bureau of plant industry of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Tells Methods Of Spraying Potatoes Against Disease

It is important in the business of raising potatoes, as in any other business, not to lock the door after the horse is stolen. That is the idea Ed Rebman, county agricultural agent, used in urging Charlevoix county potato raisers to spray their crop BEFORE seeing any indication of disease or insect injury.

Rebman recommends applying the first spray when the plants are four inches high. After the first spray, repeat at weekly intervals. This procedure is an insurance policy against insects and diseases.

To make the spray use the old bordeaux mixture consisting of eight pounds of copper suiphate, four pounds of lime, and one and a half pounds of 50% wettable DDT per 100 gallons of water. The spray tank should be filled half full of water and the copper washed through a screen. When the tank is about two-thirds full, add the lime. The DDT should be added last. Keep the agitator moving during the whole process.

A number of growers prefer the fixed coppers and organic fungicides that do not require any lime. In this case, add the DDT as you do in the bordeaux mixture.

A sprayer that will develop 300 to 400 pounds of pressure with three nozzles to the row is the best type. Each application requires 10 to 150 gallons per acre.

For Economy, Here's a

Complete Protein Feed

Farm Bureau Cattle Supplement 45% is a concentrate built for the dairyman, or cattleman, who has fed a single protein concentrate (such as Soybean Oil Meal or Linseed Meal) with his home grown grain. We feel that a combination of proteins—plus molasses, trace minerals, bone meal and Vitamin D will produce cheaper milk or meat, and maintain better health.

Farm Bureau 45 Percent Cattle Supplement

Farm Bureau Cattle Supplement 45% carries Linseed Meal, Cottonseed Meal, Soybean Oil Meal, Gluten Feed and Urea as sources of Protein. Two hundred pounds of molasses per ton is added to increase palatability and help control ketosis. Trace mineral salt, Bone meal and Vitamin D are added as health factors.

Here is a concentrate that allows more home grown grain to be fed with each hundred pounds than single proteins allow.

Some Suggested Formulas

Below are suggested formulas. This concentrate should always be mixed with home grown grains before being fed. Figure the cost of your complete ration using Cattle Supplement 45% as compared with a ration where only Soybean Meal or Linseed Meal is used. A ration will be nutritionally complete for production of milk or meat.

Improved Harbor Is Set For Busy Season

The unprecedented rise of the waters in the Great Lakes and the consequent damage to shore facilities will be of little concern to yachtsmen visiting the Charlevoix harbor this season, Capt. Joseph F. Howard, harbormaster, said today.

Visiting boatmen, accustomed to excellent docking facilities here, will find Charlevoix's docks in perfect condition following completion of a recent building and remodeling program.

In all, 24 docks or slips, varying from 35 to 50 feet in length and including five new docks, are now available to visitors and will allow dockage space for a maximum of 75 pleasure craft.

The estimate does not include those which could be tied up at the city's 300-foot municipal dock and privately-owned docks along Round Lake.

The 24 slips, some of which are pictured above, extend into Round Lake off East Park from Clinton st. to Antrim st., a distance of two blocks. All docks built earlier have been re-capped and temporary ramps built from all docks over the sidewalk which are now inundated because of the high water.

The five new docks include three 40-foot structures off East Park and two 50 foot docks at the end of Mason st.

Charlevoix, anticipating one of the best boat seasons in its history, can well boast that it has the finest harbor facilities anywhere on the Great Lakes.

The docks are available, free of charge, to all visiting boatmen.

The project, which included the construction of the new docks and the raising of others was financed by the city of Charlevoix and the Michigan Waterways Commission at the cost of approximately $13,000. The work was done by the Sears Dock and Dredging Co. of Traverse City.

State Savings, Loan League To Meet Here

The Charlevoix Beach Hotel will be convention headquarters for the Michigan Savings and Loan League when it meets here July 20-23 for its 05th annual meeting.

Approximately 175 members and guests are expected here for the four-day event.

The convention will open Sunday afternoon with an 'early bird' party at 5:30 p.m. followed by dinner.

Monday and Tuesday will be devoted to business sessions with several national authorities on finance, loans and economics addressing the League at various meetings during the two-day period.

Monday will be 'fun nite' and on Tuesday evening the annual banquet will be held, with Dr. Tennyson Guyer giving the main address.

Wednesday will be given over to entertainment, with the visitors enjoying cruiser rides, golf, a visit to the Boyne Mountain ski lift and other activities.

Special entertainment has been planned for the wives of members and other guests. A 'get-acquainted' coffee hour and a talk on interior decorating and pottery display will be given by Mrs. Marilynn Motto of the Kansas City Art Museum Monday morning. A style show will be staged by Polly Kay Inc. Tuesday afternoon.

League officers are Robert J. Hutton of Detroit, president; George L. Young of Grand Rapids, first vice president; Arthur H. Clarke of South Haven, second vice president; Grant H. Longenecker of Lansing, secretary-treasurer and executive manager.

The Charlevoix Board of Commerce has cooperated with the League in planning entertainment for the visitors.

- Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Voorheis of Meadeville, Pa., spent several days this week with the former's brother-in-law and sister, Capt. and Mrs. H. E. Paddock.

New Charter Is Granted To Girl Scout Council

The Charlevoix Girl Scout Council has received the first two-year charter granted to it by the National Girl Scout Organization, Mrs. Lester Smith, president of the Council, has announced.

Previously charters were issued to local Scout groups on a 12-month basis but a new plan adopted recently authorizes the extension of the charter period to qualified councils so they might have the advantage of a longer planning period.

Mrs. Smith went on to say that Girl Scouting in Charlevoix has grown since its first charter was granted in 1945 to a current membership of 145 girls, including both Brownie and Girl Scouts. This past year stress has been placed on such activities as camping and community service as part of the organization's effort to give the girls both practical and psycholgical skills that will help them as they grow up.

Girl Scout charters are given to councils on the basis of volume of membership, number of volunteer leaders, number of troops and the quality of the program provided for the girls of the community. It not only authorizes the Council to promote and carry on Girl Scouting in its prescribed jurisdiction, but also entitles it to have delegates to the National Council of the organization, which determines the policies and procedures of the organization.

State Amateur Crown Goes To Flint Golfer

Fred Turner of Flint annexed the Michigan Amateur Golf Championship here Sunday by defeating Dick Whiting of Detroit 1-up in a 36-hole battle at the Belvedere Golf course. It was Turner's fifth try for the championship.

Turner made a comeback in the last nine holes to take the title after Whiting had led 3-up at the end of 27 holes.

Turner, who celebrated his 44th birthday anniversary Sunday, went into the finals after defeating Glenn Johnson of Grosse Ile two and one in the semi-finals Saturday. Whiting won a finals' berth after defeating Jack Gregory, Wayne University golf captain of Detroit, 1-up.

195 Michigan amateurs were entered in the tournay which became a wide-open race when Chuck Kocsis of Detroit decided not to defend the title he had held for several years.

Charlevoix had two players entered. Bob Livingston and Chuck Fairbanks, Michigan State sophomore. Both were eliminated in the qualifying rounds.

Mickey McMillen of Midland, in the quarter-finals Saturday, who was eliminated by Johnson won opening day medalist honors with a 70 on the par 72 course. John Short of Jackson handed in a 70 on the second day. Both Short and Len Cunningham of Detroit qualified with 144 scores.

Announce Plans For Crowning Of Venetian Queen

Charlevoix's 1952 Venetian Queen, Donna Ball, will begin her reign Saturday, July 26, when she receives her crown at the annual Queen's ball at the Charlevoix Beach Hotel, Jack Mailhot, president of the Charlevoix Lions Club, sponsors of the ball, said Wednesday in announcing plans for the event.

Ivan LaBlance of Alpena, past district governor of the Lions Club, will officiate at the Coronation ceremony during the ball.

Joan Ward, 1951 Venetian Queen, will be present to relinquish her crown to her successor.

In attendance at the ball will be the seven members of the Queen's court, Mary Alice Lagerman and Virginia Smith, ladies-in-waiting, and Dorothy Allers, Lois Buddy, Bette Gill, Beverly Trimble and Elaine Wojan.

Music for the event will be by the Wayne Belding Trio.

The Queen's ball will open the Venetian Night week-end activities July 26 and 27.

Make Plans For Square Dancing

The summer recreation program has been expanded to include a night for square dancing under the stars, Del Terrill, recreation director, has announced.

An invitation has been extended to all residents, regardless of age, to attend the square dancing program at the Municipal tennis courts at the high school building from 8:30 to 11 p.m. every Thursday.

Dancers are urged to bring their 'sets' if they wish.

Voters Elect E. D. Hawley, Albert Smith

Only 213 voters from the Charlevoix school district appeared at the polls in the annual school election Monday to elect two trustees to the Charlevoix Board of Education.

Elected for three year terms were E. D. Hawley, incumbent, and Albert H. Smith of Norwood township.

Hawley polled 179 votes, Smith 120 and Mrs. Kit Carson, who was also seeking re-election, 101 votes.

Thirty-seven residents of the district were present for the annual school meeting which followed the closing of the polls at 8 p.m.

A new heating plant for the school was discussed and the group recommended the installation of a new enlarged heating unit if the Board of Education found it desirable from an engineering point of view.

The deficit of $1,700 on the hot lunch program due to the fact that needy children are fed without charge was discussed. It was the opinion of the group that because many of these children need the nourishment provided by the hot lunches, the deficit should be paid from the general fund and that the program should be continued. During the 1951-52 school year 5,070 meals were served free and 5,145 half-pint bottles of milk given under-privileged children.

The deficit on the milk is paid by the Lenore Goldman Meyer Fund.

The annual reports of the secretary, treasurer and librarian were read and discussed.

Complete Plans For Venetian Night Parade

Plans for Charlevoix's major summer attraction, Venetian Night Boat Parade on Round Lake, are progressing on schedule, Lyle Miles, commodore of the Charlevoix Marine Club said Wednesday following a meeting of the Club which sponsors the annual event.

Invitations have been extended to more than 35 boat owners to enter their decorated boats in the annual Venetian Boat parade on Round Lake Sunday night, July 27.

The parade and fireworks display will be more colorful than in recent years, Mr. Miles continued. Efforts are being made to better last's year total of 31 entries in the parade.

Lighted flares will be placed at various points along the lake to add color to the event.

The fireworks display will be sent up from the Dr. L. E. Grate property because the high water has covered the beach at Little Island, where Charlevoix's fireworks displays have been launched in the past. The increased number of fireworks will necessitate the services of three men this year.

The Venetian parade committee of the Marine Club will select the judges for the Venetian parade. They will be stationed at a vantage point along the lake where boats will pass

Preserve Precious Freedom

Editor's Note: One of Charlevoix's prominent summer residents, Dr. Louis L. Mann, gave the invocation last Friday on that exciting day of the Republican National Convention. So many requests have come to us for copies that we are happy to reprint Dr. Mann's prayer here.

Our Heavenly Father:

We thank thee that "Our lot has fallen in pleasant places, That we have a goodly heritage." Help us so to live, that our deeds may not be unworthy of the sacrifice, the devotion and the idealism of the founders of our republic. May justice ever be the foundation of our republic, righteousness its protecting wall and zeal for liberty its great and abiding passion. We thank thee for this, our beloved country, and we pray unto thee for vision and consecration to keep the torch of liberty ablaze in the hearts and souls of men.

We pray that freedom of speech may continue to lift up its voice like a trumpet against all abuse of wealth, power and station and constantly and constructively point the way to greater service, to meet the chaos and confusion, the crime and corruption of our day.

We pray for the freedom of the press that it may withstand all the intimidation and suppression of those who would inoculate and indoctrinate the people with false propaganda and refuse to expose both sides of controversial issues to the light of truth.

May freedom of assembly not sink into depth of mob action, but be utilized for high and noble purposes making for fellowship, reason and tolerance, recalling the words of our scriptures "Thou Shalt Not Follow A Multitude To Do Evil."

May freedom of conscience, as delineated in the holy scripture, in "the still small voice of prophetic religion and as re-emphasized and re-affirmed in the Mayflower Pact of a "Free Soul In A Free Church In A Free Land", keep us from malice and ill will, bigotry and fanaticism, intolerance and hatred. May the knowledge of our common origin and our common destiny as thy children, help us to bring healing to a world full of strife. May good men and women not avoid the burdens of government, but joyfully assume its responsibilities in a spirit of consecration, remembering that "Where there is no vision a people perish." May our country be the messenger of a righteous peace and be its advocate in the councils of the United Nations. May we never forget that "The work of righteousness is peace and the effect thereof kindness and security forever."

We thank thee for the gift of righteous indignation! We are humbled, aye humiliated, by the crime, corruption, the chaos and confusion of those who have brought shame to our country.

We vow in our hearts to correct these evils, so that we might stand, unashamed and unabashed, not only before our fellow men, and the nations of the world, but also and more especially before thee, "Who seest not as man seest; man looketh upon the outer appearance and thou, O'Lord, looketh into the heart." We vow to have clean hands and pure hearts so that we might strengthen our country against crime and corruption within, and against treachery and intrigue, without.

"God give us men! A time like this demands
Strong minds, great hearts, true faith and ready hands;
Men whom the lust of office does not kill;
Men whom the spoils of office cannot buy;
Men who posses opinions and a will;
Men who have honor—Men who will not lie;
Men who can stand before a demagogue
And damn his treacherous flatteries without winking;
Tall men, sun-crowned, who live above the fog
In public duty and in private thinking.
God give us men."

ODDS 'N ENDS

By Fran Martin

GOLF . . . A great game . . . football, basketball, tennis or what have you we can understand . . . but golf remains a mystery . . We know you tee off and the trick is to get a little white ball into a not-quite so small cup some umpteen yards away . . . And tournament play is even more confusing . . . We're hopeful that someday dawn will break but 'til then . . .

HAVE YOU been down to see the new slips off East Park . . . They're really grand . . . And the others have been repaired . . . It's really something . . . The 'corner' behind the Board of Commerce building has always been our favorite spot along the lake but we think that the new docks are going to make the spot off East Park an even nicer one . . . Take a look and see if you don't agree . . .

AND SPEAKING of boats . . . Capt. Joe Howard, harbor master, tells us that 1952 is well on its way to being the best boat season Charlevoix's ever had . . . The number of boats in so far this month far exceeds that of other years . . . and if things keep moving it's going to be a bit of allright . . . This week-end Charlevoix will be host to the U. S. Power Squadron Rendezvous that's going to bring a mighty lot of people to town . . . The city's planning a royal welcome for them . . . Let's hope they like our harbor well enough to return another time . . .

ONLY THE quick action of one of Charlevoix's older residents, Krist Andersen, prevented a tragedy recently when a youngster fell from the dock at the Coast Guard depot . . . David Sorenson, a guest of his uncle and aunt, the Klaus Andersens, was sailing a new boat from the dock when he slipped and fell into the water . . . The strong current was pulling David into the channel when Mr. Andersen, on the opposite end of the dock, turned to see what had caused the splash . . . Despite his 83 years he hurried to the spot, pushed a pole to David and got the 12-year-old to the dock . . . It had all happened so quickly and quietly that the parents of the youngster and others didn't know what had happened until dripping David made an entrance . . . A mighty scared youngster had learned a hard lesson . . . but his Guardian Angel was working overtime and he was safe . . . We tell you this story to impress on you how quickly an accident like this can happen . . . So watch those youngsters . . . particularly those who have been around the water . . . But watch them all . . . With kids you never know. .

WHAT CAN be done about people stripping the bark from birch trees . . . We were asked that question the other day and we admit we don't know the answer . . . When the new US 31 north to Bay Shore was opened a few years ago everyone admitted it was a beautiful highway and one of the things that made it that was the woods along the road with the lovely white birch . . . Each year more and more trees bear the scars of civilization . . . the loss of their bark . . . What people do with those strips of bark is what we'd like to know . . . We sometimes think it's taken just as a souvenir and then cast aside . . . And as a result the life of a lovely birch which has taken years to reach maturity, will be cut short . . . If you have a solution to the problem, won't you tell us about it . . . And please, won't you help preserve the north's natural beauty by saving the birch trees . . .

THE George Glados' granddaughters, Judy, Janna and Jarra Merica, ages 14, 13 and 11 years, arrived here Friday via bus from Spokane, Wash., for an extended visit . . . but the remarkable part of the whole thing is that they made the trip alone, spent a night at Fargo, N. D., and made the trip in three and a half days . . . The way kids get around these days never ceases to amaze us . .

THERE'S A wonderful new swimming program getting underway this week . . . it's a grand way for your youngsters to learn to swim, so be sure and take advantage of it . . . There's a story on it elsewhere in the paper so see that your kids are on deck at the proper hour . . .

ONLY TWO more weeks and Venetian Night will be with us . . . the Marine Club's busy making plans for the parade . . . the Lions club is arranging the Queen's ball and Charlevoix's getting ready for a big week-end . . . How the summer does fly . .

"THE TRAVELERS", as they call themselves, have reached Alaska, according to letters received Monday . . . Of course you know we mean our eight adventurers who left early this month for the great Northwest . . . A card sent earlier from Dawson Creek, British Columbia, with about 1300 miles still to go brought the news that they had had, to date, two flat tires, two cracked windshields and one punctured gas tank . . . But they were in good spirits and doing OK despite the tough luck.

Matson-Jolliffe Vows Exchanged In Grand Rapids

Miss Mary Jane Matson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Axel Matson of Grand Rapids, became the bride of William J. Jolliffe, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. William Jolliffe Sr. of Route 1 on Saturday evening, June 28 at the Pennellwood Church of God in Grand Rapids.

The Rev. C. E. Lopp performed the double ring ceremony in the presence of the immediate families before an altar decorated with lighted tapers and baskets of blue delphinium and white gladiolli.

Mrs. H. Hatchkiss played traditional wedding music on the organ and accompanied the soloist, Mrs. H. Hubbard, who sang At Dawning and The Lords Prayer.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She chose a floor length gown of white chantilly lace over a taffeta and net skirt. Her fingertip veil was of chantilly lace and she carried a bride's Bible topped with lily of the valley.

Mrs. Robert Smythe, cousin of the bride was matron of honor, and wore a floor length gown of powder blue chantilly lace and taffeta and net skirt and carried a colonial bouquet of white sweet peas and lavender and blue gladiolli.

Jim Jolliffe attended his brother as best man and the ushers were Robert Jolliffe and Herman Outcolt.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Matson selected a navy suit with pink accessories. Mrs. Jolliffe, mother of the bridegroom wore a brown nylon suit with white accessories. Both had corsages of white roses.

The rehearsal dinner was given by the matron of honor, Mrs. Robert Smythe at her home on Friday evening.

Immediately following the wedding a reception was held in the church parlors, after which the couple left on a wedding trip to Copper Harbor in the upper peninsula.

Among those attending the wedding were Mrs. Ebba Brown, Hermonsville; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Brown, Ft. Worth, Tex.; Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Matson, Kalamazoo; Herman Outcolt, Mrs. G. O. Outcolt, and Mrs. Myrtle Matson, all of Ludington and Mr. and Mrs. Milton Richardson of Charlevoix.

The couple are at home at 141 Corinne S.W. Grand Rapids.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Charlevoix high school.

Miss Patterson Becomes Bride Of Detroit Man

Mr. and Mrs. Leo Clifford Wainion are on a wedding trip through the Carolinas, Virginia and the Appalachian mountains following their marriage at the Bethlehem Lutheran church in Detroit June 28.

The Rev. E. M. Touri officiated at the double ring service.

The bride is the former Grayde Aline Patterson of Gainesboro, Tenn, and a former teacher in the Charlevoix public schools.

Escorted to the altar by John Murphy of Detroit, the bride chose a gown of white lace and taffeta for her wedding. It was styled with a sheer net yoke, a lace bodice and short sleeves and a full skirt of sheer net over taffeta. A headdress of starched lace and orange blossoms held her fingertip veil. She carried a nosegay of white rose buds.

Mrs. Casey Kinnaird was matron of honor and Mrs. Tom Whitaker and Mrs. John L. Stafford were bridesmaids. They wore identical gowns of white nylon over pastel taffeta of yellow and blue respectively, matching headdresses and nosegays of summer flowers.

Eino E. Kangas was best man and ushers were Harry Stutt and Mr. Kinnaird.

Immediately following the ceremony an afternoon reception was held at The Stockholm. Mrs. James Meadows and Mrs. Axel Asplund assisted.

For traveling the bride chose a navy faille dress with navy and white accessories.

Local Baseball Team Loses To Walloon Lake

The Charlevoix baseball team Sunday took a 6-1 beating at the hands of Walloon Lake but, despite set-back, managed to halt the no-hit record being run up by Bill Saffron.

When he entered the game Sunday Saffron had pitched 21 no-hit innings but added only one more before Red Evans hit a single to open the second inning. Charlevoix collected five more hits before the game ended but scored on only one, a double by Bud Barber in the third. A single by Bill Denemy brought Barber home.

Walloon Lake scored two runs in the fourth inning and one each in the second, third, sixth and seventh.

Evans was on the mound for Charlevoix with Del Terrill catching. Bob Delaney caught for Walloon Lake.

The Charlevoix nine will journey to Alden for a night game Saturday and are planning a home game for Sunday at the new diamond at Kipke field.

Sunday's game marked the first game in the second half of the Northern Michigan baseball league schedule. The local nine has one game left to play to complete its first half, a postponed meeting with Petoskey.

Announce Plans To Raise Funds To Aid Retarded Children

Mrs. Selden Barris of Detroit, publicity director for the Michigan Association of Parents and Friends of Mentally Retarded Children, has arrived in Charlevoix to spend several weeks at Park Lane Lodge.

Mrs. Barris has announced plans for a campaign to begin Aug. 1 to raise funds for the association, which devotes its efforts to promoting the general welfare of all mentally retarded children in institutions, private and public schools and in the home.

Funds will be devoted to care, training, education and research in the state.

Ordnance Company Returns From Two Weeks Training

The 310th Ordnance Depot company has returned home from a two weeks tour of duty at Pueblo Ordnance Depot, Pueblo, Colo.

While in the west the unit participated in on-the-job training, working side by side with skilled depot personnel, where each man learned by doing that particular unit function to which he had been assigned. Activities in which they participated are ordnance stock control, ordnance depot maintenance, ordnance automotive field maintenance, ordnance general supply, ordnance depot property and depot transportation.

The activities of the unit were not strictly confined to work. During their off duty periods they visited such places as Colorado Springs, Pikes Peak, Cave of the Winds, Garden of the Gods, Seven Falls and the Royal Gorge.

Fifth Army selected Pueblo Ordnance Depot as the site for training ordnance troops because it offers a varied program in operations pecular to ordnance. In the past two years, the depot has become the greatest industrial concentration in Colorado and is still growing.

The 310th Ordnance Depot Company is under the command of Capt. John N. Barkdoll of Charlevoix. It was re-activated into the reserves on Sept. 2, 1950, and has grown from a unit of only six men at the time of activation to sixty men. Over 50 percent of the members are World War II veterans plus one member, Cpl. Everette Hadix of Petoskey, who participated in the Korean conflict.

Members comprising the unit reside in Charlevoix, Antrim and Emmet counties. Among those from the immediate area are: Capt. Barkdoll and Pvt. Dale E. Boss of this city; Lt. James E. Foster, M-Sgt. Adam N. Sinclair and Pfc. George Gibbards Jr. of East Jordan; Sgt. Emit J. McDermott and Pvt. Ray L. Williams of Ironton; Pvt. Wilfred J. Jansen, Pvt. Allen J. Klooster and Pvt. Peter G. Postmus of Ellsworth.

Generally fat fishes such as salmon or shad should be baked or broiled because the fat content will keep them from drying out. Lean cod or haddock, on the other hand, are best steamed or broiled.

Donna Sternberg Becomes Bride Of R. D. Strieter

Donna Sternberg of Sebewaing became the bride of Richard Dean Strieter of Unionville at an impressive ceremony solemnized at the Unionville Moravian church Saturday afternoon.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Sternberg of Sebewaing and the niece of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Sternberg of this city. Mrs. Ethel Strieter of Unionville is the mother of the bridegroom.

The Rev. John R. Hoesman read the service before an altar decorated with white gladioli and pink carnations. Irma Helmich at the organ, played the traditional wedding marches and program of wedding music.

The bride was escorted to the altar by her father. She chose a gown of white satin and lace designed with a lace yoke, long sleeves, a lace peplum forming a bustle and a full skirt which ended in a cathedral length train. A lace bonnett held her fingertip veil and she caried a white Bible topped with a white orchid.

Joan Lowthian of Unionville was maid of honor and Norma Stokus of Saginaw and Dorothy Putzig of Bad Axe were bridesmaids. They wore gowns similar to the bride's. Miss Lowthian's was pink and she wore a pink lace picture hat and carried a bouquet of pink carnations. The Bridesmaids wore light blue gowns, matching lace picture hats and carried bouquets of yellow and white carnations.

Robert Heckroth of Unionville assisted the bridegroom as best man and Gregory Dumas of Bay City and Alex Brinkman of Caro seated the guests.

Mrs. Sternberg selected a navy and white bemberg print, white accessories and a corsage of yellow roses for her daughter's wedding. Mrs. Strieter wore a rose dress, navy accessories and a corsage of matching roses.

A dinner for the wedding party and their immediate families at the home of the bride's parents followed the wedding. An evening reception was held at the V.F.W. hall in Sebewaign.

For traveling on their wedding trip to northern Michigan the bride wore a dark green summer suit and white accessories.

The couple will reside at Unionville.

The bride is a graduate of the Charlevoix high school and the Saginaw General School of Nursing. The bridegroom, a graduate of Unionville high school and a veteran of three years service with the navy, now operates a farm at Unionville.

Complete Plans For Parade through a filtered beam of light so tha theme and work can ba judged.

Four prizes, totaling $140, will be offered for the best decorated boats.

Preceding the parade, a program will be presented in East Park by the Charlevoix Marine Band, the Camp Charlevoix Boys Chorus singing sea chanties and a speciality to be announced later.

Spectators will view the Venetian Boat parade from East Park and other downtown parks and from the bluffs forming Charlevoix's natural amphitheatre.

Queen Donna Ball and her court will view the parade from a special Queen's boat.

During the afternoon visitors may view the Gold Cup exhibition races on Lake Charlevoix from vantage points including Mercer Blvd, the turnout on US 31 north of Charlevoix and the North side and Ferry ave. beaches.

The Queen's ball at the Charlevoix Beach Hotel Saturday evening will open the week-end activities.

Gold Cup Entries To Race Here

In the exhibition races here, the boats will race three heats over a 30 mile course set up on Lake Charlevoix.

Mr. Schafer explained that the boats are in the unlimited class and are among the fastest boats in the world. They range in size from 30 to 35 feet in length with a beam of 12 to 15 feet, with high powered engines. One of Mr. Schafer's boats, for instance is 34 feet with a 14 foot beam and powered by two Allison engines. At Seattle they will be out to break the present Gold Cup record of 101 miles per hour and also to top the 176 mile per hour record set in trial runs recently.

Tha unusual exhibition was brought hare through the cooperation of Mr. Schafer and Arthur Rouse of Boyna City, who first met several years ago on Harry Wismer's radio program at a Notre Dame game in South Bend, Ind.

Mr. Schafer told Mr. Coleman Tuesday that he had always wanted to race his boats in northern Michigan for he was once a resident of the area. Born in Grand Rapids he was reared in Ellsworth, he said, and resided there until 30 years ago. He was manager of the Farmers Co-operative store at Ellsworth for two years prior to going to southern Michigan where he now owns the widely-known Peter Pan bakeries.

Mr. Schafer will be in Charlevoix on July 27 for the races and to renew acquaintances with old friends.

Boyne Citizen Hands A Posy To Charlevoix

Our neighbor newspaper, The Boyne City Citizen, last week dropped a bouquet in the lap of Charlevoix and two of its staunch boosters. The following excerpt is taken from a column entitled "Cobblins" by Kernel Korn with credit to Greg Smith of the Citizen.

"Charlevoix hosts a total of nine conventions this summer season. Three have been held or are in the making and six more are coming up. Conventions don't just drop in your lap—you work for 'em. Stewart "Irish" Coleman, C. of C. secretary does a bang up job of getting them and on the "follow-through." He gets a capable assist from Fran Martin, Charlevoix's capable news correspondent, who does a bang-up job of publicity work for both the community and the conventions.

"Coleman's friends call him both "Stew" and "Irish" but we suppose out of difference to his civic activities they refrain from sticking the two nicknames together and calling him "Irish Stew" Coleman.

* * *

"We attended his first convention of the season, the Michigan Press Association meeting there a week ago, and "Stew" was giving everybody the efficient royal-purple carpet treatment that is making Charlevoix a popular convention spot."

For Sheriff, Gilbert Lindsay, Republican candidate, primary August 5.

Fishing License Sales Ahead Of Last Year Mark

LANSING — Second warmest June in the last 18 years together with the early general fishing season opening continue the unprecedented fishing license sales pace which started in May.

License agent reports received by the conservation department, to July 1, show 480,000 resident permits or 29 percent more than the 373,000 recorded through the same 1951 period. Nonresident sales reported tally nearly 50,000 or 131 percent more than the 21,000 before. Temporary nonresident permits are up 50 percent, 2,770 as compared to 1,840 previously.

Trout stamps total 97,300 up 10 percent over the 1951 figure of 88,400. Retail minnow licenses total nearly 30 percent more or 1,445, and wholesale minnow permits number 153, or 35 percent more.

June average temperature was 70 and in the last 18 years was topped only by a 71.7 average reading in June, 1949. General fishing season opened in late April this year, with only the bass fisherman forced to wait until June 21. A warm July, a big vacation month, probably will see a lot of other anglers out fishing for the first time this year.

Charlevoix County Farm News

Outbreak Of Army Worm Poses Serious Threat To Farm Crops

A warning to all farmers in Charlevoix county to be on the watch for the army worm, was issued Monday by Ed Rebman, county agricultural agent. One serious infestation has been reported in an area south of Charlevoix, causing extensive damage to grass and oats.

Rebman warns that a dangerous and costly epidemic could easily spread over the whole county if farmers fail to check their fields and immediately report any signs of infestation. The worms feed at night and he suggests that field check be made during the evening.

The army worm is from an inch to an inch and a half long with a white or yellow stripe on its sides. Discovery of the pests should be reported to the county agents office or home at Boyne City in order that a check may be kept on the extent of the outbreak and plans made to keep the situation under control.

Crops most likely to be damaged by the worms are grasses, corn and grains. While most wheat fields are advanced enough to be free from damage, oats and grasses are in a stage especially to the worms liking and they will strip a field in a very short time.

The last serious outbreak of the army worm hit the county in the early thirties. At that time the only known means of checking the pest was a poison bait. Faster and more effective means of checking the pests are available now.

Rebman is lining up a souce of supply of the most effective poisons known. The type of poison and the method of use will be determined by the extent of the infestation. Failure of farmers to report infested fields may easily let the situation to get beyond control, he says resulting in a heavy loss to farmers throughout the area.

Meet For Beekeepers At Bellaire Park

Two Michigan Beekeepers association meetings are scheduled for late July, according to E. C. Martin, Michigan State College bee specialist.

One will be held at Frankenmuth park, July 24 and the other at Bellaire park, July 25.

Alert Farmers To Nitrogen Needs In Corn Fields

Some Michigan corn will start showing signs of nitrogen starvation any day now, according to Paul J. Rood, Michigan State College farm crops specialist.

This nitrogen starvation will be shown by firing, starting at the tip of lower leaves. After the tip turns yellow the, brownish sympton of lack of nitrogen moves up the mid-rib of the leaf.

Rood says that corn needs an extra shot of nitrogen right now, unless a green manure crop was plowed down before, or barnyard manure applied at the rate of 12 to 20 loads per acre before this crop of corn.

Experiments by college farm crops researchers have shown that you should side-dress corn with about 200 pounds per acre of sulfate of ammonia or 125 pounds per acre of ammonium nitrate. Either of these rates of application cost about $8 an acre and should increase corn yields by about 20 bushels per acre on the average.

Inspecting Canary Grass Growth

Curtis Nicloy, LeRoy Nicloy and Ed Rebman, County agricultural agent, looking at the reed canary grass on the Nicloy farm.

Reed canary grass is doing an excellent job at the Art Nicloy & Sons farm on the Peninsula according to Ed Rebman, county agricultural agent.

This is a very small area in size but it's a start on what they wish to accomplish when they have their soil conservation plan in operation. During the winter of 1948 and 1049 they cleared a section of their cedar swamp. The stumps at the time of cutting were sprayed with 2 4 5 T to prevent sprouting. The sprayer they used belonged to the county extension office at Boyne City and anyone who wishes to do this kind of spraying may borrow this three gallon sprayer. We have it painted red so no one will misuse it by spraying on field or garden crops. Don't use your own sprayer for weed or brush killers.

Just as the snow was going off, Nicloy's applied about 300 pounds per acre of fertilizer with the analysis of 0-20-20. Seed was sown on top of the ground between the stumps just as the snow left at the rate of 5 to 6 pounds per acre. The growth has now averaged about 6 feet. The area is too small, at the present time, to be pastured, thus the reed canary grass really is tall. When they get the rest of the swamp cleared and more seed sown they will have somewheres around 3 to 5 acres of this reed canary grass which will make excellent pasture crop for their dairy herd.

Art Nicloy & Sons were one of the first co-operators of the Charlevoix Soil Conservation District. Their farm plan is number. 0, which means that their farm was planned among the very first. They have 160 acres with about 77 tillable acres. Their crop rotation is corn, oats, hay and hay. Their livestock program calls for 18 Holstein cows and 16 head of young stock.

Art Nicloy, the father, at the present time isn't doing much farming. He had a stroke last year and now must take it very easy. The two boys, Curtis and Leroy, are both married and living at home and they are the ones who are taking care of the farm.

Blackleg Threat Warning Issued

This is the danger season for blackleg and farmers living in blackleg areas are urged to vaccinate animals before outbreaks occur, Dr. Glen Reed, Michigan State college extension veterinarian, issued the warning.

He said that all calves in blackleg areas should be vaccinated when three or four months old. The disease is caused by a spore-forming germ which can live in the soil for years. It may enter an animal's body through small cuts and punctures in the skin, or it may be picked up through grazing.

This disease usually is fatal, Dr. Reed said, and outbreaks occured in some parts of Michigan last year. If you suspect the disease, look for symptoms which include dullness and lameness followed by a fever, swelling and loss of weight.

If blackleg is suspected, call your veterinarian immediately, the MSC specialist advised. If the trouble proves to be blackleg, the rest of the herd can then be protected by vaccination. Carcasses of animals which die from the disease should be burned or buried deeply under lime to prevent the infection from spreading.

Dr. Reed said that there is little likelihood that the disease could affect humans, if it is possible at all.

It pays to clean up feedlots and other places where cattle can get at small pieces of metal. Many cattle are killed after swallowing bits of metal.

Complete Protein Feed

Farm Bureau Cattle Supplement 45% is a concentrate built for the dairyman, or cattleman, who has fed a single protein concentrate (such as Soybean Oil Meal or Linseed Meal) with his home grown grain. We feel that a combination of proteins—plus molasses, trace minerals, bone meal and Vitamin D will produce cheaper milk or meat, and maintain better heatlh.

Farm Bureau 45 Percent Cattle Supplement

Farm Bureau Cattle Supplement 45% carries Linseed Meal, Cottonseed Meal, Soybean Oil Meal, Gluten Feed and Urea as sources of Protein. Two hundred pounds of molasses per ton is added to increase palatability and help control ketosis. Trace mineral salt, Bone meal and Vitamin D are added as health factors.

Here is a concentrate that allows more home grown grain to be fed with each hundred pounds than single proteins allow.

Some Suggested Formulas

Below are suggested formulas. This concentrate should always be mixed with home grown grains before being fed. Figure the cost of your complete ration using Cattle Supplement 45% as compared with a ration where only Soybean Meal or Linseed Meal is used. A ration will be nutritionally complete for production of milk or meat.

14% PROTEIN FEED—100 lbs. F.B. Cattle Supplement plus 800 lbs. Corn and Oats.
16% PROTEIN FEED—100 lbs. F.B. Cattle supplement plus 500 lbs. Corn and Oats.

The Ole Swimmin' Hole" surely ain't what it used to be! It's had a face lifting job! The beach has been cleared and fresh sand has replaced the rough surface. Also at a recent meeting the local Chamber of Commerce decided to put in a new diving board and the village council has plans to build a bath house.

These improvements will add a lot to the enjoyment of the youngsters and a few oldsters too, no doubt.

It will lack only one thing! That is a life guard or some adult supervisor to assure the safety of the swimmers.

Health Official Tells Cause Of Swimmer's Itch

Swimming in deep water and rubbing off well with a towel before the water has a chance to dry on the skin are two ways of avoiding swimmer's itch, Dr. A. F. Litzenberger, director of the District Department of Health No. 3, said today in answer to inquiries received at the District Health office.

Few cases have been reported in the immediate area, Dr. Litzenberger continued as he went on with an explanation of the water or swimmer's itch, as it is commonly called.

The itch is caused by the penetration of the skin by the larvae of worms that live on muskrats and various types of water birds or fowl. The larvae develop on several species of snails. By rubbing off well with a rough towel after swimming in an infected area, most of the larvae are removed before they can penetrate the skin.

When the larvae penetrate the skin an itching sensation develops at the spot. Within 24 hours the spots may become inflamed and resemble a mosquito or chigger bite. The itching generally becomes more intense and unless the inflamation is extremely severe, the rash usually disappears in a week.

In highly infected areas, chemical treatment of the beach is practiced. The area should be examined by a person thoroughly familiar and trained in this field and then, if chemical treatment is needed, it should be carried out under his direction.

Requests for services on chemical treatment may be addressed to Water Resources Commission, P. O. Box 211, Boyne City.

For Sheriff, Gilbert Lindsay, Republican candidate, primary August 5.

INTERPRETING THE NEWS

by Gene Alleman

Halfway between the Republican and Democratic national conventions today, Americans can pause to catch their breaths and take a quick look at November.

They're sure of one thing . . . they'll only elect one president then.

But Michigan voters face a more unusual situation on their state ballot. They can approve two amendments to the state constitution, two amendments that are as opposite as the GOP and Dem candidates will be.

That prospect is causing brow-wrinkling in Lansing as the experts study the odd situation. And with most of those experts already wrinkling their foreheads over problems of their personal political campaigns, we may wind up with a lot of Michigan prototypes of the famous Mrs. Pruneface of Dick Tracy notoriety.

THIS IS how the unprecedented situation comes about.

There will be two amendments to reapportion the state legislature on the November ballot. Voters can say yes or no to each one. If they say yes to both there will develop the question of which one will be effective.

Obviously both can't be anymore than we can have two presidents in the White House.

If voters say no, then both sides will be unhappy because it will scuttle long-held plans and hopes for overdue realignment of representation in the legislature, something that hasn't been done in the past 26 years despite the tremendous growth and shift if Michigan population in that time.

"When in doubt, vote no." That old political maxim might be followed if the voters get too confused between now and November.

THERE'S plenty of room for confusion.

In the first place, reapportionment is hardly the subject for a third grade English theme. It's a complicated question with more side-roads than a Miami Beach subdivision.

Because it's sheer Greek to so many voters, it gives a good chance for the silver-tongued boys to appeal to emotion and prejudices. The phrase-coiners are Minting "bright terms and witty sayings." Well fed on oratory coming out of the Chicago convention halls and due to be served even more generous helpings as the campaign progresses, John Q. Citizen is apt to "frow up".

EVEN THE names of the sponsoring organizations are enough to make the best informed capitol newsman pause to unwind his tongue once in a while.

The Committee for Representative Government filed its proposal first.

The Cimmittee for a Balanced Legislature came in with its own just under the deadline.

Both groups are made up of many different segments in the best tradition of politics making strange bedfellows. But in each committee there are dominant groups. They'll lend their names to the proposed amendments and make it a little easier to follow the game without a program.

The CIO sparks the Representative Government committee; the Farm Bureau and mutial insurance companies are the dynamoes for the Balanced Legislature group.

BRIEFLY, the CIO amendment would set up legislative representation on strictly population basis.

The farm business amendment would keep the Senate on an area-representation basis and divide the House on population lines.

Opponents say the CIO proposal would give Wayne, Oakland and Genesee Counties, with their huge industrial unions, dominance over the whole state.

Anti-farm business factions contend that that plan gives representation to "beans and cherry trees instead of people."

JUST WHAT will happen if both proposals get an affirmative vote is something that can kick up an argument as fast as the assertion that Freddy Hutchinson is a better baseball manager than Red Rolfe.

There has never been a similar case in Michigan history so there is no clearcut precedent. Attorney General Frank G. Millard (officially) will wait until he gets to the bridge before crossisg it. But unofficially he's looking at the roadmaps, and books in his law library for a rough idea of where the highway might cross the river come November.

Common sense might lead to the assumption that if both amendments do carry the one with the greatest majority would be in effect. But common sense and the strict letter of the law don't always coincide and every i has to be dotted and every t crossed before an amendment gets hemstitched onto the Constitution.

Wind, Electric Storm Causes Damage In Area

Weather has been the main topic of conversation since the early morning electric and wind storm Monday which did extensive damage in the area.

Most of the damage was caused by wind although Edward Swanson, foreman of the utility crew, said several transformers on city electric lines were struck by lightning.

The best story to come out of the early Monday morning storm is one told by Mrs. DeWitt Peters, 102 Petoskey ave.

When she and two neighbors met in the Peters front yard, some 500 feet from Lake Michigan, early Monday to look over the damage of the storm, they found a 10¾ inch cisco lying on the lawn.

Mrs. Peters isn't saying the wind blew it there but she is sure it wasn't there before the storm.

Wind estimated up to 50 miles an hour struck at 12:45 a.m. Monday during an electrical storm, blowing electric wires down and throwing a large part of the city into darkness. The twisting wind also tore large branches from trees, snapped others in half and in some instances uprooted or snapped large trees at the base.

At 419 Michigan ave. the newly-completed home of the Alan Steinerts was severely damaged when the wind collapsed the plate glass windows which form a large part of the west wall of the structure, causing the wall and roof to collapse.

At 110 W. Dixon ave. Albert Puhek, 45, of Detroit, was hit in the abdomen by flying glass when wind blew in a plate glass window. He was given emergency treatment at the Charlevoix Hospital and discharged to his home.

Damage from rain driven through broken windows and about doors was also high.

"Slow- Men Working-"

"Danger! Road Under Construction!"

"Detour! New Bridge Being Built!"

Signs like that are familiar sights throughout the state of Michigan these days.

To the tourist, anxious to rack up 600 miles that day so he can brag to Cousin Lemuel back home, such signs may be irritating. But to State Highway Commissioner Charles M. Ziegler, they're as gratifying as a bunch of big numbers on a scoreboard are to a baseball player.

THOSE SIGNS are the scoreboards for a victory of Brother Ziegler and his fellow-Republicans in the Legislature.

They represent over $42 million of state trunkline projects that the Highway Department has awarded since last September for 1952 construction. That's a record never matched in the 47 years the department has existed. In 1950 the total was $25 million, in '51 it was $22 million.

"This program of badly-needed construction was made possible because of the new highway legislation enacted in June, 1951, over the vigorous protest and veto of the Governor," says Ziegler. (And he may be forgiven if a note of gloating creeps into his voice.)

"This legislation provides for an increase in gasoline tax from 3c to 4½ per gallon and increased weight tax on heavy trucks. The petroleum industry has absorbed ½c of the increase and further absorption is expected."

BOLSTERED with these figures, Ziegler will fight vigorously against a reported plan of the CIO to push a referendum which would cut gas tax to 3c by Constitutional amendment.

"The increased highway construction program would cease for lack of funds should the CIO be successful," Ziegler warns. He recalls that the labor group failed to stymie the original increase when the Supreme Court held that petitions for that referendum were invalid.

"Michigan's gasoline tax of 4½ cents per gallon, as at present ,is still approximately 35% below the national average," the commissioner points out emphatically.

"Why is the road to my Summer cottage so bumpy while the one to Sunburn Beach is being repaved?"

That's a common question and the commissioner has a ready answer for it.

"Projects are determined on an emergency basis," he says. "We've got to catch up on the tremendous backlog of work which accumulated because of inadequate revenue in the past.

HEAVY wartime traffic increased nomal depreciation. There were material shortages. Revenues were cut because of gas and tire rationing during the war. Costs more than doubled.

Michigan, the auto state, was a pioneer in building roads for auto traffic. Many trunklines were built 20 to 30 years ago and, though they were brilliant examples to the rest of America then, they were not designed for today's transportation and require high, uneconomical maintenance expense. Many are being rebuilt to 1952 standards.

The steel strike may cause delay in some current projects.

But the big threat as Ziegler sees it, is cutting gas tax revenues. "Construction programs in the counties, cities and incorporated villages have also been expanded because of these inceased revenues," he emphasizes, "and they'll be cut if gasoline taxes should be lowered."

The legislature can override a Governor's veto; they can't override a Constitutional amendment.

So Ziegler is hoping that all future signs saying "Men working" will refer only to highway construction crews and not to circulators of petitions that he fears will take such signs off Michigan trucklines.

CHARLES MEEKING, editor of The Canberra Times of Australis, is sitting in on the Democratic national convention this week.

During a stopover at Lansing, he paid a visiting-fireman call on your reporter. Because an impartial observer can see many things that we Americans may overlook in the heat of our own political convictions, it was natural that he be asked for his views on the coming campaign.

"I am surprised at the complacency of so many people I've talked to about charges of corruption in the administration," he observes. "I've talked to so many, many people who just shrug and say, "Oh, well. We know the boys in Washington all get their share. What can you expect?"

That makes him wonder just how effective the Republican campaign will be if General Ike pitches it on an anti-corruption level.

MEEKING is a veteran political observer. Of the GOP convention which he viewed on TV and the current Democratic one he's seeing from the pressbox at the amphitheater, he says, "They make me feel right at home.

He was press secretary to Premier Menzies during the latter's successful fight to get into power. American and Australian politics, he opines, are basically alike. The outward form may differ but that's all.

Two things impressed him in America where he's travelling under State Department auspices. "I was surprised at how hard you work here. People don't work as hard or as efficiently in Australia. Hence production is low and prices high.

"I was also surprised at all the 'free labor here. Back home everything is unionized almost 100%."

Australia needs Americans for a shot in the arm. Meeking invites you to come to his country to live and work. Just say "Charley sent me."

ODDS 'N ENDS

By Fran Martin

BOATS . . . scads of them, of every description . . . were in over the week-end . . . And it's almost as much fun to see them as it is to be on one . . . Almost, we said . . . From now on there'll be plenty . . . what with the Chicago to Mackinac race over they'll be returning via Beaver Island and Charlevoix on their way home . . . which incidently, is up Lake Michigan (to points south) and not down, as we usually say . . .

BEAVER ISLAND'S planning a big wing-ding . . . the king will be named and everyone will gather at the Shamrock to sing Long live the King . . .We understand there's quite a lot of rivalry among the candidates . . . And the Irishmen on the Island are the people who can show the visitors a good time . . .

EVERYONE who saw last week's Life magazine is trying to figure out what house is in the background of a picture of Adlai Stevenson when he came to Charlevoix as a boy some 48 years ago . . . We'll wager it's some place on the Chicago club for that is where the Chicago summer residents stayed . . . even in those days . . . The picture is seen in a picture story of the man, who until the time the Democratic convention opened this week, was still saying 'No' to those who were backing him as a presidential candidate . . . You will probably remember that we mentioned earlier this year, Mr. Stevenson, now governor of Illinois, was in Charlevoix as a summer guest on the Chicago club last summer . . . If we can't get a presidential candidate from Michigan, maybe we will end up with one who at least spends his summers in the state . . . and in Charlevoix too . . .

AND SPEAKING of presidential candidates . . . in an AP report on the recent Republican convention, one of Republican-nominee Eisenhower's brothers was listed as being from Charlevoix, Michigan . . . We learned later he's from Charleroi, Pa. So to those who asked about It . . . there's the answer which we didn't have at the time . . .

BILL DENEMY'S swimming classes got underway this week . . after the kids registered last week . . . He tells us there's more than 80 youngsters in every age group from beginners through Senior life saving . . . That's quite a turn-out and it should develop into a fine program . . . It's something we've wanted to see for a long time . . . If it's successful this year it may be enlarged another year . . . and soon every kid in town will be able to really swim . . . That will be something we'd like to see . . .

DID YOU notice the attractive window Will Bellinger had for the Power Squadron which was in over the week-end . . . He had models of boats . . . two old compasses, books on navigation and seamanship, Flags, old pictures of the local harbor . . . a very original idea and one worth a look-see . . . So don't forget to take a look next time you're down that way . . .

WE'VE been hearing all kinds of stories about the army worms south of town . . . Ugh . . . they must be awful . . . and the destruction they cause is beyond words . . . We sure hope they come up with something to stop them before long . . . Our sympathy goes to the farmers whose crops are destroyed by the awful things . . .

WHEN WE had a story recently on the Harry Cool Trio coming to the Argonne . . . the name sounded very familiar but it was only last week that we learned why . . . He used to sing with Dick Jurgens' popular orchestra that we'd listened to so many times . . .

A BIG 'thank you' to the John Rosquists for the lovely gift of black cherries left at the office last week . . . Bigger juicier, blacker cherries we've never seen and everyone enjoyed them . . . With them was a 8-inch branch with 40 cherries on it, just to give you an idea how they grow.

For sheriff, Gilbert Lindsay Republican candidate, primary August 5.

Girligigs

Summer clothes are happy clothes . . . and in case you haven't had time to notice, there are some mighty happy expressions of them that bob on and off these yachts all day.

A general fed-up-ness with last year's jeans is apparent in a variety of shorts being the most popular order of the daytime.

Sparkling white, red, and pastel plaid shorts are the favorites . . complete with matching caps, and worn with sleeveless white shirts.

And then there was a pink linen baseball suit trimmed with navy . . . and a red bandanna shirt topping denim shorts.

For shopping, a navy blue sheath dress buttoned together with hugh bone buttons. And a bare-back navy linen sailor dress with an honest-to-goodness sailor collar covering the shoulders . . . completed by a red linen box topper.

It makes you wonder if you hava to be a sailor to dress like one . . . I see a lot of you gals with fishing creels but I'll bet a cooky you haven't been fishing.

Speaking of fishes and things . . . I worry about what the oyster is going to think when word gets around about the new square pearls. It's just things like that that make an oyster stew, poor thing . . . . poor thing.

Storm Causes Damage in Area

Parts of the city were without electric current until mid-morning Monday when crews completed the job of repairing and replacing broken wires.

At Boulder Park the water was washed over the road. A tree was blown into the road near the auto park, blocking the highway until morning.

City street crews are still cleaning up streets littered with branches, leaves and trash blown down by the wind. Another electrical and rain storm Tuesday hampered the work.

The storm which struck northern Michigan Tuesday morning wrought severe damage in Cheboygan county area and the Tuesday night storm did some damage in the Petoskey area.

During the storm at mid-morning Tuesday residents at the Clarence Roe cottage on the Belvedere club reported seeing a water spout on Lake Charlevoix caused by the wind.

During the storm early Sunday evening Mrs. Dale Boss was struck by lightning and suffered body burns while working in her home located behind Mt. McSauba. Her condition is not serious.

Several boatmen in the Charlevoix harbor reported unusual rises and falls in the water level during the storm Tuesday morning.

These 'tidal waves', as they have been called were noticed at various points along Lake Michigan and caused considerable damage in some places.

Me—Advising a Banker!

The Missus and I were invited to dinner over at Balesville the other night. I sat next to a banker from the state capital.

"Mighty nice country you've got down there," he says. "Don't be surprised if I come to live there myself. In a few years I plan to get away from everybody, buy a farm and just take it easy."

"Well," I told him, "we'd like to have you. But when someone plans to buy a farm and 'take it easy' he often winds up working harder than ever. It takes work to run a farm right no matter how many hands you can afford to hire.

"And from where I sit," I continued, "you won't 'get away' from people either. Neighbors are plenty important in a farming community—whether it's helping one another out or just friendly visiting over a sociable glass of beer." "Hard work and neighbors dropping in all the time?" he asks, looking at me over his glasses. Then he smiles and says, "Sounds wonderful. You've just sold me on a farm."

Bellaire Council Proposes Sale Of Electric Plant

Of interest to the residents of Charlevoix is the unanimous decision of the Bellaire village council to ask Consumers Power Co. to prepare a contract to cover the sale of the village's power plant in an effort to provide the village with an increase in electric power.

The contract will be submitted for approval of village voters at a special election.

The decision to sell the village plant to Consumers Power Co. was reached after Charlevoix voters, by a 174 to 148 vote in the April election, turned down an offer of $80,000 made by Bellaire for the hydro-electric plant owned by Charlevoix and located in Bellaire.

Under the proposed agreement with Consumers Power, the village will retain its present plant for street lighting and other municipal needs. The building which houses the diesel engines and land on which it is built will be deeded back to the city for the nominal sum of $1.

DO YOU

1—Know that our Sheriff's Department cost the Tax Payers of Charlevoix County $21,493.60 to operate for the past two years?

2—feel that the service that you received warranted the above expenditure?

3—feel that the highways of Charlevoix County have been properly patrolled by the Sheriff's Dept. for the past two years?

4—feel that the County is properly organized under the Civil Defense program in case of an emergency?

5—think that the DOGS in Charlevoix County are properly controlled?

As a candidate for Sheriff of Charlevoix County, if nominated and elected, I can assure you that our highways and public places will be properly patrolled, a solution to the controversial dog question found, complaints fully and properly investigated and full cooperation with the National and County Defense Committee in setting up a program in case of an emergency. These are but a few of the duties that your Sheriff should obligate himself with and be able to perform when accepting the office and if I fail in fulfilling my duties I will blame myself and not the Board of Supervisors.

I have been a Public Official in one capacity or another for the past fifteen years. Mayor of Boyne City, County Public Administrator, Justice of the Peace, Local Chairman of Polio and am a Veteran of World War No. 1 and No. 2. With my past Administrative, Military and business experience I feel fully qualified to be an alert and energetic servant to the People of Charlevoix County and give a much better service for the money expended.

Give Statistics On Postoffice Annual Figures

If you have ever wondered how much you spend annually on postage and how much mail you receive in a year, you will be interested in the figures released this week by Peter H. Timmer, Charlevoix postmaster.

According to the statistics, the average person spends $9.78 annually on postage and receives during the year an average of 173 pieces of first class mail, 42 newspapers and magazines, 69 pieces of advertising mail and eight packages.

These figures and the ones which follow were reached as part of the cost ascertainment program carried on in the Charlevoix post office and a number of other 'average' post offices throughout the country.

Other figures reveal that a piece of domestic mail travels 1,188 miles; a first class letter 490 miles; a parcel post package, 607 miles and a newspaper or magazines, 507 miles.

Despite the increase in postal rates, the report continues, the postal department is operating at a deficit which grows annually. In 1951 postal revenues amounted to One billion 781 Million dollars and expenses two billion 462 million dollars for a deficit of 681 million dollars. In 1941 the revenues were 750 million and expenditures 760 million dollars.

Of further interest is the fact that first class not only pays its own way but shows a profit of a million dollars while magazines and newspapers, advertising and circulars show a deficit, of 190 million and 130 million respectively.

For every dollar spent in the postal department, 36 cents goes for administrative and clerical services in post offices, 30 for transportation (train and trucks), 16 for city carrier service, seven for rural carrier service, six for railway mail clerks, three for maintenance and supplies and two for departmental administration.
